1258	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1259	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1260	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1261	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The salary of Queensland MPs should be linked to that of public servants. The productivity of each is dependent on the other.</li> </ul>
1262	8/09/2013	Queensland politicians remuneration should be in line with Queensland Public Servants and future pay rises should match that of Queensland Public Servants. Politicians are not required to have the qualifications or experience that many members of the Queensland Public Service hold.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1263	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1264	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1265	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Please note I have kept my details anonymous for fear of retribution from Campbell.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1266	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1267	8/09/2013	I refer to your letter, dated 21 August 2013, regarding the review into the remuneration of Members and former Members of the Queensland Parliament (MPs) and I thank you for the opportunity to express my view. In my opinion, the system in place prior to the establishment of the QIRT, i.e. the rate of adjustment to annual pensions was equal to the percentage increase in the Parliamentary backbencher salary at each July 1st, was fair and equitable. Had the previous government passed on increases as they were due, the formula (including tying a backbencher's salary to the federal parliamentary backbencher's salary) would have worked as intended. They did not. When the matter was raised with the present government, the previously unpaid increases plus the annual July 1st adjustment, made the proposed increase in salary/pension appear unreasonable. It is now your task to determine what is 'reasonable'. However, it is my view that the previous method of alignment of pension to a backbencher's salary should remain the benchmark.
1268	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1269	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1270	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1271	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1272	8/09/2013	For Mr Newman or any other politician to greedily accept a whopping 42% pay rise in the face of sackings and pathetically small, sub CPI pay rises for the public service, police, ambulance and fire services shows he has nothing but contempt for anyone that works under the government's banner. Unfortunately, the likes of Newman couldn't give a flying [inappropriate content] about anyone else. Nor will he develop any conscience about such blatant disparity and most likely just rub his grubby hands together all the way up to his eventual demise.
1273	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1274	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1275	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1276	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1277	8/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. tying this money into Wages means that less is likely to be spent on the taxpayers they represent. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. My pay is less than that of my commonwealth counterparts but there is no talk of raising my pay to the extent that is proposed neither would I expect there to be.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1278	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1279	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1280	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• If the tribunal allows the Queensland MPs to have a 40% increase in their salary, I would like a 40% increase also please. I would also like to be able to take my superannuation when I leave a job (to pay off my mortgage) and then be able to walk into another well paying job, instead of having to wait until I satisfy the criteria of retirement before I can access my superannuation savings.</li> <li>• One set of rules for a very fortunate few which is much more generous than rules thrust upon the majority of hard working Queenslanders is NOT A GOOD LOOK !!</li> </ul>
1281	8/09/2013	I propose any pay increase be linked to that granted to public sector employees. As with public sector those taking on the role of a politician do so to serve the community. Any increase above this rate appears self serving an in contempt of our communities.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1282	8/09/2013	The salaries of politicians should be comparable with people who work in community organisations. It is not right to pay politicians based on salaries of people in the corporate sector, which has got out of control and is no real indication of getting value for money. Politicians should not be paid per hour of service. Plenty of people who devote themselves to working in the community sector are not paid for every hour they spend working there. That being said, politicians should be encouraged to manage their time to ensure an appropriate work-life balance that models a reasonable expectation for public servants. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. Queensland politicians' pay should not be linked to Commonwealth politicians' exorbitant pay.
1283	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• It is my belief that direct salaries for Queensland MPs MUST be separated from allowances for work within their electorates. All REASONABLE expenses MUST be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The Tribunal MUST ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by INCREASING the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal MUST ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• To this end the Tribunal MUST consider the broader community's opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal MUST also recognise the broader community's opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1284	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• As a public servant at risk of losing my job it saddens me to see such inequality. I'm told I must sacrifice pay to keep my job but what sacrifices are the politicians making?</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1285	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1286	8/09/2013	We as the public do not authorise to give you a pay rise of this size. Teachers and other public servants did without in the last pay rises they had a pay increase less than CPI - so this is the standard - so this will be your payrise and not a cent more. Unfortunately you appear to think that you can do anything at any time - you are not a good politician - you are only interested in yourself and your mates and not the public, not the people. Greed, selfishness and self-interest is not what we the people want or expect or accept of our paid politicians. YOU and your cronies do not deserve and will not get the $59000 or anything like this. There is no way you deserve this as you have caused an increase in unemployment and damaged our state rating. YOU are put in a position to help Qld grow and succeed but all I have seen you do is slash and burn and take and close down. AND of course look after your mates. NO TO PAYRISE. You are a public servant elected by the people to do a job for a limited time. Control for you to be given a payrise is in my hands and I say NO.
1287	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1288	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1289	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1290	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1291	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1292	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1293	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1294	8/09/2013	Former Politicians and Prime Ministers should not have free travel and offices once they leave office.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Also the ongoing wages once they leave office should be reduced dramatically.
1295	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1296	8/09/2013	I was fine with the MPs salaries prior to the increase. $125,000 base salary is suitable for an MP considering they have their office and car paid for. As a company director of a business employing 220 people I am constrained by my bank to pay myself $125,000. This would also align with the base level SES salary as well. MPs are not controlling a large sophisticated organisation. On the standard tests for position responsibility of: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a) decision making,</li> <li>b) budgetary control, and</li> <li>c) staff management</li> </ul> MPs rate quite low. Secondly, a state electorate is one third the size of a federal electorate. The connection between Federal MPs needs to be broken. It is far harder to service 100,000 voters than it is 35,000 in a typical state electorate

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1297	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1298	9/09/2013	I understand that the previous Labour government was trying to do the right thing economically, when it deferred the pay rise to politicians. Surely, with the current government continually bleating about the "economic mess" left by the previous government, then respective legislation could have been introduced to deny the obscene salary increase that is currently on the table for politicians. I believe that politicians are grossly overpaid as it is, and to increase their salary by such an inflated amount slaps at the heart of all pensioners and low income families, who have to survive on far less each year, than this increase that is being offered to politicians. Please restore some sense of respectability into the setting of parliamentary salaries.
1299	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1300	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1301	9/09/2013	I'm a public servant so do not wish to provide my surname for fear of reprisal. I believe the base salary provided to politicians is adequate, however think the electorate allowance needs to be accounted for better. I believe it is open to rorting by some less than honest MPs who believe it is a top up to their salary. In terms of salary increases from time to time, it should be equal to any increase the public service obtains, no more and no less.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1302	9/09/2013	The people of Queensland will not sit by and happily let politicians (especially Campbell Newman) give themselves a pay rise- notably when the current state government has set such a poor example since coming to power. Isn't one of the predisposing considerations for a pay rise that you are first able to demonstrate competence in your position? The fact that this tribunal is asking for submissions whilst the people are being distracted by the election circus is also highly disappointing. If politicians are meant to be representative of the people they elect, then they should never be be showered with so many allowances and tributes that they are seen to be above the people they represent. Realistically any tribunal who allows the politician what they are asking - (whilst they are demonstrating severe incompetence)is going to receive a major backlash. The annual salary and allowances the MP's receive already far exceeds the income of the vast majority of people- even before the increase proposed. The MP's should be fighting for their people first before putting their hands out for money.
1303	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1304	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1305	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1306	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1307	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1308	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1309	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1310	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1311	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1312	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1313	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1314	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1315	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1316	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1317	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1318	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1319	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1320	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1321	9/09/2013	I am a retired commonwealth government person & my 'comsuper pension' is regulated by the CPI which does not keep pace with the (true) cost of living. My pension should be regulated the same. Why isn't it?
1322	9/09/2013	I simply want to express that I feel a 40% pay rise for our politicians at a time when most hard workers are struggling to get 2% is a national disgrace. I do not for one moment begrudge an MP a reasonable pay rise. They deserve it as most work hard, long hours to serve their constituencies, however 40-42% is too much. I was directly affected by the complete bodge up that the Queensland Health Payroll became and it hurts to see that skimmed over with nobody facing jail sentences, IBM being allowed to get away with their provision of a faulty system and then in the next breath, politicians awarding themselves a pay rise of such massive increase. It does not matter to us generally whether this is an overdue payrise. Please be sensible and give pay rises to our politicians in reasonable increments and do it honestly and openly so that there is some sort of accountability.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1323	9/09/2013	Having worked for the public service for over 20 years I have a superannuation pension approx. $300 a week. Centrelink is topping my pay up by $40 a week but to continue to get the $40 I have to volunteer 15 hours a week , I have [personal information] but apparently not bad enough for disability. My last rise from my superannuation in January was approximately $2.00 in line with the CPI they said. The politicians rise is unbelievable, how can they govern and see utilities etc. rise when they have no idea what living on a pension is like. I had to drop my Private Health Insurance because I can no longer afford it. I feel sorry for pensioners, newstart etc when politicians rises are much more than we are expected to live. It is too much, the country cannot afford this. I cannot believe Campbell Newman and other politicians can justify this or say "WE DON'T GIVE THE PAY RISES TO OURSELVES" come off the grass, as least Anna Bligh had the decency to see how disgusting these pay rises were. Some of our politician get more than the USA president my god, how can they sleep at night. Very comfortably obviously. Obviously, not happy Jan. I have not heard one person except politicians agree with this pay rise. Obviously, this is only another committee to say the pay rise is justified so Campbell Newman and his cronies can say "It wasn't us, they made us take it" I shouldn't have wasted this 5 minutes of my time for all the good it will do, I might need it later on. Thank you for listening
1324	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1325	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1326	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal should consider linking future salary increases to a level in the public sector which has a similar requirement/position description for qualifications, skills, and previous experience as identified by the Tribunal for The role of an MP.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1327	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1328	9/09/2013	Remuneration needs to be productivity based similar to effective private enterprise arrangements. Politicians should be payed a relatively low base salary with adequate expense allowances. They could then qualify for a bonus based on improvements in service delivery to the community and the attainment of specific financial goals. Likewise the superannuation arrangements need to be brought in line with private sector arrangements where superannuation is accumulated and the funds receive market returns. The funds are made available at the end of their working lives, like everyone else. Double-dipping where an ex-politician receives a generous pension payment but still works for the government in some role (such as diplomat or trade commissioner) should be outlawed immediately.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1329	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1330	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Queensland MPs should need to account for their expenses with receipts just like the people of Queensland.</li> <li>• Politicians of Queensland should not accept a payrise when they have blocked a payrise for hardworking public servants.</li> <li>• Payrise of 40%? The Tribunal and Queensland MPs should be on a performance based pay and limited to CPI increases, they are already rich off our backs.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1331	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1332	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1333	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1334	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1335	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1336	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1337	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1338	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1339	9/09/2013	My comments are simple. The salary for politicians should be considered less to a commercial or business type comparison but more to a not for profit management level. A range of Allowances are paid to politicians for items such as travel, advertising, local office costs, cars etc. Allowances such as cars, travel should be included as part of the "salary package" as it applies to normal PAYE taxpayers. Allowances should be strictly limited to be spent only on those items they are provided for. The public purse contribution made to "living in costs" such as meals etc in Parliment House needs to be reviewed and more market driven prices applied except for those politicians who are truly remote. Politicians "perks" provided to them after losing seats, or resigning, whatever the reason - once having left office there should be no ongoing "cheap train/air/theatre seats, cars or staff or office costs". Of they feel they incur such costs as a "must do" then claim it on tax like others have to do. There is often a mention of politicians roles being 'at risk" and thus compensation si needed due to the potential short term permanance of a parliament sitting period between elections in compariision to others having permanent roles. Well these days there is no permanance to be relied on anywhere, politicians have less accountability directly than virtually any CEO/Board or manager in a commercial or not for profit entity. In fact they align best with not for profit managers as previously noted. This suggestion may reduce the actual earn ing as may be currently had, but the reality is the current offering is too much, too easily misused and is not accounted for and it time that these jobs are recognised as being like all other jobs, only yours as long as you perform well and the public supports you. There is no basis for ongoing "perks and payments", as indeed it is unreasonable for the public purse to be raided to support such largest. I trust some consdieration t

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1340	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1341	9/09/2013	As well as the points made below, I believe that it is repulsive that our 'leaders' are allowing this sort of increase, whilst the rest of the population struggles on. When will we see some true leaders emerge who are willing to work for the people without expecting selfish reward? Truly a disgrace. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1342	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1343	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1344	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1345	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1346	9/09/2013	My suggestion is simple: all elected officials income to be based on the average income enjoyed by his/her constituents. This could be adjusted on a regular basis, say annually. Perks and benefits enjoyed by the official, while in office, would include those normally accepted at the present time, however would cease when leaving office. Retirement income, after serving a minimum of two terms, would be based on the same superannuation scheme enjoyed by the constituency. Simply put, elected officials would not be elevated above those who hired them to act as their representative.
1347	9/09/2013	politicians remuneration at the moment is probably in excess of the capabilities of them. Any form of increase should be in line with the CPI. For any other increase /bonus there should be KPI's that they should achieve and to make them accountable for their actions. These massive increases are wholly unjustified considering half these politicians rarely attend parliament and they are totally unaccountable for their actions which in the very near past have cost the taxpayer billions of dollars. On top of everything else their over generous tax payer funded pension should be reviewed ie not so generous and make it more like what we mere mortals receive at the age of 65, not from when they retire or are kicked out
1348	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1349	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1350	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>•</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1351	9/09/2013	When a MP or former M.P is found to be guilty of misconduct, or vested interests, or any criminal charges they must lose ALL their super. At the very least for minor infractions have it garnished by 25% for life to repay the public money wasted defending them. eg. Darcy-pedophilia, Slipper-taxi voucher rorting. Beattie, Bligh, Swarten-Qld health payroll system. Driscoll-fraud. Obeid-fraud/collusion. Match their(MP's) Pay-rise to all the rest of the public servants. (excluding D.G's and top bureaucrats as they are on contracts and are overpaid and totally unaccountable and add nothing to service delivery.) Remove politicians sense of entitlement, and bring out the big stick as a deterrent to snouts in troughs. Make them able to be sued when blatant lies are revealed (no-one will be worse off by deregulating the power industry) NO SUCCESS FEES, read as bribes.
1352	9/09/2013	I think that if they get a pay rise so should all the PEOPLE on a PENSION as we can not live on what we get. I would like to see the GOVERNMENT live on what we get a fortnight and pay all their bills i think it stinks what we get
1353	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1354	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1355	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1356	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1357	9/09/2013	Thank you for explaining their current wages and expenses. I agree with your notes that MPs should be paid an amount suitable for their role. However, the role of MP should be seen to a degree as a community service - helping our country - and not just have MPs doing the job for the money. Maybe expenses should be paid in accordance with the size of the electorate and should be justified - not just given out ad hoc. Expenses could include phone, travel, fuel, etc. However, air flights should be on the cheapest carrier not first or business class. There should be no private planes hired. Superannuation and tax should be the same as the average Qlder. One of my pet aversions is seeing MPs retiring on benefits. Once they cease to be an MP there should be no ongoing costs to Qld whether they are premier or MP or whatever. They should be treated as if they are in private industry - no longer working in the job, no entitlements. Similarly with super. It should be in their fund until they retire or turn 65 like the average Qlder. I base my opinion on the fact that there are many many Qlders doing wonderful deeds of kindness and community service with no remuneration and yet they are indirectly paying benefits to ex MPs through their tax. This is not fair at all. I especially think of Anna Bligh who is on $150,000 annually for the rest of her life yet no longer resides in Qld. This should be stopped. Once you leave the job, no entitlements whatsoever. Treat MPs the same as private industry employees. This will make Qlders respect their MPs far more than they do currently. Most MPs have separate incomes anyhow and don't rely upon their 'wage' to support them. We need to make MPs remuneration acceptable in the community. Please act very wisely in this matter. We need good sound judgements. Qlders need to respect their MPs and you have the power to help towards this happening.
1358	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1359	9/09/2013	I have worked for many years for politicians and I agree that there is a need for a pay increase. with the long work hours and the greater need for them to be in the community I fully support a payrise. I have seen how much stress and pressure their absence makes on their families and when you work out what they get paid to the amount of hours they do they are paid very little. Councillors get cars and fuel cards, Federal Members get these extras also, State politicians do not and that adds to the burden. I also believe that a State Member should have access to 3 staff, Councillors are entitled to 2 Federal get 4. There is enough work for a State Member to allow for 3 staff to keep up with the work that is needed to support them to be able to get out in their electorate and interact with the constituency. Thanks
1360	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1361	9/09/2013	I wish to submit my formal objection to the payrise for Queensland politicians on the following grounds: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1362	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1363	9/09/2013	I believe that in order to retain some form of relativity politicians remuneration should be set a multiple of the basic wage, the trick is what multiple to use. Because some, if not all, District Councils also relate their wages to that of the politicians, a politicians rise drifts through to council rates and impacts directly upon families living costs. A percentage increase is a vestige of the generous and wildly inflationary late 80's where percentage upon percentage creates an ever widening and unimaginable divide between ability, realism, and expectation from the public with no real understanding of why politicians, and others whose remuneration is linked to that of the politicians, should receive such massive percentage pay rises. As a fixed multiple of the basic wage such an approach may help to dissolve some of the present misunderstanding
1364	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1365	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1366	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1367	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1368	9/09/2013	Confidential
1369	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1370	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• As public servants, Queensland MPs should follow the pay increase offer of 2.2% each years for 3 years, standard across the whole government.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1371	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1372	9/09/2013	Salaries for Queensland MPs should not include allowances. Allowances for work within their electorate must be kept separate so that it is used for the intended purpose. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. Allowances and expenses must be separated from salaries. This is not a solely government issue. Across many industries, allowances are awarded in line with salaries but the expenditure must reflect the payment. The value of Queensland MPs must be assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. Salary increases for Queensland MPs should be directly linked to public sector wages which are in line with cost of living increases in Queensland. Most agencies within the public sector have accepted pay rise offers from the government at between 2.2 and 2.7%. I would like to see an increase of 3% for Queensland MPs to ensure inflation of their cost of living expenses are being met. The community in general opposes the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. Also there is significant opposition within the community to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. Queensland is a geographically large state and allowances must reflect the additional costs associated with travel within regional electorates. As MPs are using tax payers' money for these expenses, the details should be published on the Queensland Parliament website.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. Thank you for the opportunity to provide input into a fair pay rise for Queensland MPs.
1373	9/09/2013	• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary. I work for Queensland Health and in the past 'Option A' was added to our salaries as an easy way to bring overall remuneration in line with other states in an effort to attract staff to the region. My colleagues and I have been unfairly villified in the press as rorting the system on account of this. Your government is now attempting to removing or reducing the 'option A' allowance in line with this principle. If you believe this to be an appropriate course of action you must lead by example and apply the same principle to your own salaries. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>•</li> <li>• You are also public sector workers and as such your wage increases should be in line with those apportioned to the rest of us. Your work is no more valuable than ours.</li> <li>•</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>•</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1374	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1375	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1376	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1377	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1378	9/09/2013	I would like to submit my feelings on the pays that Queensland and former Queensland M P 'S get, when they are in the position, or, when they leave. It is fair enough that they might be awarded a higher pay than Mr &amp; Mrs Ordinary citizen, as they are in the position of helping to run the State. But the pay rate should not be that of Kings and Queens, as it is the ordinary taxpayer who pays their wage, and they are struggling on their own wages, whereas MP'S are living the life of luxury. I also think that once they leave the position, they should get the normal payout Mr and Mrs Ordinary citizen is entitled too, and that is it. It is the taxpayers money that keeps them going for the rest of their lives, and the taxpayers need to have that money better spent on infrastructure, education, hospitals, essential services. These MP'S may or may not have worked well in their positions, but when a job comes to an end, that is that. It is the same for a Prime Minister of the country, he has done the job he was elected to, but when he is voted out, or, resigns, that should be the end of it after he has been awarded the appropriate payout. Mr and Mrs Ordinary citizen do not keep getting a payout for the rest of their lives, and all the benefits that go along with the position they held. This has got to stop, and someone needs to put their hand up and say it's about time!
1379	9/09/2013	Parliamentarians are Public Servants employed by the people of Queensland and should be treated the same as a Public Servant employee ie wage increments and superannuation. Yes Parliamentarians should receive a good wage but it should be all inclusive, just as a normal employee would have their salary inclusive of all entitlements. Superannuation should be on the same scale and conditions as a normal Public Service employee. Just because a Parliamentarian is elected does not mean conditions of employment should be greatly different. Presently there are far too many perks and discrepancies and this is what puts the general public offside. Parliamentarians are elected on good faith and should treat their election with respect instead of - 'well that is my entitlement'.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1380	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>
1381	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1382	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1383	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1384	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1385	9/09/2013	1. While agreeing that MP's have a range of skills, experience and qualifications, it is important not to assume that such attributes are - of themselves - somehow in advance of those obtaining in the general electorate; thus while some members may have considerable experience and expertise, others may have considerably less. It is critically important therefore not to assume - as is often said - that members could earn significantly more in private practice: this is an unproven and unprovable assumption. For example, if a senior Minister chooses to describe his work experience prior to being elected simply as " farm labourer" the public is entitled to take that at face value. Indeed the 'value' that an MP contributes to the good of society at large is extremely difficult to determine, and care must be taken not to assume that simply being an MP is somehow of more value than, say, a school teacher or an A&amp;E surgeon - both of whom bring specific skill sets and tertiary training to their jobs. 2. The principle that the level of remuneration 'should be such that MPs are able to dedicate themselves to the role' is taken as given . However, statements describing the role as '24/7' ( and therefore needful of extra recompense) are easily made but rarely substantiated. In salaried professions it is accepted practice that ' the hours to be worked are those necessary to do the job' - thus while attendance at school,community,cultural and sporting functions is time consuming, it could not be described as 'onerous' and many would quibble that it is actually 'work'. Further in many professions 'additional' requirements such as Committee work ( in-house, or on outside, professional bodies) ) is regarded as a 'normal' part of the job and for MPs to argue that such Committee work is somehow an extra 'burden' deserving of extra recompense is unsustainable. 3. Leave taken by MPs should be available on an on-line Register in real time

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1386	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1387	9/09/2013	Nobody begrudges politicians appropriate wage rises. The current issue is the gross difference between what public servants were offered (2-3% on average) and what politicians are going to receive. Surely, it is possible to push through some kind of legislation, so that such a measure cannot go forward. It is hypocritical to argue that the state's economy cannot sustain even reasonable pay rises for teachers, police, fireman etc, yet it can sustain this huge increase to politicians pay. Furthermore, the thousands of public servants who lost their jobs, must feel this injustice even more stingingly. Sometimes it is more important to do what is seemingly most "right" for the good of the people, not just what is legislatively "right". Politicians need to step up and do the ethically right thing and legislate against this pay rise and the issue of retrospectivity, or all public servants' future pay rises should be linked to parliamentary pay rises, or the reverse situation could also be considered - link politicians pay rises to that of the public service.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1388	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1389	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1390	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1391	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1392	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1393	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1394	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1395	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1396	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1397	9/09/2013	Thank you for providing me with the opportunity to engage in this review process. As a worker I desire to see my MPs salary treated the same as mine, and should not be confused with resources made available to MP to service the community needs within their electorate. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a large and geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for all Queensland MPs, this will allow MPs to service their constituents to the best of their ability. In doing so however, as this is tax payers funding the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website, in detail. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Premier has promised an open and accountable Queensland Government, including that of MPs. Please ensure allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. Queensland politicians must live within the means of the State and not base their income on that of other jurisdictions. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. A 40% pay rise to Qld politicians is not acceptable. I do not believe the community accepts the need to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. I look forward to hearing from you and the outcome of this review.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1398	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1399	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1400	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1401	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1402	9/09/2013	Politicians salary increases should be tied to the wage rises that they approve for the public servants under their control.No more, no less.What gives them the right to pay themselves 42% increases &amp; at the same time offer public servants 2% to 3%.The public servants work for them &amp; us, the politicians work for us.We have had enough of "nose in the trough" politicians who are already paid more than adequate salaries &amp; allowances.The decision on political salaries should taken away from any political influence whatsoever.By legislating increases to public servant levels it creates a fair &amp; even playing field &amp; will ensure that both sectors receive increases that are within public expectations.
1403	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1404	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1405	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1406	9/09/2013	Any future salary increases should be limited to that granted to the public sector. The behaviour of the previous Labour Government and its parliamentary supporters during the Peter Slipper and Craig Thomson affairs showed that they were more interested in keeping their positions than in what was best for the country. To my mind this tends to highlight the fact that too high a salary attracts those more interested in the remuneration rather than a desire to work for the betterment of Australia.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1407	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1408	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1409	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1410	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1411	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1412	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1413	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1414	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1415	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1416	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1417	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. WHILE ALL POINTS IN THIS EMAIL ARE VALID, THIS IS THE ONE I FEEL MOST STRONGLY ABOUT.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1418	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1419	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1420	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1421	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1422	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1423	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1424	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1425	9/09/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Being an MP for the state of Qld should be considered an honour as those people who are elected to parliament have been given one of the greatest gifts that the people can give and that is their voice. That being said the people who serve should have adequate remuneration, but this has to be put in context (please see Q4) Direct salary including superannuation as a total fixed compensation package is fair for those who serve in an executive role, but this must be kept in line with community expectations who want value for their money, as ultimately we the taxpayers are those who must furnish this package. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. Regarding allowances, in the past these have been shown to be susceptible to rorting and some MPs have faced criminal sanctions, but allowances are a necessity for them to effectively perform their role. What I would ask the tribunal members to keep in mind is that an MP who represents a small inner city electorate does not require the same allowance as an MP who serves a western QLD electorate. Distance and representation should be a deciding factor as those of us who do live in a rural area still need access to our elected representatives even if this comes at a higher cost and has to be subsidized by the Govt. Obvious examples would be fuel and travel, resources to run an electoral office and people to staff them. Accommodation and meals should be capped at a certain amount per day so this is not abused. If an MP takes on more responsibility then of course the allowances and remuneration should reflect this, but if that extra responsibility is related to political party work then that should be funded by the party itself, not the QLD taxpayer. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? It is my belief that allowances should not and cannot be used to “top up” a salary. In my submission I would ask that all MPs allowances are subject to the scrutiny of the Auditor-General of Queensland at the end of each financial year, and all money spent must be accounted for with receipts or tax invoices. Any leftover allowance is placed back into general revenue. This would keep the spending transparent, stop MPs from topping up their own salaries and calling those people who use this practice to account. Unexplained spending equals theft from the public purse and there needs to be vigorous checks and balances in place that are stronger than what we have now, and a zero tolerance policy on those who abuse it. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? The practice of tying members pay to those of their federal counter parts needs to be reviewed. Govt is NOT a business and In reality as MPs serve their electorates, they are public servants and in my opinion the tribunal members must take this into consideration when making their decision. Therefore I would submit that MPs be paid along the same structure as the public service and have the same wage rises as the core public service agreement. 2.5% of an MPs base salary is a lot more than say an AO3 so it does keep it in perspective in the eyes of the public. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? I think that after hearing the present government say how much debt we have and how poor our state is, the decision that this tribunal ultimately makes must be in line with community expectations and standards. A 43% pay increase when some MPs are earning $150000 per annum is obscene, when 14,000 public sector workers have been retrenched and services have been cut

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		because we are told that the state cannot afford them. If that is true then the taxpayers cannot afford a pay rise of this magnitude, hence again I would urge to keep this next rise with the expectations and standards of the Qld public.
1426	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1427	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1428	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• It is essential that consideration of the Financial position of the State/Country be a factor when determining increases to Queensland MPs salaries.</li> <li>• When the Qld Government is seeking to minimize expenditure by staff cuts and outsourcing services it is not appropriate to place further pressure on available funds by a significant increase to Qld MPs salaries.</li> </ul>
1429	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1430	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1431	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1432	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1433	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1434	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1435	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1436	9/09/2013	The current MP's remuneration should be increased to a level to that of an Equivalent position in the public service i.e. a Director General, along with the same superannuation and leave entitlements. Along with their base remuneration there should be a range of allowances to run their electorate offices. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Postage Allowance for direct mail to constituents, Capped at $5,000 per month and refunded to the member on presentation of an Australia post account.</li> <li>2. Part time staff allowance, there should be an allowance for the MP to hire a part time staff member for a fixed number of hours per month for the role of helping the member engage with the community.</li> <li>3. Relief staff for when permanent staff go on leave.</li> <li>4. stationary and printing allowance, for direct communication to constituents, Capped at $7,500 per month and refunded to the member on presentation of invoices for services.</li> <li>5. a general funding allowance for the general running of the office.</li> </ol>
1437	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1438	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1439	9/09/2013	Their pay rates are not an issue with me as if they are doing their job diligently then they would spend a lot of time away from their family and friends. What concerns me are the allowances and freebies they are currently entitled to when they no longer are a parliamentarian of the people. They should retire on their own savings and superannuation and not become a parasite sponging off the taxpayer. Their pay rises should be equal to the public service pay rises.
1440	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1441	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1442	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1443	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Please, Mr Newman, be reasonable and think about how hard so many people are doing it now. It is grossly unfair to give politicians such a huge pay rise when we were talked into settling for 2.2%.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1444	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1445	9/09/2013	MP s wages may need to be looked at perhaps in a sense of performance. I beleive they should get no lifetime pensions as it a job of honour not off financial gain or else the greed factor comes in. Currently there seems to be a lot off corruption in a sense of big business and government lining their pockets out off self interest and financial gain. This is a public servant job and needs to be remembered. The general public is paying their wages and making similar work and lifelong sacrifices . Bring back transparency and regular auditing off governments. How can an mp spend $155k off our money on flying overseas, dining whores and gets no disciplinary action but instead runs for senate. Yet if the public puts a foot wrong we are swiftly dealt with. If it was to be a figure then I'm not sure as they have to many perks to add in it. They don't need to be chauffeured in expensive cars and the list goes on. They are and need to be reminded, a servant of the people.
1446	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1447	9/09/2013	Thank you for the opportunity to make submission relating to the review of former Members of Parliament entitlements. There are two points I wish to make and the first one is that any changes in the law, particularly proposals to downgrade any entitlements as they stood at the time of the members retirement is tantamount to retrospective legislation, and as such is not considered either "good" or "fair" legislation. The second point I wish to make is in relation to what might be considered the main entitlements for members who have served 7 years and been elected on 3 occasions. These particular entitlements I refer to are the travel entitlements of the member and his or her spouse with 1 return air fare per member and spouse per annum plus rail travel on Railways of Australia. I would respectfully suggest that surely these entitlements

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		are modest enough already.
1448	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1449	9/09/2013	All Allowances to be subjected to total transparency. Present situation open to abuse.            Big range on additional salary from $8217 to $143,499. Who decides on the amount of payment for the relevant roles.            In conclusion I am blown away by the salary, by so many allowances and if the super and pension are as generous it is time to say no to any further increase of remuneration in all forms for current and ex MP's. This government has sacked public servants to save money            We are constantly told "to live within our means" now it is time that this government showed that they are fair dinkum and took their own advice
1450	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1451	9/09/2013	I am of the opinion that the salaries of Queensland MPs should'nt include allowances. Allowances for work within electorates must be kept separate so that it is used appropriately. Accountability for how allowances are used needs to be increased, ensuring taxpayers' dollars are spent with their intended purpose. This applies to many industries as well as government, where allowances are awarded in line with salaries but the expenditure must reflect the payment. The value of Queensland MPs must be assessed against Queensland community standards and with no comparisons to politicians in other jurisdictions. Increases in salary for Queensland MPs should directly link to public sector wages, which are in line with cost of living increases in Queensland. Most agencies in the public sector have accepted pay rise offers at between 2.2 and 2.7%. I would prefer to see a pay increase of 3% for Queensland MPs, ensuring inflation of cost of living expenses is met. In general, the community opposes the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay, and a significant amount of opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. Geographically, Queensland is a very large state and allowances need to reflect additional costs travel within regional electorates incurs. MPs use tax payers' money for these expenses, and as such the details should be publicly available on the Queensland Parliament website. Any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate should be included. Thank you for the opportunity to give my input on a fair pay increase for Queensland MPs.
1452	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1453	9/09/2013	I submit that politicians in our state get paid enough! they have access to a lot of entitlements beyond their basic salaries. they get extra remuneration for being on committees, and no doubt other sinecures less known to the general public. they enter the job knowing what the pay rates are and also have entitlement to access their superannuation once they leave or get voted out of office even if they are below the age when most people can not draw their superannuation. Maybe the better idea might be for our politicians to lay out at election time what remuneration they want for the next term of their office. also in general most government employees have to fight tooth and nail to get a rise NOT so our politicians. and as for the furphy promulgated by our politicians along the lines of "oh we have an independent review system in place", well is it not a fact that along the line somewhere it will be stacked with you do me a favour I will do you a favour at a later date. though I expect you will strongly disagree with my last comment.
1454	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1455	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1456	9/09/2013	Mps should have a base rate similar to the present. Expenses should be accrued monthly, submitted on a detailed format to an appropriate department for scrutiny and approval and be reimbursed monthly with documentation attached to substantiate. The expenses should include accommodation, meals fuel entertaining, air fares and the like. If on a committee then a nominal allowance should be earned in addition to their salary when submitting the monthly expense account. This is a simple method of accountability and measure/short diary of an mp's activity in their area. Nothing more to add. Just make the whole process simple and easy for all to understand.
1457	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1458	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1459	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1460	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1461	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1462	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1463	9/09/2013	Politicians should receive the same cpi increase as what a regular employee would receive. I'm in public service and we get roughly 3.5% to 4% . I agree that they are entitled to a pay rise each year but it needs to be a smaller percentage.
1464	9/09/2013	Pay increase should be same as offered to all other public servants regardless of their position. Same across the board for every single tax payer funded position. Only the initial base pay should be different. So if level 8 is for example $200,000 when they first take on the job then the pay increase is 2.5% across the board, then the longer they are in the role obviously the more they will be paid with every yearly increase.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1465	9/09/2013	Pay Remuneration [personal information] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1466	9/09/2013	I suggest politicians be paid at a set rate of times age pension rate and future increments on a $ for $ basis (eg $1 pension = $1 politician) and also politician pensions be incremented at the same $ rate as age pensions. and politician pensions be claimed at same age as age pensions plus same restrictions on assets as age pensioners. Age pensioners have supported tis political system and government in most cases for all their lives working in mediocre jobs with no fringe benefits or super etc and do not see any good reason for politicians and their families to have such excess benefits when they have failed to address the problems besetting our society such as homelessness, the inability of the ordinary working person to buy their own home, the lack of care for the unfortunate in our society such as the mentally ill and disabled as well as their carers, the list goes on. Finally in this supposed 1st world country there should be no homeless or disadvantaged human being. or working person who cannot afford health benefits such as dental. and the waiting list for treatment at public hospitals thus making this country a 2 class system in these respects. I submit that politicians should strive to address these shortcomings and if they cannot they should not receive any increments in remuneration until all these failings are dealt with and no longer exist. in fact any govt which fails to live up to their electoral promises should have their remuneration reduced, as they would be receiving payment for something which they cannot do therefore being overpaid. Out here in the real world people do not get paid to underperform and in fact they get sacked forthwith as should politicians if their electors request it via a petition. After all are they not there for the altruistic motive of serving their constituents and their country and not just to feather their own nests?? trusting that you find my submission reasonable and will consider it with favour

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1467	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1468	9/09/2013	My thought has always been that if we want intelligent, thoughtful, responsible people, with the knowledge of how to balance money (which is not totally theirs with which to play around), we need to pay them the remuneration which encourages people to take on the job the majority of the community thinks is waste of the community's time.
1469	9/09/2013	Number of issues. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. There must be some form of performance assessment annually for the political - not just an election every 3yrs. For example how many Bills have they submitted, How often do they attend the house, how reflective is their representation of their constituents wishes. This can be achieve by use of today's electronic media - constituents can advise MPs on how they wish them to vote on issues.</li> <li>2. Miscellaneous Allowance" of $32,355 per year is ridiculous - what for must be specific.</li> <li>3. Salary must reflect the role. Premier is currently paid more than the US President. who has the greater responsibility.</li> <li>4. Entitlements have to go. Are now completely over the top. Reasonable expense are fair: phone, travel, office/staff cost. If they have to travel for business they should have to get to the airport by taxi not have a plane pick them up at their property in central Qld as per the Deputy Premier - rort.</li> <li>5. Salary scale should increase by percentages $x for MP, $x plus 10% for a minister etc.</li> <li>6. All expenses must be submitted and must be vetted and signed off by an independent accounting/authority firm. As per the corporate sector.</li> <li>7. The idea that a Position Description cannot be drafted is BS. One should be developed and implemented. If you can't do it I'll gladly engage somebody on your behalf who can.</li> <li>8. All MP's benefits should end with their departure: no free travel passes, superannuation should be in line with the average</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Australian Worker 9% of their salary goes into a super fund and they can only get it once they reach retirement age. None of this pension for life [inappropriate content] after only serving 2-3 terms. 9. Any breaches of the public trust by an MP, government official should carry a sentence double that handed down by a magistrate, judge or jury. Dishonest conduct by a government employee is unacceptable.
1470	9/09/2013	I think it is only fair that all workers, ALL workers, have their pay increases linked to the CPI. We are not a dictatorship, we should not suffer some workers taking advantage. In the instance of 'Public Servants (this title should be said slowly and the meaning understood)also get many extras, during office and well beyond that usual workers do not. Enough is enough..
1471	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1472	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1473	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1474	9/09/2013	Over the years I have had a lot to do with EBAs and the question of percentages given is always touchy. It is simple as to how much should be given, it boils down to the money value not percentages as those on larger wages will always get more and more over time. If a percentage is given then it should be on a given base rate if a politician or a labourer then if one believes they are worth more than they have to prove it one way or another. The bottom line is to give one citizen of Australia let's say 4% and another 40% is totally wrong. We all have expenses that increase if you decide to live an expensive lifestyle that is your decision and any more increase in living costs is your choice. Thanks.
1475	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1476	9/09/2013	I believe that any increase in the earnings and allowances of Qld State politicians should be restricted to CPI increases also provided to State Public Servants. The massive in increases proposed this year are ludicrous given the Government's efforts to reduce spending and public servant positions!
1477	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The ordinary people of this state are ADAMANTLY against any dramatic pay rises for politicians, a fact of which I'm sure you are all well aware, and come the next election, this will be a KEY ISSUE.</li> <li>• To wilfully ignore the wishes of the electorate and grant large payrises not linked to public sector wages is simply an abandonment of your promise to faithfully represent the people of Queensland.</li> <li>• Would you be willing to sit down face to face with the families of the hard working and loyal public servants you have sacked in order to explain to them why you deserve such exorbitant rates of pay? Do you think they never worked unpaid overtime or weekends?</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. In fact, the OPPOSITE!!! Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. You of all</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		governments should know this, or be prepared to be held to account at the 2015 election. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• If I worked in Sydney I would be paid around 10% more for doing exactly the same job. This Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. Future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>
1478	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Politicians should receive the same percentage increase as all other government employees.</li> </ul>
1479	9/09/2013	I do not believe that the rate of 42% is an appropriate scale of remuneration and is an insult to all tax paying Queenslanders. I strongly believe that they should be made to adhere to the scale available to all other Public Servants. That is 2.35%
1480	9/09/2013	I think 42% pay rise is a joke I think they should get 2.35% just like the rest of us public servants. I think they are over payed already. I would like them to try and live of my wage
1481	9/09/2013	I strongly object to 42% pay rise to polititons. I think the same rule they use for public servants should be use on there salaries fair pay rise for all same rule wherether you a pollie or public servant.
1482	9/09/2013	Confidential

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1483	9/09/2013	I do believe that Queensland politician should be paid the same pay scale increase of 2.35%  And NOT a pay increase of 42%
1484	9/09/2013	Queensland MPs pay increase should be limited. And be on par with the Queensland Public Service. No more no less  A 42% increase is obscene and totally out of touch with public expectation
1485	9/09/2013	I do not believe that a payrise of 42% is in the best interest of QLD and is an outrage to All Queenslanders.  The pay rise should be in line with the pay rise offered to public servants and capped at 2.35%
1486	9/09/2013	I do not believe that this pay rise is necessary or justified. I believe that pay rises for state government MP's should be in line with public servant pay rises. If 2.2% is all the government can apparently afford for their "valued" employees, then 2.2% should be all they can afford for their MP's.
1487	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1488	9/09/2013	I wish to suggest that all Queensland MP salary remuneration be based on the taxable income of all Queensland tax payers reported to the ATO for the previous financial year. This removes any tie to the Federal MP payments and can vary based on the performance of Queensland tax payers. There would only be one change in rates per year determined by the ATO figures. Allowances would continue to be calculated separately, but I would like to see justification for all allowance expenditure. I do not know the relevant ATO figures for a fair salary percentage, but it could be similar to:- Premier 95%, Deputy 90%, Cabinet/Opposition Leader/Speaker 85%, Committee chair 80% and Back Bencher 75%. Former MP remuneration could also be based as a percentage of the current calculated rate for their final position and the number of years service. This could replace the current superannuation scheme and provide an ongoing pension for life. Eg:- 10% x n years. Thank you for the opportunity to give my thoughts on this serious question.
1489	9/09/2013	I agree that Politicians should get a good pay as they have a number of expenses to attend to. I do not agree with the rises they get, as it usually is overboard. Sometimes they money is bigger than the lowest paid worker in society. I would like to see their pay rises attached to the general worker pay rises. If the general worker get a pay rise of 2% then politicians should get a similar rise. They would not get a rise unless the general workers also got a pay rise. As for the gold cards they could be given but for a period of only 3 years after they leave parliament. This business that they get it for life is being too generous and should be stopped immediately.
1490	9/09/2013	MP pay rises should be in line with the public sector/service that implement their policies. So, when the next EBA commences, the result automatically confers the same percentage increase to the parliamentarians. Also, this means further reforms - consolidating the awards into one, rather than the public service vs public sector. Standard hours per day would also need to be aligned (7:15 vs 7:36).
1491	9/09/2013	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. An appropriate remuneration structure should be a pre determined salary with superannuation. Allowances for expenses is open to rort and should not be included.</li> <li>2. Anything that comes out of the MPs pocket in the course of their duties should be paid for by the taxpayer.</li> <li>3. By not pre paying an allowance. Making MP's use a corporate card, that requires justification of expenditure or applying to a finance committee for larger amounts.</li> <li>4. Experience and Qualifications. The longer someone is a Member, the more remuneration could be. If these people do not perform satisfactorily they get voted out. People do this job as a service to their community. They should be recompensed. However, the figures that are being quoted are way over the top for community standards. Index the functions to the role of mid to upper management in a private company and also factor in time off, other benefits and the fact that most can run their own firms, which means it can not be considered a full time job.</li> <li>5. Community Standards. In a time when the public is being asked to tighten their belts, the public service is being descimated and programs being cut all in the name of fiscal responsibility I find it the height of arrogance and folly that any politician is entertaining the idea of presenting themselves a pay rise. In the public and private sectors we all have to prove productivity gains or acheive higher qualifications to get pay rises. Politicians do not have to meet these requirements.</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1492	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1493	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1494	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1495	9/09/2013	It is unacceptable in todays society that these already priviledged few are able to arrange their own levels of remuneration.It should be based on similar roles where possible in the private sector and lets not forget the inexperience that some have in certain portfolios.The issue of payment after losing office should also be revoked - their blatant arrogance and misuse of the public purse is disgusting and should not be tolerated any longer.I have no doubt some are driven individuals with morals and integrity trying to improve our communities but the reality is we all work hard for our money and will never see salary increases of the magnitude MP's hand themselves. WYou can't have the fox in charge of the hen house - its that simple.If they are voted out it is because they haven't performed.In other words they have been sacked by the people who effectively are their employer.If you or I get sacked there is severance pay and that is it to continue to pay theses individuals for services provided is outrageous and greedy. They have already been paid why do we continue to pay them? Because they configured it that way - there needs to be an independent umpire at all times to oversee there salaries,bonuses &amp; benefits. The money pit is bottomless and nothing is off the agenda - there is not enough boundaries for MP's in our system and so we go round and around, vote them in, vote them out.There must be a better way forward from here where MP's must have certain skills to enter parliment.Our community deserves and expects more for less from these individuals - a big ask but they have pushed the boundaries of their existence and have taken too much for too long. They should be ashamed of themselves.Public opinion is everything to them but only when it will benefit them.Have an overseeing body, independent of all parties,review all salaries immediately,end all post seat payments,no superannuation to be accessed until retirement age. Lets end the abuse of our taxes forever.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1496	9/09/2013	9TH Sept 2013  Re: Queensland politicians remuneration:- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a) linked to basic wage, public service scale, or age pension</li> <li>b) postage, phone, internet based on position in council and length of time served</li> <li>c) family members won't receive funded travel when travelling with councillor</li> <li>d) receive a bonus for election promise implementations</li> <li>e) 6 years minimum served before receiving more than the basic wage as in (a)</li> <li>f) remuneration suspended during investigations into suspect activities</li> <li>g) same employer contribution as ordinary worker. Increases from voluntary contributions</li> <li>h) Ex-Mayors, Ex-Lord Mayors (ex-PM's) don't receive perks (stationery, chauffeur, travel, office rental)</li> <li>i) advisory position in council remunerated without any perks such as (h)</li> <li>j) remuneration rises to be approved by impartial board of citizens</li> <li>k) remuneration, bonuses and allowances reviews undertaken every 3 years</li> <li>l) audits into spending conducted every year by independent review board</li> <li>m) establish a 'one-point' financial department for payment of accounts ie., phone, mobile, internet. Accounts scrutinised regularly to determine areas of possible savings, ie., bundling phone and mobile and internet, Queensland wide provider of services.</li> <li>n) petrol allowance tied to length of time in service and locality. Excess expenditure be met by the politicians</li> <li>o) bonus paid if plans are adopted that advances climate protection, wildlife and plant protection, rivers and oceans protection, stopping foreign ownership of our land and rivers (In 2012 foreign ownership of Australian land was double the size of Victoria;11% of rivers/waterways were owned by foreigners)</li> <li>p) bonuses when supporting Australian small businesses, Australian farmers (instead of cheap, disease ridden foreign imports) if that plan is successfully implemented</li> <li>q) supporting radical causes against Australia's safety will result in immediate suspension, investigation and loss of, and no legal help</li> <li>r) anyone wishing to enter Australian politics must have a basic understanding of our culture and background and MUST BE PREPARED TO SUPPORT the Australian way of culture and background over their own culture and background. Failure to accept this will preclude them from gaining a place in Australian politics</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1497	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1498	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1499	9/09/2013	The only worthwhile enactment the Bligh Government made was to freeze MPs salaries.MPs have not earned 4.2%let alone 42% increase!! Look at Scott Driscoll,a blight on the LNP.MPs should have to request any bonus from their electorate,and ministers should be judged by their work performance,not have their salaries tied to Fed MPs. Look at Paul Lucas- he messed hospital workers payroll,and put our hospitals into jepardy! Before that he allowed the defective and misleading Learner Driver Kit be be foisted onto our young drivers - atlast it has been abolished,but only after thousands of our learners have given up trying to drive manuals and changed to automatic gearshift. The only good aspect of it was the logbook - the steering and clutch control advice was rubbish! He and his fellow ministers may say they are entitled to retrospective remuneration,but I bet the people of QLD,who are essentially their employers,would disagree. Try asking on the Yahoo facepage and see the proportion of readers who would disagree! I haven't seen many pressing reasons why current MPs should get a payrise either. The super rich Public Servants who have presided over major blunders still have their jobs, while many of the innocent workers have been 'made redundant'or sacked.
1500	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1501	9/09/2013	The current Qld MLAs all ran for parliament in 2013 ased on the remuneration then on offer for Qld MLAs. Therefore this should be the base salary and allowance level for any future decisions by the Remuneration tribunal on MLA wages and allowances. Remuneration for Qld State politicians should be directly linked to the average percentage wage increases of those who work for them i.e. the Qld Public Servants who administer and operate the legislation passed by the MLAs. This would demonstrate equity across the whole of Government, and mean tht any efficiencies recognised by increased wages within the Public Service would also be passed on to the MLAs. Another matter that needs to be addresssed is the issue of additional remuneration received by MLAs between 1 July 2013 and when the Qld Premier set up the Remuneration Tribunal to review their wages. Equity again needs to be applied so that either 1/ former MLAs are able to apply for the back pay or 2/ the additiona 6 - odd weeks of increased pay by existing MLAs should be recovered. Additionally, all LML allowances should be hypothecated for specific uses, and not able to be used as salary top ups. Such use of public monies should also be put under public scrutiny on a public register similar to the new laws on Union expenditures - the money is ultimately the publics' and they have a right to know the use it is put to. Thank you for your consideration of my views.
1502	9/09/2013	I feel: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. It is hypocritical of politicians to be cutting jobs and wages of hard working, necessary staff and then continue to line their own pockets.</li> </ul> Thanks for your time.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1503	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1504	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1505	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1506	9/09/2013	To ensure fairness for public servants, Queensland MPs must have future salary increases linked to public sector wage increases.
1507	9/09/2013	I feel they should not receive a large pay increase. They already receive a large salary and should not get more than 2% increase if any. They are already out of touch with the general public and could not possibly understand the financial pressures we are under. Many of us do valuable work, eg nurses, but we do not receive large pay increases. Why should they be any different?
1508	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1509	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1510	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1511	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1512	9/09/2013	Think it is important to incorporate an Efficiency Dividend into the salary setting. Given the current deficit increases to be limited to CPI until the deficit has been cleared. At this stage increases of 10% would be appropriate.
1513	9/09/2013	Just a quick suggestion on the pay of politicians – as per the request in today's Courier Mail I feel the current system of remuneration should be changed to bring it more in line with what happens in the private sector which is what politicians are always comparing themselves with. The current system is at fault as: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Politicians receive their full salary no matter what the result of their decisions or actions.</li> <li>2. Often Politicians decisions are made out of political expediency or political advantage and the good of those being governed is not taken into account.</li> <li>3. Other than the ballot box there are no consequences for Politicians who mislead and lie to achieve or hold office</li> <li>4. There are virtually no consequences for politicians who rort their expenses, travel allowances etc</li> </ol> My suggestion for a change to the way Politicians are remunerated is simple: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Their current package is abolished</li> <li>2. They receive a base salary that is significantly lower than the current level and hugely lower than the now scrapped 42% pay rise.</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		3. They receive a bonus that is based on how they have performed. For example if during the election process they promised to create 300,000 jobs in their term in office and they achieved this (excluding public service jobs) then they would receive a bonus. If on the other hand they fell short no bonus would be payable. 4. If during their term a financial disaster arose such as the health department payroll scandal there would be a cancelling of bonus for all involved in the decision and process leading to the disaster. 5. If they were shown to have knowingly lied during the election process or at any time during their term in office and it had negative consequences for the electorate then this would be sufficient for bonus cancelling. 6. If it could be demonstrated that action was taken in parliament that was detrimental to the electorate but of political advantage to the perpetrator then this also would negate the bonus. 7. If the financial health of the state at the end of the term was in excess (in terms of budget surplus, GDP, unemployment numbers, social good etc) of what was promised then there would be a sliding scale of over bonus payments. 8. If any politician was found rorting his or her expenses or any other financial skulduggery then naturally their bonus would be cancelled no matter how good the other bonus factors had been.
1514	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1515	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1516	9/09/2013	Below is a copy of e mail sent to my local member [personal information]. In my opinion they over paid for the work they perform and if anything they should be receiving pay cuts reduced perks. To date the reply's I have received from my local member (several e mails) have not been straight answers regarding funding of Rural Fires in Qld reply's are double speak load of rubbish a waste of space and time. They are just like public servants and any payment should be linked to what public servants receives or the CIP. I am sick of Pollies saying they could earn more in private sector well they are the one that have chosen this profession. [personal information] To: [personal information] Subject: Your Pay [personal information] I was very disappointed in the states economic climate the sacking of public servants and they way they have to fight just for the basic CPI increase is appalling. To see in the press you and your colleagues have been awarded a 41% pay increase by the independent body. I have a couple of questions directed to you. Are you going to accept the increase in pay ? Are you going apposes this increase ? Are you going vote and support for change of legislation ? Who is this independent body ? Make the names and contact details of the body public ? It really leads to the question why do we really need a state government other then the constitution. Fire, Health, Education and Police could all be controlled by the federal government and save billions this would eliminate duplication of politicians and childish and unacceptable behaviour of late. I look forward to your reply

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1517	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1518	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1519	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• It is clear to me that in the absence of media scrutiny and public outcry, the MP's would have gone ahead with the payrise of 40% whilst simultaneously taking extreme measures to restrict QLD Government employees pay increases to 2.2%. This is clearly a case of one rule for them (who stand to gain) and one rule for the rest who will suffer drop in pay. I don't see how anyone can seek to justify this.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1520	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1521	9/09/2013	I read the article in the courier mail this morning and saw you were seeking additional feedback. I am 43 - I have 2 qualifications and I get paid $54,000 per year. A politician's remuneration should be high enough that it compensates the demands on their family time etc. perhaps it could be performance related with key performance indicators factored in. For example - the 2 MP's currently in disgrace should not only be given no payrise they should be giving their remuneration back. If I had a photo of my [inappropriate content] online I would be terminated at once and have no salary. Not enough is done when a politician doesn't meet there KPI's - take Chris Thomson for example. If private enterprise is offering more salary for elected representatives then let them serve their term out then leave and pursue other positions. I think the current salary structure is adequate. They should receive CPI increases and could perhaps receive an annual bonus incentive based on politicians meeting there KPI's. Key Performance Indicators could be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- state debt</li> <li>- attendance at parliament</li> <li>- employment rates</li> <li>- surveys of their local community.</li> <li>- good stewardship of public funds.</li> </ul> Finally 3 members I observe - Andrew Powell, jarrod Bleije and Peter Wellington Would be members I believe who deserve a bonus. However why reward everyone when not all members represent their electorate and state with decency expected by their electorate. If KPI's work in private enterprise could it be transferred to the public sector. I am happy to discuss this further as 2000 words is not enough space.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1522	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1523	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1524	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• I am disgusted with the State Government for awarding themselves a pay rise. The Politicians have not proven that their work effectiveness is any better than the the prevoius government. The LNP has only been in for twelve months, they have provided no evidence of their increase in productivity.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1525	9/09/2013	PAYRISES SHOULD BE THE SAME AS WHAT NORMAL PUBLIC SERVANTS ARE OFFERED

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1526	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• MP's salaries should be linked to pay rises for the State Public Service in that that they get the same amount of increase at the same time as the public service and backdated to the same date where applicable.</li> <li>• In addition to the above, like the State Public Service, MP's should also meet clear, written key performance criteria before they get their pay rise eg keeping unemployment below 5%, growing the State's GDP by 2% over the life of the Agreement.</li> <li>• The size of the MP's salary should be relative to the job they do. Currently those State government employees who daily put their lives on the line (eg police officers, ambulance workers, fire fighters) get paid a pittance compared to MP's who sit safely in offices all day. A base salary for an MP should be roughly equivalent of a director of a medium sized firm and not the CEO of a large firm</li> <li>• MP's perks (eg travel concessions) should not continue past their time in office. They are adequately compensated during their employment and no other profession has this luxury.</li> <li>• MP's who receive an allowance for overseas travel must provide a comprehensive, plain english report on the purpose and outcomes of their trip to parliament within 30 sitting days of their return. The report should have no "Commerical in Confidence" restrictions either as it is the taxpayers money they are spending and they need to account for it. In addition any MP who retires/resigns within 6 months of taking an overseas funded trip should have the cost of that trip deducted from their payout unless it is due to health reasons.</li> </ul> <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1527	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1528	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1529	9/09/2013	My Goodness! U need a tribunal!?! Its a piece of cake - limit polies wage increase to the CPI 3% then beat em down to 2% like us. Revoke obscene super payments of $150,00 per year for life from age 24. Limit them to 9% after 60 like us. Make their allowances only for receipts obtained like us and not a second income. Stop them using taxpayer money for election campaigns - make em earn their coin like us. I want a fairdinkum reply to each point above - no BS please.
1530	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1531	9/09/2013	I believe that an MP's remuneration should be provided under the same rules/regulations as those provided under the Fair Work Act for other Public Servants - e.g. teachers, police, etc. Salary should be just that - a Salary, all inclusive. This should be equivalent to other top-ranking Public service providers. Allowances should be for directly provable, work-related expenses only, e.g. representation. Other expenses, like travel, should be based on a Per Diem system, with amounts paid upon proof (i.e. an expense reimbursement). This way, expenses are capped and directly correlated to services performed - just like for the rest of the employed. Politicians should be employed under the same remuneration guidelines as the general population - with the 'Employer' being classified as (broadly) 'The People'.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1532	9/09/2013	Re: Submission to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Firstly, may I congratulate the Queensland Government for setting up this tribunal. The issue of politicians' salary and entitlements is an emotive one for the community and having an independent body to investigate and set more appropriate remuneration that fits in the modern world of the 21st Century is long overdue. I have chosen to address the questions raised in your discussion document as well as making an introductory statement. Introduction: I have a personal interest in this issue as I have in the past consulted to local governments on developing appropriate remuneration packages for Councillors so that it is seen at "arms-length" from the Councillors themselves and I strongly support this principle. When I used to do this work, initially I favoured a link to the Federal Remuneration Tribunal, using that as a basis to set local government political remuneration where such politicians were full time (mainly in Queensland). However, I became more and more concerned about the Federal process as it seemed to be out of step with community sentiment and I now believe strongly that the whole basis of remuneration needs to be challenged and reassessed. As an example, when the basis for politician's remuneration was first set up (particularly their generous superannuation entitlements), it was true to say that their uncertain job security warranted a more generous package at a time when most Australian's enjoyed long term job security. That world has now entirely disappeared with most Australians facing major changes in jobs and careers and indeed having to create portfolios of work over their working life. Furthermore, the Federal Tribunal has never considered freezing salaries and automatically adopts the principle that there should be increases based on CPI or other factors. This smacks of a lazy approach at a time when businesses expected their workers to deliver something in return for a pay increase. In a time of economic difficulties post the global financial crisis, a lot of small business owners have not increased their own personal remuneration and maintained long periods of stable remuneration so as to keep their costs to their consumers down. This discipline does not appear to be ever applied when considering politician's pay. There are a number of principles that I believe are critical to ensuring that the remuneration for our Queensland members of parliament is appropriate and will gain community support: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Recognising the value of the role (your discussion paper is spot on here as it is a difficult role to quantify and place a market value on);</li> <li>• Building trust in the remuneration system; (it is in nobody's interest to have the remuneration questioned every time there is a change in pay);</li> <li>• A fair and transparent system that is open to scrutiny;</li> <li>• A system that is straightforward and easy to manage;</li> <li>• A system that is flexible and can be changed in the future without major difficulty (therefore ensure that base level entitlements are slit from others);</li> <li>• A system that does not need to be redesigned regularly and has stability for a longer term (although this seems incompatible with</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the point before, it is about the design of the elements that I am referring to here, whereas the above point is about having the capacity to alter the quantum of individual elements when needed). Question One: In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer My preference is to design a system that has a separate remuneration package from other expense allowances that I see are part of the tools needed to perform the function. In designing the base salary there are two options – one is to create a tiered salary structure with MLAs on the bottom tier, Committee members and whips on a second tier; Leader of the Opposition, Ministers and the Speaker on a third tier and the Premier on a fourth tier based on some assessed notion of work level; the other is to have a base salary for all MLAs with different salary allowances paid for specific roles. I have no views as to which is preferable, other than to make it as simple as possible and defensible. In terms of a remuneration package, I would suggest that the following be included: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Base salary;</li> <li>• Superannuation (with a system that is much closer to community norms);</li> <li>• Car for full personal use and managed as per the ATO rules; and</li> <li>• Salary sacrifice to enable packaging of other benefits such as school fees etc. with clear rules as to how this operates including no additional cost to the employer.</li> </ul> In terms of the other allowances, I would prefer to see these as tools of the trade and managed separately: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Access to the government driver pool based on whatever rules are appropriate;</li> <li>• Provision of a mobile phone with all calls being paid;</li> <li>• Payment of a home phone rental and a percentage of all home calls;</li> <li>• Provision of appropriate digital tools such as ipads and computers and all communications being paid;</li> <li>• Provision of an electoral office and staff according to a formula relating to electorate size (both geographic and number of constituents);</li> <li>• Provision of a budget to run the electoral office which is managed according to standard budget principles and is also based on a formula relating to electorate size (both geographic and number of constituents) ;</li> <li>• Provision of a budget for travel and accommodation with individual expenses managed as per Tribunal rules; and</li> <li>• Provision of a modest budget to cover the quite onerous social obligations of an MP which does not need to be accounted for with separate dockets as per the travel allowances (e.g. buying raffle tickets at the local functions etc.)</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		In addition to the separation of remuneration from the resources needed for an MP to do his or her job, the Premier of the State should be entitled to the provision of an office, one staff member and a car and driver plus a budget for management of the office and travel for a limited period (maximum of 1 year?) after his or her retirement from that role, based on the need to follow through on many aspects of the responsibility of being Premier. My reason for arguing to separate out the current provision of electoral allowances from remuneration is to provide better accountability and clarity to the public as to what we are remunerating MPs and what we provide in the way of support to enable them to do the job for which they were elected. I recognize that the downside is some loss of flexibility. Question Two: If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples As listed above, I believe the majority of expenses should be covered under an approved budget as part of the performance of the role. Question Three: How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? By separating these out as quite different issues. It does not make sense to give MPs an electoral allowance to cover costs of office and then build in a perverse incentive for them to be able to scrimp on this and pocket the difference which is the end result of linking this to personal remuneration. The current electoral allowance is based on a formula that takes into account the very real differences in work expenses that MPs in different parts of the State have to carry. It should be quite reasonable for a sensible budget to be determined and for internal benchmarks to be established that can help an individual MP to argue a case for a budget increase if there is clear evidence that the budget is in fact inadequate. Question Four: What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? That is a much harder question to answer really well. Obvious factors are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The “on call” nature of the role as constituents expect ready access to their local member seven days a week;</li> <li>• The different levels of responsibility and decision making attached to different roles – it is less onerous to be a backbencher than to be a Minister; and</li> <li>• The diversity of roles required (as mentioned in your discussion paper).</li> </ul> Benchmarks probably should be drawn from the public sector rather than from the private sector with Ministers and above possibly

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		aligned to some point in the executive managers (SES scales) and other roles to senior management functions. Other benchmarks might include larger NGOs managerial positions. It has always been a tradition for the Ministers to be paid at a lower level than their DGS and this should be maintained. More generally, there should be some comparative assessment against the median wages paid across the board in Queensland with some notional setting of a relevant quartile that could guide decision making on base salary. I would recommend not using the top quartile but perhaps the lower part of the third quartile as a possibility. Underpinning this needs to be a recognition that people go into public office for many different reasons and remuneration is not necessarily the primary motivation. It is neither necessary nor desirable to over pay our politicians, being cautious is a better option. Question Five: Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Decisions on how the annual cycle of review is determined and whether it is desirable to review annually or longer and the implications of this should be part of the tribunal deliberations as well as the general economic environment. Thank you for the opportunity to put a submission to you. I would be happy to provide any more information if this could be of help or elaborate on any of my answers to your questions.
1533	9/09/2013	As MPs are our leaders and should lead by example remuneration increases should be no more then awarded to the general public service in enterprise bargaining agreements. The current remuneration should be tied to the appropriate level in the Qld Public Service not to federal MPs rates.
1534	9/09/2013	Wages are to high and to lower wages it must start at the top so therefore I am against this wage rise
1535	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1536	9/09/2013	I submit that politicians pay rises be linked to the public service pay rises. They are most definitely not work the money we pay them and I'm sick of my tax dollar funding 'welfare politicians' I'd rather it went to a struggling single mother.
1537	9/09/2013	The remuneration for MPs should be linked to public service pay rises. If public servants are only worth a 2% pay offer, then those making that decision should be worth no more than that. Former MPs should not be eligible for increases in remuneration over the amount that they were eligible for during their last term in office.
1538	9/09/2013	I believe all government salaries should be subject to Members attaining set KPI's reviewed every 6 months. Thats twice a year members salaries are reviewed against them achieving 6 set KPI's to asses what they have done for their employers the Tax payers. There would be a number of members that no one would know what they do or what they get paid for. 12 KPI's is one set task a month they must complete.How difficult does it have to be. !! THEY SHOULD BE ASSESSED BY AN INDEPENDENT BODY, not one paid by the Government.THANK YOU FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION OF THE ABOVE AND WILL WAIT AND SEE HOW INDEPENDENT YOUR REVIEW IS.
1539	9/09/2013	Thank you for the opportunity of presenting a submission to your tribunal. I have read the discussion relative discussion paper and, using your numbered questions, submit as follows; 1. I believe an appropriate remuneration should include; a/ a fixed salary incorporating superannuation . The salary should be fixed for the term of the government i.e. until the next election and should be set by the tribunal taking into account CPI and productivity improvements only. These are the major considerations in all other salary and wage reviews and MPs should be no different. b/ Superannuation should be along the same lines as those enjoyed by the general public and should be fully funded i.e. contribution by Govt. should be restricted to that required by legislation (9.25%) and if the MP wishes they may then top up their super by way of salary sacrifice. This non- contributory superannuation must stop. It was designed in an era when politicians lacked job security. No one in the community or in public service enjoys job security any longer. Access to super should be along the same lines as the general public i.e. at a certain age (generally 60) and on retirement. 2. Expense allowances are appropriate however must be budgeted and tied to the actual expense. Allowances should extend to funding their office (limited agreed staff, office expenses like stationery, postage, telephone etc.), Motor vehicle (one only and for their use only NOT family members) travel and accommodation for REGIONAL MPs. Overseas and even interstate travel by MPs and their staff and family's needs to be controlled. No longer should there be a right for them to travel so many times during their

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		terms of office. As for anyone else, such travel should be either strictly and very transparently government business, or paid for by the MP. It is the “sneaky” little perks of office and stretching of the truth that so rubs the wrong way and gives the poor perception of politicians evident today. More transparency and control is required. 3. Allowances should be budgeted at the beginning of each year and outgoings then controlled by the Premiers office, or similarly high office, with full explanation of overspending required by each MP under threat of such overspending being payable by them personally. And this needs to be seen to be done not just given lip service. 4. I would have difficulty coming up with benchmarks and would leave this to the tribunal. A combination of levels of pay enjoyed by other state MP’s (peer comparison) , public service pay scales (comparative duties) , a bit of common sense and an understanding of what the people of Queensland may be prepared to pay would be a start. 5. a/Transparency is important.  b/ superannuation with its apparent lack of contribution by MPs and their access to it before retirement age is an ongoing concern and needs to be better explained and fully funded.  c/ access by MPs whether they be back benchers, ministers or Premiers to the perks of office after they have left needs to be curbed or removed altogether. They are all well remunerated while in office, they should not continue to be a drain on the public purse after they leave, sometimes in not such good circumstances. Thank you again for this opportunity
1540	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers’ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians’ pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1541	9/09/2013	I am a 56yo male Toowoomba resident. A small article in today's Courier Mail newspaper alerted me to the remuneration tribunal email relative to State MP salaries and the need to appreciate community expectation. It is a longstanding belief of mine that in the best interests of the state's workforce, MP (both State and Federal) salaries should be a set multiple of the basic wage. The incentive to effect an MP pay rise is then focused on first raising the average wage, and to achieve this local industry is likely to benefit (thereby building wealth for prosperity). This has the potential to refocus government on the interests of the electorate rather than cyclic and obscure party ideologies and other distractions. The definition of what constitutes the average wage is the only, but critically important, sticking point. For the purpose of constituting the MP salary, the average wage should be limited to the bulk of the workforce and specifically exclude the incomes of executive and corporate levels; and the mining industry (due to unrealistic comparison to most worker incomes). The wage should instead be based on that of labourers (not industry chiefs), drivers (not owners), mechanics (not engineers), nurses (not doctors) etc. I expect the Queensland average to be about $50,000 pa. For example, if the MP salary was set at two and a half times that of a QLD worker (say $125,000.00), then the average worker (voter) will have a more relevant perception of MP worth (money for value). This is more likely to avoid the present disconnect and favour a greater percentage of community interest in the respective MP's. I have raised this many times over the years but the only political party that thought this was a good idea was One Nation. If you think it has worth please contact me as I am more than happy to discuss. If not, I have at least given my two cents worth.
1542	9/09/2013	Essential to have a body totally independent of any government influence to set remuneration for parliamentary members to avoid the disgraceful and immorally large benefits allotted to them in times of financial hardship of the community as happened during Julia Gillard's term as PM &amp; also in Anna Bligh's term as Q'ld's Premier. Remember they are Public "SERVANTS" using taxpayer's money! All "SIDE BENEFITS" such as free or discounted travel , cars, drivers &amp; many other life long benefits for polititians should CEASE on retirement or sacking from their positions. They are well financially &amp; personally rewarded during their tenure &amp; it seems like stealing from the populace to be granted these benefits whilst SO MANY Australians are desperately struggling to survive. IT IS IMMORAL &amp; UNJUST!! They should remember that they are "SERVANTS OF THE CITIZENS" of this country.We should look after less fortunate citizens - pensioners, the ill,the disadvantaged of our land. There are many examples of the abuse of the monetary &amp; other benefits allowed to politicians .

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1543	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1544	9/09/2013	I submit that the politicians do not continue to be paid nearly $500,000 a year when they retire and they certainly do not make that in their careers. I think that they should earn no more than $350,000 a year and the rest be put back into welfare to reduce poverty. Our children are becoming invisible to them and they are just greedy.
1545	9/09/2013	I do not have any real objection to politicians receiving a reasonable salary, but feel that any increase should be limited to that applying to the general work force. It is the various perks that I feel needs attention, particularly their superannuation entitlement, which is vastly over the top. When we look at any increase in salary we need to look at the total package they are receiving and the total cost to the taxpayer. In the past the case was made for the level of remuneration to be high due to the uncertainty of job security with the need to face reelection every 3 years, but that argument no longer applies just to politicians but to the work force as a whole as security is no longer there. As to ex members I would think that would be an insult to the public to back date any remuneration so they would have any entitlement.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1546	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1547	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1548	9/09/2013	The increases to salaries of Queensland MPs should be linked to public servants wage increases and they must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Furthermore, the MPs should be openly and transparently accountable for how they use their allowances. This is separate from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. It is important the Tribunal ensures that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject comparisons with other jurisdiction's politicians (e.g. Commonwealth). Under no circumstances should MPs ever be able to give themselves such a large payrise while denying hard working public servants theirs.
1549	9/09/2013	In the Courier Mail dated Monday September 9 on page 13 there was a small article on how the Re-numeration Tribunal was calling for comments form the public on how politicians should be paid and that we have until 5pm on Tuesday to submit any comments. This appears to have been very sneakily done so that few people, and I am one, who would be aware of this review and be able to make a submission. Quite frankly, it is my point of view that, the tribunal themselves should be axed and Fair Work Australia should be the responsible government entity. All politicians pay rises should be part of the yearly review that Fair Work undertakes and any pay rise granted would be the same as given to all workers, not a cent more. This tribunal that awards our incompetent politicians with massive pay rises should be the first change. Fair work then should review all politicians pay and entitlements against the world standards and then seek comments from all stakeholders for their input. It is time for a complete change in how politicians wages and entitlements are administered.
1550	9/09/2013	You and your cronies are always lookun for ways to [inappropriate content] sole parents. How bout u look in the mirror. The $$ u earn for the [inappropriate content] job u do is obscene. How bout recognizin the grate hob we do
1551	9/09/2013	I agree that a politician has a difficult, often thankless job and may have to be available at all hours. In as much, I feel that they deserve a considerable wage and how that is established is not what I want to address. The point of rises in wages is where I would like to address. I am lead to understand that politicians are linked and if federal politicians receive a raise it goes down the chain through to local government. I may be misinformed and so the next point is moot. If that is the case, what makes a rise of x% satisfactory for a politician when they argue about a much lower rise for an employee with the same employer (Qld Gov) such as a teacher, police officer, nurse, fireperson. The arguement by the Queensland Government was that they couldn't afford a rise

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		greater than 3% in these financial times and then a few months later are considering a rise much greater to themselves. I feel that if the politicians are linked and receive a payrise conditional on the federal government payrises than all queensland gov employees should be comparable. the % rise should be universal across the board. If the Government decides that they cannot afford a rise for these employees above 3% then how can they justify a rise greater than 3%? Both employees are working to the best of their ability and living at their means. I am not suggesting paying the same amount for different jobs but the increase percentage should be omparable. If the CPI goes up x% why should that justify a rise of x% for essential workers but 2x or 3x % for politicians.
1552	9/09/2013	Parliamentarian wage rises should be linked to those awarded to the Public Service.
1553	9/09/2013	Queensland MPs pay increase should match the increase that is being offered to public servants. They are also public servants and deserve no more than the 2.2% they are currently offering the public service. To give them any increase at all at the moment when they have sacked so many people causing them to loose they homes, go on centrelink handouts or just causing they family high levels of stress struggling to meet their overheads is a disgrace, so if you legally have to give the lying criminals anything, then don't let it be more than what they are offering the rest of the public service, especially since they are up there setting themselves up with businesses to line their pockets after they finish in government.
1554	9/09/2013	I don't mind the 42 % pay rise as long as they get rid of all the expenses accounts and the "golden hand shake for sitting and old M.P.'s. They have a good pay and an excellent super and that's more than any hard working person gets. And we all have to learn to live within our means.
1555	9/09/2013	I strongly feel that once a MP leaves Parliament, that he/she should only take with them what other employees take with them from regular employers.  We, as people in the State of Queensland, have to remember that there is a budget to keep to and to keep on paying ex MP's, it has to stop so money can be used elsewhere (infrastructure, etc)that require IMMEDIATE funding. MP's are currently earning WAY TOO MUCH as it is.
1556	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1557	9/09/2013	I am disgusted that the Queensland politicians have accepted a pay rise that nearly equals my annual salary as a Queensland firefighter. They have continually stated that in this economic climate we all need to tighten our belts. The United Firefighters Union of Queensland has been attempting to negotiate our EB agreement ever since the Newman Government came into power but has been continually stalled and the Newman government has passed legislation that is designed to impede the negotiation process. The government stated that legislation forced them to accept a 42% pay rise yet they simply change the legislation to impede the negotiations for a pay rise of about 3% for Queensland firefighters. Why don't they simple change the legislation that applies to their pay rise as they have for other Queenslanders and accept a realistic increase? The rules should be equal for ALL Queenslanders or are do they consider themselves superior to the rest of us. They should remember that they are public servants of the state of Queensland, as are we, and should therefore be required to abide by the same rules that expect the rest of us to abide by.
1558	9/09/2013	I feel that Mp's are already paid more then generously.  They should not get travel too and from Brisbane if they live too far away from their place of work, they should move closer or just not take the position. The same decision us ordinary people are forced to make.  They should not get the ludicrous allowances they get either. Too many times we read how these allowances have been abused. There should be More Accountability and regular Auditing of all expenses.  Ex Mp's, or Govenor Generals, Prime Ministers etc should not be given a wage for the rest of their lives, nor should they be given travel allowances, cars and even staff and offices... And what about their stationairy allowances, theres another rort..  Mp's should be paid on a performance basis. Ie, members like peter slipper and craig Thompson would be paid what they are worth and so would only ever had been paid an Entry level wage of just the Average Australian Wage.  So in your consideration you should use the stats too see how many Australians are on the Basic Wage and given that most Mp's performance is just average then they should start at the Average wage and keep the allowances, audited each year.  Superannuation and Pensions should also be inline with the Australian worker.. Why do Mp's deserve 15% superannuation when nearly all Australian Employers are hard pressed paying the Real Workers just 9%?  You want to know why there is such distain for politicians, its because of all the Rorting we here of, the Highly INflated wages and expense accounts, free travel and god knows what not..  In the interest of FAIRNESS, please scale it back, and maybe even put another freeze on wages until Emergency Services are given at least the measeley 2.5% increase these IMPORTANT members of society, providing The Real Services to Society Have to Protest to get the government to even consider to grant them..  Pay our Emergency services and Hospital Staff before you give these Fat CATs mo
1559	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1560	9/09/2013	The remuneration of Queensland politicians must be seen by the tax payers to be fair. Their remuneration should be peg to whatever Fair Work Australia award workers under industrial awards. In addition Politicians receive other allowance that the average worker under an award get.
1561	9/09/2013	Parliamentary wages and conditions, are to be consistent with offers made in the Public Service. With the option to freeze Parliamentary wages if public sector wages are frozen.
1562	9/09/2013	MPs should receive a wage only and claim their expenses on tax. It has been shown in the past &amp; present that MPs have no hesitation spending tax payer's money as they seem to think it is their right. Relocation allowances &amp; other allowances after being voted out is plain ridiculous, no one else in the real world get such $. MPs get a good wage and can afford to support their own relocation costs. MPs wages should be linked to that of the lowest paid person in the public servant. MPs claim to serve the public but are completely out of touch with people earning regular wages under $60000 per year. These people struggle to pay insurances, rates, rego and utility bills. They have to pay their own transport costs to work and yet well paid polies wouldn't even know how to use the public transport system, relying on being driven around or using government cars. MPs need to get in touch with the real world &amp; the difficulties the public are facing. With their high wages, perks and super, MPs have no idea how regular people struggle and how their decisions affect the public. Their super should be the same as normal public servants and available to them at the same time as everyone else. Being highly paid doesn't mean that they will do a better job. A lot of public servants are paid under $50000 and do a fantastic job and have considerable responsibilities. It would seem that in this time of financial difficulty and the mass sacking of public servants, pay increases for MPs shouldn't even be considered. We need people who want to do the job and who are not just after the money and perks. I don't receive any more money for being on the WH&amp;S committee or LCC I do it because I am committed to my job. Pay increases for normal people are lucky to be 3% MPs certainly shouldn't be anymore. 3% of their present wage is a lot more than 3% of my $35,000 wage. Keep it affordable, get back to basics and inline with the public's wages. MPs pay &amp; perks r a huge public bill and need to be reined in.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1563	9/09/2013	The current wages of political leaders is absolutely absurd. Including the retirement packages. This proposed 42% increase of pay is simply corrupt and in no way justifiable. Campbell Newman would be earning the same as the USA president, Barack Obama, which is $400,000 a year! The QLD premier earning the same amount as the USA president? What a joke. Tony Abbott is on $500,000 a year as Prime Minister, making him the 3rd highest earning leader in the world (Behind Singapore and Hong Kong). Kevin Rudd, Julia Gillard and the other 5 living former Prime Ministers would be on a PENSION of $371,000 a year each. To put this in perspective the British Prime Minister earns $250,000, and that's whilst he's in power! Compare this to the Age Pension for average Australian's which is $20,000 a year. BUT, not only do former Prime Ministers get $371,000 each per year, they also get a $200,000 superannuation plus many allowances and entitlements such as free air travel for life, a car, office and staff. This money should be distributed to health, education, bettering the future of current Australians. Please do not allow this to happen. It is not in the best interest of the Australian people. We all need to work for what we get, giving people this much money for ensuring the Australian people are adequately treated is a paradox within itself. Thank you
1564	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1565	9/09/2013	These are the thoughts of a seventy year old Queenslander. This Government was elected by the people of Queensland not for their policies or their abilities or their achievements in opposition(which was deplorable). They were elected because they were the only option to arguably the the most incompetent and corrupt Government in Queenslands history. Their achievements were inflated salary packages and lurks and perks jobs for the boys and families and underhanded business deals. To have a great State we must have a great Health and Hospital system, Education system ,Police service Ambulance service and Public transport system. This Government was left with a financially rundown State and also under payed and under staffed people in all vital services stated above. Many of these people were sacked and the remainder offered a paltry 2% pay increase. This Government does not value these highly trained professionals but were quick to accept a salary increase for themselves and then to want another one off 42%,showing their true colors and aligning themselves with the greed shown by the previous Governments. This Government also inherited over inflated salary packages and allowances with many lurks and perks. My solution for the betterment of this great State of ours is simple employ more professionals in these vital Services, increase their salaries by 11/2% above that offered by the Government. Decrease the over inflated salary packages and allowances of the Government and their staff by 10%. Trim the lurks and perks to a more realistic level. If the Government performs to expectations they will be reelected and will be given a salary increase of 21/2% at the start of their next term in office.
1566	9/09/2013	MP's do need a wage plus super and they do ned to be refunded for reasonable expenses. Their wage increases should be in line with what other workers in the community recieve. Noone forced them into the position of being an MP. These people are leaders of the state and therefore should lead by example. if public servants have to have their wages increases depending on the state of the states finances then our leaders should be no different. Their superannuation should not be able to be touched until they reach retirement age the same as the rest of the workers. Their expenses need to cover their work as an MP, office costs, travel expenses, other geninue costs in fulfilling their duties as an MP. THere needs to be an accounting for the money they spend, if there is no reciept then there is no expenses paid or if money is given first they have to pay it back and that needs to be enforced. This is public money they are playing with and it seems they think it is a bottomless pit. Their expenses need to be open to public view. Number 4 is the tough one as the sit so few days now what are they really worth. What are they doing back in the office, how many hours are they there do they need to clock in and out so they are there at least 20 hours a week, I know they meet other people and they attend functions at night and this needs to be taken into account. One needs to look at the current member for redcliff to see where the current system falls down badly. He is being paid a generous amount by many peoples terms for doing nothing. You would hope at that level the honor system would work but it is always the few that wreck it for the many. At the present time I do not believe we are getting value for money from these people. How to fix it I am not sure, I wish you the best and hope you have the wisdom of solomon as you work through the issues.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1567	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1568	9/09/2013	I do not have serious issues about the pay while in parliament, but do have major concerns about high superannuation and pension payments. In my view they should not get higher than 15% super contributions while elected and should only be able to access their super when they attain the same legal position afforded to all other Australians. As far as pensions are concerned, they should only last one term of government after they loose their seat. That goes for federal and state as far as I am concerned no matter what position is held. After all they are there serving the public not ripping them off. Thank you
1569	9/09/2013	Maybe they should be paid on performance and productivity. Have a base salary equal to the average Australian, with small incremental bonuses when agendas are completed and fully functioning with positive results for the good of the people. Any increases are in line with those that the rest of the Australian workers receive. No ridiculous payouts when leaving their position.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1570	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1571	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1572	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1573	9/09/2013	State Premiers should be paid in line with other politicians of other countries with similar GDP and tax schemes. Anything less is an abomination to fairness.
1574	9/09/2013	The Costello audit confirmed our dire financial straits so well summarized by Premier who said "We are Spanish broke". Consider the sacking of thousands of public servants and the cutting/slashing funding of various programmes. Now look at this salary increase for state politicians starting with over $57,000 for a lowly back bencher. This increase alone is more than what a large number of Queenslanders earn in a year!!! To allow this increase could be perceived in various ways. Some may see it as politicians getting richer while the poor (who are their constituents) struggle. The arrogance of the French monarchy comes to mind here. The government is using the courts and spending large resources resisting a small pay rise for public servants! Recommending this politicians pay rise could allow the independence of this committee to be questioned by some if not the majority. This pay rise may be seen as greedy, opportunistic, perhaps arrogant and accepted by those who lack integrity. How would a good Christian religious politician accept this increase whilst being complicit in voting away workers rights and a pay rise for workers and as a backbencher mindlessly voting with the govt on every piece of legislation?? For our self proclaimed god fearing and religious premier and the entire LNP it might be seen as duplicity to accept this payrise. I have framed my comment in this vein so you the "Independent Committee" are alerted to how the public will perceive your committee and the LNP in particular if you endorse this payrise. We are "Spanish broke" We cant afford public servants small percent pay rise yet we can find money for this if you recommend it. In particular the possibility of the premier being paid more than the American president is a " Monthly Python' sketch but this is a real possibility!! "Yes Minister" and the view that you do not hold an enquiry unless you knew the outcome may be the public view of your committee if you recommend this increase. Condsider!!!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1575	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1576	9/09/2013	If Queensland politicians receive a 42% pay increase, Campbell Newman (The QLD premier) would be earning the same as the USA president, Barack Obama, which is $400,000 a year! The QLD premier earning the same amount as the USA president? What a joke. A politician may have many responsibilities, but their core purpose is to represent and serve the people of their area. They are still a member of the Australian workforce and do not deserve preposterous pay rises such as that of 42%. Tony Abbott is on $500,000 a year as Prime Minister, making him the 3rd highest earning leader in the world (Behind Singapore and Hong Kong). Kevin Rudd, Julia Gillard and the other 5 living former Prime Ministers would be on a PENSION of $371,000 a year each. To put this in perspective the British Prime Minister earns $250,000, and that's whilst he's in power! Compare this to the Age Pension for average Australian's which is $20,000 a year. BUT, not only do former Prime Ministers get $371,000 each per year, they also get a $200,000 superannuation plus many allowances and entitlements such as free air travel for life, a car, office and staff. A pay rise of 42% for politicians is an absolute disgrace and insult to other hardworking members of the Australian workforce.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1577	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1578	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1579	9/09/2013	1. I don't believe that MPs should be provided allowances unless they can prove that it is justifiable and within the means of the Queensland economy. One of the election commitments of the LNP was to "cut the waste". That includes: identifying wasteful expenditure that could be redirected to front line services; cut waste by reducing travel, advertising and consultancy expenditure. I think that providing allowances on top of MP salaries is a waste. It is also a threat to Queensland's economy. This government was voted in to be accountable to the Queensland people and to reduce the debt of the State. By providing MP allowances that are not available to public servants, or private employees they are clearly demonstrating that they are not keeping their election promise. 2. I don't believe there should be an unconditional expense allowance for MPs. However if it is deemed essential for an MP to travel as part of their work they should apply for a travel allowance. The reason and cost of the trip should be made publicly available so that all costs by the MP can be accounted for. Any travel should be on publicly available transport and in economy class. It would be a waste of Queensland's money for MPs to be treated to luxury as part of their service of the Queensland public. There is no excuse for private jets!!! MPs that live far from parliament should arrange for tele or video conferencing calls. This is what the public and private sector are doing to cut waste. The MPs of Queensland should be setting the example. There should definitely be no subsidy for home telephones. There should be no unconditional miscellaneous allowance. If they require miscellaneous goods they should apply for this. The reason and the cost should be made publicly available. 3. All travel and miscellaneous costs claims should be submitted to an independent board based on criteria of what is wasteful spending. This should be made publicly available. The current levels of allowances should be cut by at least 30 per cent. These are the types of cuts that were made to Government Departments after the election to cut the waste. In order to cut the waste at the top these cuts should also MPs maximum allowances. If the MP cannot justify spending the maximum allowance they will not have access to the rest of the allowance. That money will be used for front line services. 4. A key role of an MP is carrying out election promises. Cutting the waste in government spending is the most relevant promise in this case. I believe that MP salaries should be cut at the same level that cuts were made to their government departments just after the election. I do not believe that there is any justification for increasing the salary of MPs. The budget of Queensland needs to be fixed, and if that means sacrificing the salary of MPs then that just needs to be done. 5. As a former employee of the Department of Natural Resources and Mines I have witnessed the shambolic way in which cuts were made to government departments. This was due to MPs keeping election promises to cut the waste. As a representative of Queensland people it was also the responsibility of these MPs to have a plan for Queensland's employment future. When 14,000 people were sacked around the same time with no structural adjustment plan, the MPs doomed Queensland to a period of high unemployment and economic instability. This is a major issue for Queenslanders. In a performance evaluation the MPs have failed in their commitment to create jobs and build a strong economy. I believe that every year MPs should be publicly judged on their performance and if they have proven their value to the community they may have a modest incremental pay rise. If they fail to prove their value to the community they may receive a reduction in their salary.
1580	9/09/2013	you all should be ashamed. to advocate yourselves such high salaries is inhumane

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1581	9/09/2013	MP's pay. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. If the MP's get a pay rise? where do they get the money from as Qld state and Federal Governments are borrowing money every single day. I think the Governments will have to borrow MORE money, stick their pay rise in their pockets and we the tax payer will have to pay it back. I would love to borrow lots of money and have someone else pay it back as the MP's want to do.</li> <li>2. The government are paying you to tell them if they deserve a big pay rise or not? You need to be careful as if you don't give them the result they want, you may not get paid. MP's should only get a pay rise when the country and state have the money to give them. at the moment we don't have the money and therefore should NOT get a pay rise.</li> <li>3. The last Bligh Government left us all in massive debt with all working Queenslanders struggling. Now they want the working man and women pay back unnecessary loans so the MP's can get richer.</li> </ol>
1582	9/09/2013	While you may want to comment in general terms, the Tribunal would appreciate your responses to the following questions. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. The salary and expenses that Queensland MPs receive is fair, a combination of salary and expense allowances.</li> <li>2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. All MPs have an office and staff this allowance could go to their office for the purpose conducting electoral business. Examples of what allowances could be used for are postage, stationary, travel associated with their electorate (this could include vehicle allowance if a car is not provided), purchase of raffle tickets at functions</li> <li>3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary?  If the allowance is handled by the office manager and the MP either shows receipts or allows the manager to take care of most of the basics such as postage. At the end of the year the manager could then submit a return to the auditor showing where the allowance was spent, with the auditor doing spot checks to ensure that the claims are legitimate.</li> <li>4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities?</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		A reasonable benchmark would be a senior public servant such as an AO8 with the MPs salary tied to that level, because MPs are often required to perform their duties at night or on weekends then an additional weighting or allowance should be added to reflect this such as 10-30% per annum. The final base salary for an MP should be no more then 3 – 5 % more than their present baseline salary. The allowances that are in place for being on committees and holding ministerial portfolios should also be retained at their present level. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take in to consideration? MPs should only receive the same pay increases that public servants and government employees receive and no more. That is a fair and equitable way of giving MPs salary increases. Under no circumstances should MPs be awarded the suggested 40% salary increase.
1583	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1584	9/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1585	9/09/2013	Renumeration of Qld MPs should be linked to the renumeration of Qld Public Servants. For too long has the MPs been given substantial pay rises, while the very same MPs are restricting the pay rises of public servants through legislation or otherwise. If the public servants who serve them can't be granted a pay raise then the MPs should not get one either. Both groups are intrinsically linked and are serving the public. The hypocrisy has to stop. Only after a public out cry, has the practice of linking Qld MPs pay rises to their Federal counterparts stopped.
1586	9/09/2013	This is ridiculous, you're meant to be a service to us, not use and abuse the system!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1587	9/09/2013	Members of parliament should be responsible for their actions in what they say and what they do and what they promise and thus be paid accordingly. Why are parliamentarians paid higher, remuneration then any other professional when they are suppose to be representing the community members? It is stated that we in the community must live within our means, why then is a politician more privledged to eat 'eye fillet instead of mince meat rissoles'? Why should a politician be allowed 'first class health care when many in the community have difficulty receiving any health care'? It will only be a matter of time before violence will occur on the streets because of the inequity being demonstrated and promoted by politicians. The budget would come into line if politicians demonstrated leadership and lead by example rather than by 'empty words'. So I think politicians earn their wages ----&gt; no I don't. I believe when wages are set the politicians should be set in the same manner.... please do not tell me about working out of hours..... I already do and certainly earn approximately $100,000.00 a year less at a minum.
1588	10/09/2013	I believe that politicians are all vastly underpaid. This is even more so when they also hold a Cabinet position. I have seen the hours they work, the disruption to family life, long periods away and lack of privacy. When wages paid to politicians is broken down to a 24/7 job, their pay is poor. No one really goes into politics for the money. If a politician worked for a bank or large company as a CEO or similar, they could earn millions. A politician in many instances has greater responsibility and earns a fraction of what they could in private enterprise. Their job is also insecure as they may leave a good secure well paid job to become a politician and if they lose their seat (despite the hard work they have done for their constituents and no fault of their own), they may not be able to secure a job as good as the one they left. Benefits such as long service leave, sick leave and the like would have been lost when they went into politics and they must start accumulating that again but in the case of LSL, would need to work for another 10-15 years before they would be eligible again. I also believe that any so called lurks and perks should be accepted by politicians within reason as long as they are not going to influence a decision or be a conflict of interest. Private enterprise affords many employees in higher positions many such lurks and perks paid for by the company or others and no one questions that. It is acceptable. I challenge any knocker of the wages paid to politicians or criticism that they do not work hard should ask their local MP (particularly if also a Cabinet Minister) to tag along for 24 hours and see if they could handle the pace, lifestyle, lack of privacy and family life; the constant need to be contactable 24/7 and the like. I believe they earn ever cent they get paid but how you set the pay and how you convince the public they deserve a decent rate of pay, I am afraid I don't know. I don't see the knockers lining up to run for Parliament

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1589	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1590	10/09/2013	I hereby provide my submission to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal in relation to remuneration for current and former MPs. 1. Considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of an MP? Please explain your answer. A direct salary is necessary for an MP to sustain their role as a servant of their electorate and as a Parliamentarian. Due to the sometimes short-term nature of this role, dependent on politics and the whim of voters, that salary needs to include a superannuation component and to be assured. The nature of the office of MP is such that it cannot be compared to a normal occupation due to the large community component and legislative duties involved. Allowances are also needed to cover the cost of running an office and communicating with the electorate. Some expense allowances should be provided alongside the base salary. These should be separate and not included in a salary package but should be subject to Parliamentary Services Scrutiny. Due to the nature of the position and the demands of maintaining contact with constituents either directly or through community organisations, a number of expense allowances should be accommodated. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. There are a diverse range of expenses involved depending on specific electorate needs and the MPs involvement in their community. These can be quite different from MP to MP. The basic expenses required for the running of an electorate and parliamentary office include postage, ICT, motor vehicle running costs, telephone, and extraneous office costs. These allowances are needed to cover the cost of running an office and communicating with an electorate. Capped and non-cumulative expense allowances are required to fulfil the duties and responsibilities of the position. These allowances should be provided on a quarterly basis to enable Parliamentary Services to more accurately forecast and provide the budget. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Allowances such as postage should be provided to interact with each constituent on an annual basis e.g. 30,000 enrolled constituents x 1 stamp. An account with Australia Post could be set up and Parliamentary Services could pay the account direct to an amount that would not exceed the expense outlined previously and not to be cumulative, payable quarterly or biannually. Mileage allowance based on the number of kilometres your car travels per annum for work purposes could be worked out. For city MPs I would suggest 50% of total kms travelled and 80% for regional MPs, for example. Cost of operating mobile telephones and iPads which are provided by the Parliamentary Service should be paid to a maximum limit for local and national calls only. The maximum limit should be sufficient to enable an average regional member to maintain contact with their constituency. International calls should be barred on these devices. The home telephone refund is reasonable at 85%. Other expenses involved in being part of the community such as community donations, sponsorships, memberships etc should be covered by the MPs salary and this should continue to be aligned with Federal Members' remuneration. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant to determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? Parliamentary responsibility and duties include governing the State for both the immediate and the long-term benefit of its citizens. MPs do this by proposing and promulgating laws through the Legislative Assembly, that govern the everyday activities of both the private and public sectors and this of course, has a direct or indirect impact on each MPs constituents. In order to produce a competitive environment in selecting quality candidates for election, the salary needs to be competitive compared to an executive officer in a private or public company, for example. This would provide a benchmark and is partially used in overseas jurisdictions I believe. On average an MP works between 100 and 120 hours per week and is constantly subject to public scrutiny. Their duties and responsibilities cannot be categorised or value rated due to the level of responsibility to their electorate and the Queensland Parliament, and the diversity and individuality of the high profile community role. An MPs salary could be linked to the private sector however I believe that public opinion may be against this idea. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? It is important that the salary of State MPs continue to be linked to their Federal counterparts due to all of the above reasons I have outlined. An MPs duties and responsibilities cannot be compared with any other occupation and there must be an external benchmark to gauge their remuneration levels. The level of community/parliamentary involvement required in the role is unique and therefore expenses vary according to the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		nature of an electorate and the activities of an MP in their communities. It is impossible to set a standard allowance for the diverse range of expenses incurred on a daily basis in this role. Therefore an MP's salary needs to have the capacity to cover these expenses and this will be accountable through the Australian Taxation Office. Retired MP's superannuation needs to be linked to these processes also. As previously mentioned the sometimes short term nature of an MP's role, can prove a disincentive for a potential quality candidate. The candidate may have to relinquish a secure, well paid executive position in the private sector, for example, to take their chances within the parliamentary system. The public needs to have faith in their political system and the people who are elected to represent them with important legal issues which affect their families and their future. While the superannuation appears generous, there are many restrictions on having additional sources of income and investments during the term of an MP. Superannuation only provides long term adequate compensation for the public and parliamentary scrutiny of an MP's individual and family interests whilst an elected representative. I hope this submission assists the Tribunal to make fair and reasonable decisions in relation to remuneration issues for MPs and former MPs. Thank you for providing the opportunity to have input into this matter which will affect the quality of our parliamentarians into the future.
1591	10/09/2013	Queensland Government Remuneration Submission Executive Summary The base salary of $137,149 appears to be appropriate amount of remuneration and any current and future increases should be restricted to yearly CPI increases. The annual additional salary should be rescinded, specifically $8217 and $21,168 as this appears to be double dipping. A MP is elected to serve their electorate interests so it would follow they would be on committees so to receive an additional payment for that role is flawed. Miscellaneous allowance of $32,355 rescinded no accountability. Parliamentary Service provides office support. I provide tabulated details of items which I have identified which I believe need to be rescinded as they provide no benefit to the taxpayer.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		I shall look forward to the tribunal's report. [personal information] 10 September 2013 1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. The remuneration structure for a Qld MP should be direct salary, base salary as per Schedule A (including superannuation) and a modest amount for 'out of pocket expenses'. Out of pocket expenses would include such things as parking and toll charges. Items which would usually be reimbursed through the traditional 'petty cash' process within most organisations. I note there is already of process for the reimbursement of such items. The role of a MP is to represent their community so the additional payment for parliament committees is nonsensical as is the chairperson position. It is a part of the role and responsibilities of a MP so an additional amount of $8217 and $21168 simply cannot be justified; it is merely topping up their salary. Furthermore those other amounts of additional salary appear to be over generous and with no accountability of how that money is actually spent is open to grave abuse. Politicians pay increases should be restricted to CPI increases as are their allowances. This would remove the view that politicians are only in politics to advance their own self-interest and enable politicians to regain an element of respectability. Furthermore it would attract people who have a genuine desire to serve the community and are not motivated by monetary considerations alone. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. Refer above. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The allowances as detailed in Schedule B should be rescinded or a more modest amount such as $10,000 allocated. Strict guidelines developed, administered and audited by the tribunal should ensure accountability. MP's are provided support through the Parliamentary Service allocation. There is simply no justification for a miscellaneous allowance of $32,355. There are other areas such as postage allowance which provides funding. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? The current arrangement of being paid $500 less than a House of Representative appears appropriate. It would be near impossible to provide benchmarks against respective MP's such as applying performance management process as they each individually bring unique skill set and qualities to their positions which the voting public has deemed appropriate. It is not so much the direct base salary, which appears reasonable, it is the allowance and entitlements which are a grave matter of concern, I term this 'remuneration creep'. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? I provide the following points and table with comments on areas which I believe need to be addressed. As it is the taxpayer who is picking up the cost, any identified unjustified cost to the taxpayer which has no tangible benefit or return to the taxpayer should be removed. 1. Subsidised meals- MP's should not have the perk of taxpayers' subsidised meals. They should pay commercial rates as does everyone else within the community. 2. Frequent flyer points- I am led to believe that MP's can use frequent flyer points obtained whilst conducting official business for their personal use. This is ethically wrong and the practice should be ceased. This is merely the taxpayer subsidising MP's private travel. All frequent flyer points need to be fed back into government for their responsible use.

Queensland Independent
Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Members Entitlement Handbook- Amendments required	Comment
		2.2.2. Home Telephone Reimbursement	No reimbursement of overseas calls, unless relates to their official position.
		2.2.3 Miscellaneous Allowance	Rescind- No accountability-Funding and support provided already by the Parliamentary Service.
		2.3. Travel Allowances, Allocations and Entitlements - Airline travel club schemes	MP's incurs cost. No benefit to taxpayer.
		2.3. Travel Allowances, Allocations and Entitlements - Standard of Air Travel	MP's no first class travel. Business Class only if Economy Class is unavailable. This is now standard practice in the private sector.
		2.3.2.3. Overseas Parliamentary Trade Delegations-Administrative Arrangements	Passport cost's to be responsibility of MP.
		5.2.3. Resettlement Allowance	Rescind- This is an inappropriate allowance and a gross misuse and abuse of public monies. No benefit to the taxpayer whatsoever.
		5.3.2. Rail Travel - Railways of Australia Gold Pass	Rescind- No benefit to the taxpayer.
		5.3.3. Rail Travel - Queensland Rail Gold Pass	Rescind- No benefit to the taxpayer.
		www.remunerationtribunal.qld.gov.au
1592	10/09/2013	Link politicians pays to a specific award range ie. 20% above police, nurses, etc. That way it is decided at no extra cost to the taxpayer. Pay them more while they are in office but all pensions, benefits, extras need to cease the minute they leave their roles. I certainly know no private businesses that would even think of continuing to pay ex employees until the day they die - absolutely ridiculous & our aging population of taxpayers can not afford this ridiculous type of entitlement anymore. There are a lot more politicians on the pay role & they are starting younger & leaving younger to go off & get other high paying jobs while the taxpayer still picks up the tab. If they decide they are just sick of doing their role mid term & decide to cause a bi-election that they need some sort of penalty applied to encourage others to fulfill their full contract terms. Footballers certainly get charged if they break their contracts but politicians just seem to be able to do whatever they want.
1593	10/09/2013	Politicians pay rises need to be linked to the pay rises they deem appropriate for public servants. This will ensure the best interests of the Qld. taxpayer are taken into account.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1594	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1595	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The recent payrise and back payment to politicians is totally outrageous and obscene at a time when the Premier and Treasurer are claiming Queensland is in a dire financial state and sack public servants, close down nursing homes, refuse responsible enterprise agreements for public servants, cut socially responsible community programs, prepare to sell public assets and reduce frontline staff and program's in our hospitals. How can they do this but accept the payment they have received. They should show that they have credibility and responsibility instead of greed.</li> </ul>
1596	10/09/2013	The average pay rise for citizens of Queensland has been linked to the CPI. Since the Newman Government was elected, public servant pay rises have been averaged 2% p.a. Politicians' pay increases should be the same. 42% increase is obscene and this Premier and any other Premier's pay should be nowhere near that of the President of the USA. Citizens of Australia have been through the GFC and have been asked to weather the tough times ahead. We have been asked to increase our Medicare Levy to cover the natural disasters over the past years. Pay increases for Queensland citizens have been fought for long and hard over many years. Politicians pay rises should not be automatically processed every 6 months and certainly not at 42%. Queensland Politicians are citizens of the State and should have to weather the tough times the same as every other citizen. They have guaranteed life long pensions after only 2 terms in Parliament which no other working person in the State has. They are elected representatives of the people of the State and should govern for the term they are elected at the rate of pay that is in place at the time they are elected. Politicians pay rises should go to a referendum every 3 year term to ask the people to grant a pay rise. Pay rises should not be automatically given throughout their term in government. 42% pay rise would anger most citizens especially when Politicians do not have to fight for the rise whereas citizens of Queensland have to fight for any pay increase. The rules for pay increases should be the same for all. 42% increase for each and every Queensland Politician would pay the Emergency Services budget for a year, rebuild a large portion of the National Highway and flood proof a lot of country towns. This money

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		should be put into Consolidated Revenue for use by the Government for benefit of all citizens. Put a Pay Rise to the citizens of Queensland by Referendum at the next Election. Everyone should be treated equally.
1597	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1598	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1599	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1600	10/09/2013	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. I believe that MP's should receive a direct salary plus super however any expenses incurred should be claimed after the funds have been expended. This is the same standard applied in private enterprise and the requirement for every public servant and private contractor.</li> <li>2. I believe that vehicles and fuel should be provided but with the same restrictions as those placed on every other govt worker. Postage and letters should be covered but only material that details the work performed within the MP's electorate. The cost of an office and administrative staff but every MP should be issued with the same designated office area and number of staff. Public servants are restricted to the size of workspace allowed depending on their seniority level. Why should MP's elected by the public be any different?</li> <li>3. Please see 1. Some members of the public don't earn a year what you want to pay MP's as a miscellaneous allowance a year. The only way to stop roting, as experienced in the past, is to have both the allowances placed in a special bank account, for each MP, that can only be accessed by one of several individual credit type cards issued to each MP and their staff but which must be reconciled monthly, with receipts, as is currently required by every public servant and state employee responsible for public funds and allowances.</li> <li>4. The same benchmarks and factors that are used for every other profession, skilled and unskilled, that the public have to meet.</li> <li>5. MP's are part of the workforce in Queensland and as such should meet the same level of scrutiny that other workers are subjected too. When the general workforce is accepting minimum pay increases and monetary constraints due to the Australian economy how can any fair minded person justify an obscene 42% pay increase for MP's when those MP's are forcing public servants to accept 2.2% in exchange for work conditions. They wonder why the general population hold politicians in such contempt.</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Do as I say not as I do please.
1601	10/09/2013	As a former State MP for more than fifteen years [personal information] of which I was [personal information] I write to make a brief submission to QIRT. I do not envy you and your fellow tribunal Members in the challenging task that lies ahead of you. No matter what recommendations you make, you will be criticised in the popular media. Few topics attract almost universal criticism as does the question of remuneration for parliamentarians. As one experienced MP counselled me shortly after having been elected to the Queensland Parliament: “If we got paid nothing, half the electorate would say we’re being over-paid.” I believe that your Tribunal will be on the safest possible grounds if, in your deliberations, you:- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) apply HR principles which are used community-wide to assess remuneration for a wide variety of occupations</li> <li>(b) take into account the specific needs and demands of being a State MP</li> <li>(c) take into consideration, and make provision for, the different remuneration regimes which apply to current and former MPs</li> </ul> As [personal information] I was privy to the personal challenges and needs of many Members – most of which were not known to the Electorate. From that experience, as well as from my own fifteen years’ service as a local Member, may I suggest the following elements which Tribunal Members might take into account when considering the specific needs and demands of public office as a Member of the Queensland Parliament:- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• On election, an MP becomes ‘public property’ and his/her social interactions are forever perceived and judged through the prism of “.. as a politician, he/she ...”</li> <li>• It is usual for the family of an MP to be evaluated and stereotyped through the perspective of: “.. as the spouse/child of an MP, ....”. In many ways, it is the MP’s family members who pay the higher price for the MP holding public office.</li> <li>• Having left the Parliament, former member remains public figures. This loss of privacy and the loss of anonymity remains a permanent condition.</li> <li>• Having been an MP can, in a number of circumstances, be an impediment to gaining employment post-Parliament.</li> </ul> Professor Brailsford, I thank you and fellow Tribunal Members for your commitment to the demanding task which you have accepted. I wish you well in your deliberations.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1602	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1603	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. It will also show that when governments negotiate wage rise for their workers and argues that the people of Queensland can't afford it they must live by it themselves with their own payrises.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1604	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1605	10/09/2013	In my view, the basic salaries and allowances are roughly in the ball-park for the responsibilities of MP's. The disconnect is in superannuation, and "perks" after leaving Parliament. Superannuation for former MP's should not be available until the normal retirement age that applies to the rest of the population. Similarly, taxpayer-funded cars, travel, offices, secretarial staff etc. should not be available to retiring MP's.
1606	10/09/2013	Pay rises should be in % and pegged to the CPI % increase. This will keep politicians in tune with the rest of society and enhance their credibility with the rest of society.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1607	10/09/2013	Submission to the Remuneration Tribunal Queensland To even consider honoring a a 42% wage increase for state politicians would be a mistake in my opinion . Given they rushed this thru while their boss was on leave then stopped it once he got back saying we will send it to a remuneration tribunal for consideration ? Which many Queenslanders consider to be a stalling tactic till the story when from front page to page 24 of the paper and people forgot this . Well as many including myself have to live with their failure to control the cost of living and try to make do on a 2.2% [@ $16 a wk] increase latest offer for non politicians in Queensland it reeks of cronyism almost 11% of Queensland rebelled at weekends federal election by voting for Clive Palmer's new political party with about 18-24 months till next state election. Hope you do give it to them as that will be a big plus in campaign to oust Newmann government. Politicians get enough perks any many feel they are overpaid now. Their salary should be linked to some kind of performance based incentive or bonus system say 100k pa base salary then if deliver their promises they get bonus if not we'd save $millions. Might under stand how tough people are actually doing it if had to earn a fair wage not just gouge at the public feed trough. Don't they all say they get into politics to serve the people of this great state? And can make more money at their previous career/jobs? Well let them prove that. Anna Bligh felt guilty in taking the cash that's why she stopped the rise while people were doing is tough after the floods of 2011. Anyway will be watching to see what happens? Sure my humble opinion wont change you mind Prof Brailford but if you as smart as you name sounds think of this as your change to show the people of Queensland your hearing them
1608	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1609	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• No other public servants enjoy pay rises anywhere near these amounts. We are only being offered 2% which is less than inflation. Politicians also receive lots of perks such as free meals, travel etc. and public servants don't even have office coffee or tea supplies.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1610	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• Transparency &amp; accountability of both allowances &amp; expenses is vital if the Queensland public is to have ongoing faith &amp; trust in their politicians.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Politicians remuneration is paid for from the public purse as are the salaries of all state public servants. Politicians are in essence public servants and regularly talk about their desire "to serve" all Queenslanders. It therefore makes logical sense that politicians remuneration be linked to that of other public servants.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1611	10/09/2013	Any pay increases given to Qld MPs should be comparable to those given to QLD public servants. If public servants are provided with 2% then the MPS should receive the same amount across the board. All electoral allowances should be kept separate from salary with MPs required to demonstrate how the allowances were spent within the electorate. If electoral allowances are provided as salary there is no requirement they will be spent to the benefit of the electorate. The recent substantial increase should be removed, particularly given the alleged "dire" financial situation we are in. Also the Premier of QLD should not be receiving a salary commensurate with the President of the US, given their different levels of responsibility. A community standard must be applied to determine an appropriate salary for Qld MPs. QLD MP salaries should not be tied to those from any other jurisdiction. The salaries of other public servants are not tied to those from other jurisdictions.
1612	10/09/2013	Sir/ Madam, I believe that politicians should be paid well in order to attract candidates who have the attributes and vision to lead Queensland well. We suffer continually from (I believe) too many poor quality members in the parliament. We need to attract senior industry, technical and commerce leaders who have the right mix of experience. I do not adhere to the mob mentality that would see a politician's pay in accordance with that of the working class 'battler'. I therefore submit that politicians' pay should be dramatically increased. At the same time, politicians' superannuation should be commensurate with that of the general public. It is difficult to ascribe a meaningful bonus system, as might apply in individual senior executive contracts; salaries should reflect this, but be realistically modest by corporate standards. I would suggest also that towards the conclusion of each parliamentary term, EVERY member is to prepare a detailed report, in a standardised format outlining his achievements in office during the term. The voting public deserves to see this information and it can be an objective means of measuring the effectiveness of representation for which the incumbent has been paid. Importantly, and I feel most strongly, once a politician leaves office, his entitlements do not continue. It is a job, like that of any body else. Life time handouts are gratuitous and a self-indulgent remnant of an era of perceived self-entitlement.
1613	10/09/2013	Confidential

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1614	10/09/2013	Q1 Their should be an appropriate salary package with its attached superannuation(with an annual increase no greater than what is provided to all Australian pensioners)providing the member has served at least three terms. Q2&amp;3 The expense allowance should be allowed, but it should not be used as an addition to the salary package,therefore the member pays all expenses and then submits a claim to justify genuine expenses, this is the normal practise for the majority of business employees and as far as I am aware for public servants on government business Q4. All Members must attend every parliamentary sitting day, unless they are ill,no attendance no salary for missed days, the excuse that they have local affairs to cover is not acceptable, as all other business can be carried out on non sitting days. The remuneration they receive is for carrying out the work they were elected for. Q5. The remuneration should be on such a scale as to attract he best people to the job, but taking into account my previous comments.
1615	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1616	10/09/2013	It is difficult to separate emotion from this issue, particularly after so much belt tightening in the State resulting in essential service coalface workers losing their jobs. My submission is that MPs should receive an office allowance to cover the costs of effective representation of their communities, however like all sectors it should be cost effective, as all this expenditure is from the pockets of taxpayers who are not in line for massive pay increases. MPs should receive payments for travel and staying away from home expenses like all public servants in those circumstances. As for the high levels of remuneration that is proposed for MPs, the argument that it should be at a level that will attract a high quality level of candidate doesn't necessarily translate into reality. The present rate of pay has attracted the present candidates without any productivity requirement attached to the role. MPs should be subject to the same level of increase that they have imposed on the rest of the community. If the pay rises go through at the high rate reported, it would be hard to determine whether people were nominating for those influential positions from a truly community spirited perspective. It is opening the door to a spate of career politicians of current calibre, who are able to legislate for their own advantage into the future. I cannot reconcile the idea that taxpayer money must be saved by removing nurses from hospitals, and fighting the hard working teachers for their increase pittance, yet without a blink, our representatives feel entitled. I would like some productivity benchmarks and assessment for MPs. Every other workplace has performance reviews, why not the highest paid public servants in whom we trust(?). Finally, where is the precedent for awarding such high amounts of backpay? These MPs are public servants and I cannot recall any payrise decision either state or federal resulting in such a bonus to workers. Frankly, it stinks.
1617	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1618	10/09/2013	I believe that the rate of pay should be linked to that of the public service. This is the only way to make it fair and out of the hands of politicians to decide their own rate of pay. This would be a fair and transparent way and leading by example for the majority .

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1619	10/09/2013	Queensland Council of Unions Submission regarding Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Prepared by: [personal information] 1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. The QCU supports a structure that includes a separate salary and allowance. However the support for the allowance is qualified and there is a strong case for the allowance to be subject to far greater scrutiny and accountability. QCU support for the structure that includes an electorate allowance is predicated on that allowance being associated with work to represent constituents. The representation of constituents is (or should be) the role of a Member of the Legislative Assembly and we support the maintenance of this allowance over including it in total salary. It would not be in the interest of accountability and public confidence for a postal allowance to be introduced. The QCU has grave concern for such an allowance to be used for political purposes rather than for the advancement of the electorate that the member represents. The salary component is the basis for remuneration for politicians and is important that Members of Parliament are adequately remunerated. It is also important that members of the community understand that aspect of the money paid to members of parliament be properly recognised for that purpose and not subject to any confusion. As is discussed later in this submission it would also increase public confidence if information as to how the allowance was spent was made publically available. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. The primary issue with the existing allowance is that there are currently no rules as to how the allowance should be spent. This lack of regulation and guidance has led many members, such as the Deputy Premier, to consider the allowance as being part of their salary. This misunderstanding of the purpose of the allowance is of deep concern and demonstrates the need for some guidelines about proper use of the allowance. Without wishing to be overly prescriptive, it would be important that the allowance be used in such a way as it benefits the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorate and constituents. It is probably not necessary to list every single issue that the allowance should be spent on and such a system would lead to arguments in semantics. Rather the public disclosure of the way in which the allowance is spent would allow voters to consider whether the allowance has been spent in an appropriate fashion. There are obviously expenses associated with the administration of an electorate office. It is sensible that reasonable expenses that are not provided by the Queensland Government are paid for by this allowance and that these expenses are acquitted. There may also be some justification for an amount of the allowance to be spent on donations to community organisations. The QCU welcomes legislative change that has the genuine intention of improving transparency and accountability. The QCU submits that the same rules that have now been applied to elected union officials should apply to politicians and in particular ministers. This approach would require the publication of the usage of ministerial vehicles, credit cards and cab charges. The Queensland Parliament recently passed amendments to the Industrial Relations Act 1999 that place onerous requirements on unions and, to a lesser extent, registered employer organisations. Much of the justification surrounding these amendments has been with respect to allegations made against a former union official in New South Wales. It is quite apparent from the rhetoric surrounding the act amendments that they were motivated by malice rather than any genuine interest in improving levels of accountability. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? The obvious solution to ensuring that the allowance is not used as a supplement to salary is to provide guidelines in relation to the appropriate use of the allowance. Such guidelines might include a specific statement that it does not revert to salary but rather is used for the specific purposes described above. Further, the allowance should be provided on a “use it or lose it” basis. If the allowance is not used for its intended purpose, it should be returned to consolidated revenue as would be the case within a government department. In addition a rigorous acquittal process along with public disclosure of how the allowance was spent would assist ensuring that the allowance is not regarded as a substitute for salary. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? As would be expected, members of parliament are reasonable well remunerated. When one adds the current annual salary component of $137,149 to the miscellaneous allowance of $32,355, the result is $169,505. To put this income level into

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		perspective it is a fraction over double (209.7%) the average income for Queensland employees<sup>1</sup>. Given the high incidence of relatively high income earners in Queensland (in the mining and construction industries for example) this is not an inconsiderable statistic. It could be well argued that double the average income is both adequate and reasonable. The same rules that apply to other employees in the community and in particular Queensland Government employees should have application to politicians. The Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal (QIRT) should, in our submission, adopt the stringent rules that have been applied to public sector workers by the Newman Government in terms of its own wages policy. To review the remuneration payable to parliamentarians we would urge an examination of the provisions of the Industrial Relations Act 1999 and in particular recent amendments that require consideration of the state's financial position be given in determining matters for arbitration by the Queensland Industrial Relations Commission (QIRC). In addition the Wage Fixation principles of the QIRC are instructive to consider potential justification for wage increases. There is a need to attract quality candidates to Parliament and it is at times an onerous position with considerable demands being placed on the Member of Parliament both in terms of workload and commitment. None the less, there is a balance that needs to be maintained between adequate remuneration and public confidence that politicians are not providing themselves with benefits that they would deny other members of the community. Anecdotally, it is suggested by some politicians that they have taken a pay cut to enter Parliament. There may be some limited examples where this has been the case but in the current Parliament there would only be handful of members in this category. In any case those members who do take a pay cut do so in full knowledge of the arrangements. Members who have taken a pay cut to become politicians are probably not in danger of poverty. As will be discussed in terms of question 5, Australian workers have been denied the capacity to benchmark against other similar occupations. The means of adjusting wage rates on the basis of comparative wage justice has long been a „taboo“ in wage fixation. It is grossly unfair and inconsistent that wage adjustment for another group of individuals (such as federal politicians) automatically flows on to Queensland parliamentarians. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Industrial tribunals within Australia have maintained stringent wage fixation principles for over 30 years. In setting rates of pay tribunals must justify any increases in terms of these strict principles including changes to work value. Work value in itself has become increasingly difficult to justify. In the case of politicians, the technology that is now available may have in fact made the job easier in some ways. The ability to electronically communicate with constituents provides an alternative to the more time-consuming activities such as door knocking the electorate. As previously discussed workers in Australia have not been able to rely on comparative wage justice for many years. The proposal

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		that had been sought to be adopted by the Newman Government was a return to comparative wage justice by returning to the practice of linking state politicians pay increases to that of their federal counterparts. For over 20 years now the primary form of wage determination has been that of enterprise bargaining. This form of bargaining based on productivity improvements has proved problematic for employees in service industries where productivity is difficult to measure. For the sake of consistency, politicians should also be required to base their claims for wages on productivity. One suggestion that was made by the Deputy Premier was to abolish the electorate allowance and make the payment as salary. Such a suggestion would be completely contrary to the notion of basing wage increases on productivity as the electorate allowance, if used correctly, should be spent by the local member on providing benefit to the electorate to remove the electorate allowance would be counterproductive to the effective representation of constituents and would therefore decrease the productivity of the Member. The enterprise bargaining process has been particularly difficult for employees of the Queensland Government since the election of the Newman Government. The Newman Government has made “take it or leave it” offers of low wage increases and has made claims for significant trade-offs in order to justify the increase. With the exception of nurses (3%), teachers (2.7%) and police (2.2%), all enterprise bargaining negotiations have resulted in arbitration. This has resulted in substantial expense to the parties and delays to wage increases for those public sector workers who would be covered by agreements. In addition the Queensland Government has used its majority in Parliament to unilaterally remove conditions of employment that provided public sector workers with job security. The way in which the Queensland Government has dealt with increases to politicians was completely at odds with the attitude adopted towards Queensland Government employees. The necessity to accept the wage increases was because of a legal technicality; however the Queensland Government was more than willing to override existing entitlements for its own employees that had been legally negotiated and agreed. The Queensland Government has also placed every obstacle in the way of public sector workers obtaining an interim wage increase whilst arbitration takes place. The Queensland Government is now offering 1.7% to public sector employees whilst proposing to pay politicians a 42% increase. Nothing is more galling to the public than to see politicians set one set of rules for the public and another set of rules for themselves. The QIRC most recently brought down its State Wage Case decision on 29 August 2013. In so doing the QIRC followed the National Wage Review of the Fair Work Commission and awarded an increase of 2.6%. The QIRC decision was based on a range of economic data including a submission from the Queensland Government about an appropriate level of increase. Having regard to the circumstances of politicians it is difficult to see how there would be justification or community support for an increase in excess of this amount. 1 ABS publication 6302.0Queensland Ordinary Full Time Earnings Full-time Adults

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1620	10/09/2013	Tie MP wages to the CPI(currently 3%). Why do they think themselves different to any other worker in Qld. I am employed in a private hosp where my job involves the complexities and stresses of ensuring everything needed for pt surgery. We have just fought very hard to acquire a lousy 2.75% pay rise. Not even the level of the CPI which on average is 3%. If these elected MP's are truly genuine in the ideals of accountability and honesty for the good of the people and state they would lead by example and accept pay rises linked to the CPI.
1621	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1622	10/09/2013	Queensland Politicians Remuneration As the Chairman of the review I would like to make some submissions regarding the remuneration of Queensland's politicians. I think the first thing to note is that a change in remuneration does not only affect the 89 Queensland parliamentarians, it also affects the remuneration of councilors around the State, so any decision can have far reaching financial decisions to taxpayer and ratepayers. I also believe the whole package needs to be considered, including pensions and the like. There is a large hidden component to their overall remuneration packages. My first concern is that politicians believe that they should be paid on a basis similar to the Chief Executive Officer of an enterprise with a similar workforce as the State, or an enterprise with the State government budget as their turnover. (The same argument is often put forward by bureaucrats). To my mind there is nothing further from the truth. Politicians, councilors and bureaucrats are only responsible for one half of an enterprise of similar standing, the cost side. They have no accountability to the revenue portion of a similar enterprise. The revenue side is the harder, you have to prove to customers that your product is better than the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		competitions day, after day. When it comes to government and councils the revenues arrive as a result of statute, they are not fought for. Costs are significantly easier to manage; they can be reduced by not incurring expenditure. Residents of Queensland have no choice as to who they can purchase their car registration, their land purchase duty from; they have to purchase it from the State government, no matter how little value they get, or how poor the customer service may be. Lobbying for funds from Federal Government is not the same as providing services to the public that the public are prepared to pay for. Deciding on the statutory contribution that members of the public must pay is not the same as an enterprise fighting for consumer dollars. Based on this, politicians, councilors and bureaucrats salaries should be based on the salaries of project managers rather than senior managers in commerce. Secondly politicians and councilors receive significant payments if they are not re-elected. The argument for this is that their terms of office are potentially short and that they have limited other skills. In the modern commercial world, many employees would love to have three year guaranteed employment contracts, most would be lucky if they had contracts that gave them security of tenure for 30 days. Politicians and councilors know exactly when their tenure is going to end and have the luxury of being able to plan for the event. Employees have the same insecurity as politicians and councilors have at election time in the event of any redeployment within their own employer at a time of restructure. Politicians and councilors should expect a discount on their salaries for this extended period of guaranteed tenure, or at the most should not be entitled to any more than the statutory minimum severance pay if they are not reelected. They should get no payment if they do not stand for reelection. There should be no payment for the fact that politicians and councilors are unable to perform any other role. Many do perform other roles and in today's modern work environment there would be no such payments to people whose skills are no longer required because of process changes, or a non requirement of their skills. Thirdly pensions are particularly generous for politicians and councilors. Once again I see no reason why politicians should have any better conditions than an employee in the private sector. The minimum super contributions should be made as part of their remuneration package to a defined contribution super fund. This would also make them accountable to some extent to what they actually legislate for employees. Since this is my stance I will make no comment about politicians and councilors been able to receive pensions while still aged below the standard superannuation requirements. Fourthly there is little or no comeback on a politician or councilor who fails to effectively represent their electorate. Mr. Scott Driscoll is a case in point. Attending parliament for one hour during a nine month period is considered adequate performance. This behavior would certainly not be accepted in commerce and should justify a discount on a politician and councilor salary, alternatively a change in rules of attendance and satisfactory work and representation requirements. I hope I have been able to express what I believe would be a fair compensation for effort and accountability for holders of these offices.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1623	10/09/2013	How do they even consider a pay rise in the light of all that has gone on before hand with the pay debacle of the health system. Every other worker only gets a rise something similar to that of the CPI. Even if it is to reverse the decision of the pay freeze that should not be as high as 42%. Here at the local government level we were only given 2% a year for next 3 yrs and even then that's not set in concrete as we had to vote on it. Come on fair is fair.
1624	10/09/2013	I find it barbaric that the QLD leader is paid such a high amount when there are thousands of people in Australia struggling. That money could be used for much better purposes, it could remedy the lack of funds resulting in hospital staff being under paid. How can the prime minister of Australia be earning more than the President of the United States of America? The pay rise of over %30 is preposterous! No other person is that priveleged, most workers get %1 pay rises. Enough budget cuts on life dependent projects and more pay cuts for greedy politicians! I believe that all premiers and prime ministers would greatly benefit from living a week in the life of a pensioner and a low income family to really gauge the effects of their tax and benefit rules.
1625	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1626	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1627	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1628	10/09/2013	Please accept the enclosed submission titled 'Remuneration - salary afforded to the parliamentary office of Speaker'.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		It is my hope that the brief will equip tribunal members in their deliberations with a reasonable knowledge of the role in its entirety, including those aspects which are important but not as publicly visible. Submission to Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal REMUNERATION - SALARY AFFORDED TO THE PARLIAMENTARY OFFICE OF SPEAKER Contents 1. Submission Summary ..... 1 2. THE SPEAKER ..... 2 3. REPRESENTATIVE &amp; CONSTITUTIONAL ROLE ..... 2 Representative ..... 3 Democratic Engagement ..... 3 External Relations ..... 4 4. THE PROCEDURAL ROLE ..... 4 Complexities of Impartiality ..... 5 5. RESPONSIBILITIES UNDER LEGISLATION ..... 6 Chairperson of the Committee of the Legislative Assembly ... 6 Oversight of Integrity ..... 7 Parliament ..... 7 Security of Parliament. .... 7 6. REMUNERATION ..... 8 Additional Salary ..... 8 Increased costs due to office ..... 10 7. Appendix 1: Legislation involving the Speaker 8. Appendix 2: Guidelines requiring involvement of the Speaker 1. Submission Summary The purpose of this submission is to brief the tribunal on the critical role of the officeholder known as 'Speaker', and hence help inform the tribunal as to how salary may be considered as distinct from that of a Member of the Legislative Assembly who does not hold an additional parliamentary office. The following are the key points discussed in this submission: 1. The Speaker is elected from the Members of the Legislative Assembly and must, as all Members must, continue to perform all the duties expected of a locally elected representative to Parliament.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		2. The office of Speaker is the most senior office in the Queensland Parliament. Duties of the office are to be performed in addition to those required as an elected representative. 3. The multifaceted role of the Speaker can best be considered in three distinct areas. Constitutional, Procedural, and Representative. 4. Much of the complexity of the role is derived from the Speaker's responsibility to be the "guardian of the powers, rights and immunities" of the Legislative Assembly. 5. Unlike Ministers of the Crown, some of whom can be first time Members of Parliament, the role of Speaker demands significant parliamentary experience. 6. The Speaker is the only officeholder in which the Legislative Assembly empowers a representative function. This is safeguarded by the Assembly's right to hold every Speaker to account in a public forum and remove them at its will. 7. Given the extensive duties and responsibilities of the office, outlined in sections 3, 4, and 5, an additional remuneration has always been considered appropriate. 8. As a consequence of the additional duties and responsibilities of the office, increased expenses are often incurred in performing these functions. Given this, an expense of office has historically been considered appropriate. Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 1 of 10 2. THE SPEAKER The Speakership is the most senior office in the Queensland Parliament. The Legislative Assembly cannot operate without electing a Speaker and as such it is the first priority of every Parliament as outlined in Section 14 of the Parliament of Queensland Act 2001: 14 The Speaker (1) The members of the Assembly must immediately on sitting after every general election proceed to elect a member to be Speaker. (2) The Speaker must preside at all meetings of the Assembly, unless otherwise provided by the standing rules and orders. The Speaker is the principal office holder in the Legislative Assembly, he or she is the Assembly's representative or spokesperson and the chair of its meetings. Because the Speaker chairs or presides over the meetings of the Assembly he or she is commonly referred to as the Assembly's Presiding Officer. This aspect of the role is perhaps the most visible, however the office of Speaker is

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		a multifaceted role which incorporates substantially more duties in distinct areas outside of the Chamber. These are outlined in the sections that follow. Democracy means people having the right to govern themselves. In a parliamentary democracy, the people vote to elect representatives who make decisions about laws and services on their behalf which is what is meant by the phrase: "By the people, for the people, of the people". While Queensland has only been a self-governing state with elections since 1860, the Parliament is based upon the Westminster system dating back to the 1200s and inherited as part of the British Commonwealth. Thus the Speaker's role as part of our parliamentary democracy is an ancient one. The Speaker's authority is derived from the Assembly, to which their duty lies and to which he or she is directly answerable. Just as the Speaker is elected by the Assembly, he or she may be removed from office by a vote of the Assembly. 3. REPRESENTATIVE &amp; CONSTITUTIONAL ROLE As with most constitutional matters, the details are complex and their importance can easily be understated if not fully understood. This being the case, the Speaker's role is one which endeavours to ensure the integrity of the institution of Parliament. At the core of this role is the Speaker's legal duty to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Fulfil the role of "guardian of the powers, rights and immunities" of the Legislative Assembly.</li> <li>• Ensure that Members of Parliament have freedom of speech and the ability to perform their roles without threat of force, intimidation or interference are just some of the parliamentary rights and immunities (also known as privileges) which the Speaker has responsibility to protect.</li> </ul> Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 2 of 10 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Enable orderly debate - Members of Parliament are elected to speak on behalf of their constituents. If they do not have freedom of speech within Parliament, then it cannot exist elsewhere. That is why the Speaker protects the right of orderly debate, so as to ensure it is not just the loudest voice, or the most numerous, that is heard.</li> <li>• Protect the Parliament - This right to freedom of speech in a safe environment is also the reason the Speaker is in charge of security of the Parliament. Safety of the precinct is intricately linked with safety in the assembly and its committees.</li> <li>• Facilitate public and media access to parliamentary proceedings - This is both on the precinct and through electronic means to uphold the principle of accountability and transparency of Parliament.</li> <li>• Furthermore, as part of the constitutional role as guardian of these rights, the Speaker is involved in determining prima facie matters of privilege for referral to the Ethics Committee and is the external liaison with courts and law agencies regarding matters of parliamentary privilege.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Representative The Speaker is the spokesperson for the House (hence the derivation of the name 'Speaker') in its relations with the other parts of the Parliament, Executive government, and the Judiciary. In this role Speakers are expected to maintain the authority of the House, and to protect its rights and privileges. Official communications from and to the Assembly are signed by and addressed to the Speaker. The Speaker receives delegations from other Parliaments and special visitors on behalf of the Parliament. On formal occasions the Speaker represents the Parliament and plays a central role. For example, during the opening of Parliament, a ceremony takes place involving the Speaker, the Governor and Members of Parliament which underlines this constitutional relationship. These formal relationships are more than symbolic as they serve both a constitutional function and to educate and explain more about our system of government. In representing the Assembly the Speaker represents and is responsible to the Assembly and all of its Members, whether in government, opposition or performing a crossbench/ independent role. He or she is not responsible to the Executive Government and seeks to preserve the Assembly's independence from it. Democratic Engagement It is this "guardian" role which provides an imperative for the Speaker to uphold and strengthen civic engagement and education. As the only elected representative of the Parliament, it is the Speaker who must engage on behalf of the Parliament, helping the public to understand the importance of the Parliament itself and more broadly the doctrine of the separation of powers. In doing this the Speaker attends and speaks at various public forums and leadership seminars, hosts youth parliaments, and engages with heads of diplomatic missions on behalf of the Parliament. It is a simple truth that what people do not understand, they do not value, and what they do not value, they do not guard or promote. While our parliamentary democracy may evolve, it should not be allowed to erode through lack of understanding. Fundamentally then, Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 3 of 10 education acts to protect parliamentary democracy. It is the role of the Speaker to be at the forefront of promoting and protecting our parliamentary democracy. External Relations The external relations role involves hosting visiting dignitaries from overseas countries, elected officials and representatives of the diplomatic corps who regularly visit the Parliament.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Speaker, as the Parliament's most senior representative, meets them on behalf of the State Parliament. These visits provide opportunities to promote the State, strengthen mutual understanding and establish deeper working relationships. In addition to the above, the following duties are also an expectation of the external relation role: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Representing the Parliament of Queensland at Community Engagement events</li> <li>• Queensland Branch President - Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (CPA)</li> <li>• Supporting Queensland Parliament's twinned Parliaments (Papua New Guinea and Vanuatu) and other CPA training programs</li> <li>• Hosting heads of mission, dignitaries, and other important visitors to the Parliament</li> </ul> 4. THE PROCEDURAL ROLE As Presiding Officer the Speaker chairs the meetings of the Assembly and is tasked with ensuring they are conducted in an orderly manner and according to the provisions of the Standing Rules and Orders of the Legislative Assembly. The duties performed in the Chair ,during Question Time and other key debates are probably the Speaker's most visible. It is a vital pillar of the Speaker's role to preside independently of the executive government or partisan interests and thus ensure the democratic principles of the assembly are protected. This also means the Speaker themselves must not be subjected to threats or coercion which could undermine the performance of their duties. This presents complexities. The Speaker is typically a senior government member who has accumulated extensive parliamentary experience in order to be competent in the demands of office. However, unlike the UK Parliament, Speakers in Queensland and other Australian jurisdictions continue to belong to their political party as there is no convention of their electoral seats being uncontested by political opponents. In Queensland, and in order to assist in presiding independently over debates, the Speaker follows the convention of not attending parliamentary party meetings, particularly where strategy and tactics are discussed. Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 4 of 10 The Speaker must seek to ensure that the Standing Rules and Orders of the Legislative Assembly<sup>1</sup> are applied at all times. The Speaker interprets and applies the standing orders, responds to Members' points of order relating to them and gives rulings on procedure when necessary. For example, the Speaker is often called upon to decide whether remarks made in a speech are offensive, whether a Member's speech is relevant to the motion being debated or whether a particular motion or amendment is allowed to be moved at a certain time. The Speaker calls upon Members wishing to speak and in doing so seeks to allocate the call evenly between the government and non-government Members, ensuring that backbenchers are not overlooked. As previously mentioned the Speaker is the guardian of the powers, rights and immunities of the Legislative Assembly, as such they must protect the rights of individuals and minorities

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		in the Assembly and make sure that everyone is treated fairly within the framework set by the standing orders. The Speaker must maintain order during debate. While most proceedings pass routinely and without incident there are occasions when passions become inflamed, excessive interjection occurs and the Assembly becomes noisy and unruly. The standing orders provide disciplinary powers to enable the Speaker to restore order. These vary in their severity and allow the Speaker to deal with breaches of order in the most appropriate manner. The Sergeant-at-Arms, as the protector of the Speaker and who is responsible to the Speaker, helps the Speaker maintain order, not only in the Chamber but in the gallery and precinct, by ensuring the directions of the Speaker are fulfilled. The Speaker, while spending a considerable part of each sitting day in the Chamber, is not present throughout all proceedings. The Deputy Speaker and Temporary Speakers often take the Chair in less controversial matters, but the Speaker remains responsible for overseeing them. Except in extraordinary circumstances, the Speaker always takes the Chair during Question Time and for more important occasions, such as the presentation of the Budget by the Treasurer and the Leader of the Opposition's speech in reply. The Speaker also can issue rulings of a substantive nature which sets precedents for the proceedings of the House. Outside the Chamber the Speaker continues to deal with many procedural matters which include; deliberating over matters of privileges, managing and training the Deputy Speaker and Temporary Speakers, consideration of dissent motions, and chairing meetings of the Committee of Legislative Assembly (discussed in section 5). Complexities of Impartiality All Members are entitled to expect that, even though the Speaker belongs to and is nominated to the position by a political party, their functions will be carried out impartially. At the same time, a Speaker is entitled to expect support from all Members regardless of 1 Standing Rules and Orders of the Legislative Assembly, Effective from 31/08/2004 (amended 4 June 2013), http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/assembly/procedures/StandingRules&amp;Orders.pdf Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 5 of 10 their party. In order for this to be seriously entertained the Speaker must be adequately resourced to do so, including the ability to seek independent advice and appoint independent and appropriately qualified staff under the Speaker's control The challenge of this role cannot be underestimated, especially in the Queensland Legislature that has been dominated by the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		executive arm of government since the abolition of the upper house in 1922. Vitally, the Speaker's role remains of central importance to the Westminster system of governance and is why the position necessitates a person of considerable parliamentary experience. Ultimately, balancing the vested interests of major political parties in an adversarial environment requires a high degree of skill, diplomacy, and character. At stake is our system of parliamentary democracy. In summary the procedural role can be summarised by the following duties: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Presiding in the Chamber over debate.</li> <li>• Continuing to develop an extensive and contemporary understanding of the application of Parliamentary privilege, procedures and constitutional law.</li> <li>• Responsibility for selection of the panel of Temporary Speakers.</li> <li>• Training and continual education for the panel.</li> <li>• Educational support for Members of Parliament in parliamentary procedures</li> <li>• Maintaining updated knowledge of legislative program with briefings and advice on content of bills before the House</li> <li>• Maintaining updated knowledge of issues likely to provoke sub judice considerations</li> <li>• Presiding as Chair of the CLA (discussed in section 4).</li> </ul> 5. RESPONSIBILITIES UNDER LEGISLATION A complete list of legislation involving responsibilities of the Speaker has been included in Appendix 1. However, for the purposes of brevity, the most common legal requirements are as follows. Chairperson of the Committee of the Legislative Assembly Distinct from presiding over the Legislative Assembly, the Speaker is also chair of the statutory committee known as the Committee of the Legislative Assembly (CLA). This committee is established under the Parliament of Queensland Act 2001, and the chairing of which is a further duty of the Speaker. The CLA is the only committee of the Parliament which has Executive government MPs appointed to its membership. The committee is often referred to as a "board of management" with responsibilities over the major policies affecting the Parliamentary Service. Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 6 Of 10 The Speaker subscribes to the view that any board of management position requires an understanding of corporate governance

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		responsibilities as expected of directors of a company. The Speaker as chair and committee member seeks to apply this standard in regard to exercising her duties. The CLA has the following areas of responsibility: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) the ethical conduct of members;</li> <li>(b) parliamentary powers, rights and immunities;</li> <li>(c) standing rules and orders about the conduct of business by, and the practices and the procedures of, the Assembly and its committees;</li> <li>(d) any other matters for which the committee is given</li> </ul> Oversight of Integrity Given the Speaker's function as an independent officer of Parliament, the officeholder has significant duties in relation to upholding integrity measures within what is broadly termed Queensland's integrity institutions. These include the Office of the Auditor-General, Integrity Commissioner, Ombudsman, and Information Commissioner and involve: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Oaths of appointments.</li> <li>• Receiving and communicating reports from the Auditor- General and Ombudsman of Queensland.</li> <li>• Performing the role of Registrar for Declarations of Interests for chief officers of these integrity organisations.</li> <li>• Appointing Parliamentary Commissioners.</li> </ul> Parliament Whilst the Parliamentary role of the Speaker has been canvassed in sections 3 and 4 of this submission, I think it prudent to highlight some other roles which are clearly defined under the legislation. Although not an exhaustive list these include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Issuing of summons for members and non-members to attend the Assembly as dictated by occasion.</li> <li>• Issuing of Speaker's warrants</li> <li>• Issuing writs for a Member's election</li> <li>• Upholding the requirements of orderly conduct by Members</li> <li>• Employer of the Clerk under the Industrial Relations Act</li> </ul> Security of Parliament The Parliamentary Service Act 1988 (PSA) and the Standing Rules and Orders of the Legislative Assembly place significant responsibilities on the Speaker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Security and behaviour of all persons within the entirety of the Parliamentary Precinct including the chamber and galleries of the Legislative Assembly.</li> <li>• Issuing directions and by-laws under the PSA.</li> </ul> Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 7 of 10

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Overseeing the operation and activities of the Office of Speaker</li> </ul> The Speaker is responsible for the General Security Plan (GSP) for the Parliament and also for the making of bylaws under the Parliamentary Service Act 1988 relating to the security of the Parliament. The authorities for the GSP, under which security staff then act, are embedded in the Speaker's role in legislation and Standing Orders. It is vital that the Speaker maintains a thorough knowledge of these authorities as the Speaker can issue directions which empower security staff to take certain actions. These directions must be lawfully made in order to appropriately empower security staff on the precinct and prevent them from being sued. For example, historically there was a police officer successfully sued for executing an invalid Speaker's warrant. In addition to the above snapshot of some of the legislative matters involving the Speaker, Appendix 2 records a list of the common handbooks and guidelines that also involve the Speaker's attention and involvement. 6. REMUNERATION The purpose of this submission is not to recommend a suitable remuneration for the role of Speaker but to present comparative research in other jurisdictions as to how this is approached. This reveals examples of how the Speaker's role and responsibilities, as well as qualifications required as a highly experienced parliamentarian, are considered as distinct to a Member of the Legislative Assembly who does not hold an additional parliamentary office. As such, this section will not address the current entitlements of Members of Parliament ie. base salary, allowance to members/ electorate allowance, miscellaneous allowance, travel allowance and other minor entitlements; but will instead address the remuneration pertaining solely to the Speaker as the senior most officeholder of the Parliament. Additional Salary In June this year the federal remuneration tribunal issued its latest guidance on additional salary rates for parliamentary office holders. This determination, issued on the 18 of June 2013, once again confirmed the additional salary component of the Speaker of the House of Representatives (and President of the Senate) to be 75% of a member's base salary. Although the Speaker of the House of Representatives is a very similar position to the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly in Queensland, there are a few distinct differences. As Queensland is a unicameral parliament, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly does not share any responsibilities with an upper house/ Senate. The absence of any house of review therefore

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		reinforces the absolute importance of an impartial and resourced Speaker who Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 8 of 10 presides over the only chamber of Parliament and must chair proceedings to ensure the integrity of the Parliament. The practice of providing additional salary for the completion of duties in addition to those of an elected local member is not only compensation for further work, but a tangible recognition of the value those offices bring to our democratic system of governance. It is in considering this that I believe the practice of providing an additional salary based on a ratio of base salary should continue; obviously particularised for each parliamentary office holder. This should be clearly apportioned by seniority of office and duties required to be performed. The importance of the role is also acknowledged by the position of the 'Presiding Officer of the State legislatures' (#24) in the Commonwealth Table Order of Precedence; where they rank directly before Members of State Executive Councils (#25) and Leaders of State Oppositions (#26). Whilst precedence orders are typically used for event protocols, when ranking parliamentary and government office holders, it is a clear measure of the formal importance of the role to our State and Commonwealth systems of government. Although all other Australian States have bicameral Parliaments, in which some duties are shared between the presiding officers of each house, each State has seen fit to remunerate the presiding offices with additional salary as a percentage of the base salary afforded to all members.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		State	Comparable office	Additional Salary (as a % of MP base salary)
		SA	Executive council ministers and the Leader of Opposition receive same amount	75%
		New South Wales	Other ministers and the Leader of Opposition receive same amount	57%
		Victoria		65% (plus a further 12% as expense of office allowance)
		Western Australia		66%
		Commonwealth	Cabinet Minister who is Manager of Government business, Leader of the house, President of the Senate	75%
The ratio apportioned to the office by other jurisdictions obviously reflects the seniority of the Speakership and also the centrality and importance the office plays in the Westminster system of governance. Given the ratios have withstood several consecutive determinations Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 9 of 10 at the federal level<sup>12,3</sup>, I hope this information is useful in your determinations regarding the office of Speaker in Queensland. Increased costs due to office Further to the issue of salary in acknowledgement of the extra duties, responsibility and engagement requirements of the office, is that of allowances. Currently the Speaker is afforded an 'Expense of Office Allowance' ($8,701pa.) with which the Speaker has complete discretion. While the Office of Speaker has a budget assigned by the Committee of the Legislative Assembly and is subject to several approval authorities by the Clerk, the Speaker's Expense of Office allowance is the only group of finances the Speaker has expenditure authority over. It is simply an allowance extended to the Speaker for the increased expenses that are expected to be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		incurred due to the fact they hold the office and is important to ensure independence in the role. Examples of the types of expenses which have been incurred are; meals away from home whilst performing duties, considerably higher telecommunication costs, and community engagement resources. 2 Remuneration Tribunal, Determination 2012/03: Parliamentary additional salary and related matters, 13 March 2012, viewed 2/9/2013, http://www.remtribunal.gov.au/data/assets/pdf file/0019/12673/2012-03-Determination.pdf 3 Remuneration Tribunal, Determination 2013/13: Members of Parliament - Base Salary, Additional Salary for Parliamentary Office Holders, and Related Matters, 18 June 2013, viewed 2/9/2013, http://www.remtribunal.gov.au/data/ assets/ pdf file/ 0003/17985/2013-13-Determination.pdf Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker Page 10 of 10

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		7. Appendix 1: Legislation involving the Speaker <hr/> <table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th data-bbox="593 459 952 480">Act or Bill</th> <th data-bbox="1265 459 1413 480">Link to information</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 499 952 520">Appropriation (Parliament) Bill 2011</td> <td data-bbox="969 499 1503 520">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/Bills/53PDF/2011/ApproParlB11.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 539 952 580">Auditor-General Act 2009 (Reprinted as in force on 9 September 2011)</td> <td data-bbox="969 539 1547 560">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/A/AuditGenR09.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 600 952 620">Auditor-General Regulation 2009</td> <td data-bbox="969 600 1547 620">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/A/AuditGenR09.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 632 952 652">Constitution Act 1867</td> <td data-bbox="969 632 1541 652">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1867.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 663 952 684">Constitution Act Amendment Act 1890</td> <td data-bbox="969 663 1541 684">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1890.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 695 952 716">Constitution Act Amendment Act 1934</td> <td data-bbox="969 695 1541 716">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1934.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 727 952 748">Constitution of Queensland 2001</td> <td data-bbox="969 727 1547 748">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstofQA01.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 759 952 780">Crime and Misconduct Act 2001</td> <td data-bbox="969 759 1581 780">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CrimeandMisA01.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 791 952 812">Crime and Misconduct Regulation 2005</td> <td data-bbox="969 791 1581 812">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CrimeandMisR05.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 823 952 844">Criminal Code</td> <td data-bbox="969 823 1541 844">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CriminCode.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 855 952 876">Criminal Code amendment</td> <td data-bbox="969 855 1581 876">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/Bills/54PDF/2012/CrLFalsEvAmdB12_AinC.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 887 952 908">Financial Accountability Act 2009</td> <td data-bbox="969 887 1547 908">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccountA09.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 919 952 940">Financial Accountability Regulation 2009</td> <td data-bbox="969 919 1547 940">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccountR09.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 951 952 976">Financial and Performance Management Standard 2009</td> <td data-bbox="969 951 1630 971">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccPManSt09.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 995 952 1016">Information Privacy Regulation 2009</td> <td data-bbox="969 995 1541 1016">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/InfoPrivR09.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="593 1027 952 1048">Information Privacy Act 2009</td> <td data-bbox="969 1027 1541 1048">http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/InfoPrivA09.pdf</td> </tr> </tbody> </table> <hr/> Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker - Appendix 1 Page 1 of 2	Act or Bill	Link to information	Appropriation (Parliament) Bill 2011	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/Bills/53PDF/2011/ApproParlB11.pdf	Auditor-General Act 2009 (Reprinted as in force on 9 September 2011)	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/A/AuditGenR09.pdf	Auditor-General Regulation 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/A/AuditGenR09.pdf	Constitution Act 1867	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1867.pdf	Constitution Act Amendment Act 1890	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1890.pdf	Constitution Act Amendment Act 1934	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1934.pdf	Constitution of Queensland 2001	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstofQA01.pdf	Crime and Misconduct Act 2001	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CrimeandMisA01.pdf	Crime and Misconduct Regulation 2005	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CrimeandMisR05.pdf	Criminal Code	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CriminCode.pdf	Criminal Code amendment	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/Bills/54PDF/2012/CrLFalsEvAmdB12_AinC.pdf	Financial Accountability Act 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccountA09.pdf	Financial Accountability Regulation 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccountR09.pdf	Financial and Performance Management Standard 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccPManSt09.pdf	Information Privacy Regulation 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/InfoPrivR09.pdf	Information Privacy Act 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/InfoPrivA09.pdf
Act or Bill	Link to information
Appropriation (Parliament) Bill 2011	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/Bills/53PDF/2011/ApproParlB11.pdf
Auditor-General Act 2009 (Reprinted as in force on 9 September 2011)	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/A/AuditGenR09.pdf
Auditor-General Regulation 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/A/AuditGenR09.pdf
Constitution Act 1867	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1867.pdf
Constitution Act Amendment Act 1890	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1890.pdf
Constitution Act Amendment Act 1934	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstA1934.pdf
Constitution of Queensland 2001	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/ConstofQA01.pdf
Crime and Misconduct Act 2001	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CrimeandMisA01.pdf
Crime and Misconduct Regulation 2005	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CrimeandMisR05.pdf
Criminal Code	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/C/CriminCode.pdf
Criminal Code amendment	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/Bills/54PDF/2012/CrLFalsEvAmdB12_AinC.pdf
Financial Accountability Act 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccountA09.pdf
Financial Accountability Regulation 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccountR09.pdf
Financial and Performance Management Standard 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/F/FinAccPManSt09.pdf
Information Privacy Regulation 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/InfoPrivR09.pdf
Information Privacy Act 2009	http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/InfoPrivA09.pdf

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Integrity Act 2009 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/IntegrityA09.pdf Integrity Regulation 2011 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/I/IntegrityR11.pdf Ombudsman Act 2001 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/O/OmbudsA01.pdf Parliamentary Service Act 1988 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/P/ParliServA88.pdf Parliamentary Service By-law 2013 https://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/P/ParliServB13.pdf Parliamentary Service Rule 2010 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/P/ParliServRu10.pdf Parliament of Queensland Act 2001 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/P/ParliaQA01.pdf Parliament of Queensland Regulation 2012 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/P/ParliaQR12.pdf Right to Information Act 2009 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/R/RightInfoA09.pdf Right to Information Regulation 2009 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/R/RightInfoR09.pdf Standing Orders - as at May 2012 http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/assembly/procedures/StandingRules&amp;Orders.pdf Electoral Act, Electoral Act 1992 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/E/ElectoralA92.pdf http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/E/ElectoralR02.pdf Public Interest Disclosure Act http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/CURRENT/P/PubIntDisA10.pdf Public Service Ethics Act 1994 http://www.legislation.qld.gov.au/LEGISLTN/SLS/1999/99SL302.pdf
		<hr/> Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker - Appendix 1 Page 2 of 2

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		8. Appendix 2: Guidelines requiring involvement of the Speaker <hr/> <table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th data-bbox="589 485 913 517">Handbook / Guideline</th> <th data-bbox="913 485 1630 517">Link to information</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 517 913 549">Code Of Ethical Standards -</td> <td data-bbox="913 517 1630 549">http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/committees/CLA/2009/CES2009.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 549 913 612">Member's Entitlements Handbook</td> <td data-bbox="913 549 1630 612">http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/MembersEntitlementsHandbook.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 612 913 644">Member's Information Manual</td> <td data-bbox="913 612 1630 644">http://intranet/view/members/informationmanual/MembersInformationManual.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 644 913 708">Member's Office Support Handbook</td> <td data-bbox="913 644 1630 708">http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/Members%20Office%20Support%20Handbook.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 708 913 772">Parliamentary Procedures Handbook</td> <td data-bbox="913 708 1630 772">http://www.premiers.qld.gov.au/publications/categories/policies-and-codes/handbooks/parl-proc-handbook.aspx</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 772 913 804">Register of Member's Interests</td> <td data-bbox="913 772 1630 804">http://intranet/view/members/register_interest.asp</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 804 913 836">Financial delegations</td> <td data-bbox="913 804 1630 836">http://intranet/view/corporate/documents/policyDocuments/clerk/FinancialDelegations.pdf</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="589 836 913 932">Financial guidelines</td> <td data-bbox="913 836 1630 932">http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/Speakers%20Guidelines.pdf#xml=http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/internetsearch/isysquery/c99b8ce2-056a-40a0-b2ac-23f1e5951273/10/hilite/</td> </tr> </tbody> </table> Remuneration for the parliamentary office of Speaker - Appendix 2 Page 1 of 1	Handbook / Guideline	Link to information	Code Of Ethical Standards -	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/committees/CLA/2009/CES2009.pdf	Member's Entitlements Handbook	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/MembersEntitlementsHandbook.pdf	Member's Information Manual	http://intranet/view/members/informationmanual/MembersInformationManual.pdf	Member's Office Support Handbook	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/Members%20Office%20Support%20Handbook.pdf	Parliamentary Procedures Handbook	http://www.premiers.qld.gov.au/publications/categories/policies-and-codes/handbooks/parl-proc-handbook.aspx	Register of Member's Interests	http://intranet/view/members/register_interest.asp	Financial delegations	http://intranet/view/corporate/documents/policyDocuments/clerk/FinancialDelegations.pdf	Financial guidelines	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/Speakers%20Guidelines.pdf#xml=http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/internetsearch/isysquery/c99b8ce2-056a-40a0-b2ac-23f1e5951273/10/hilite/
Handbook / Guideline	Link to information
Code Of Ethical Standards -	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/committees/CLA/2009/CES2009.pdf
Member's Entitlements Handbook	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/MembersEntitlementsHandbook.pdf
Member's Information Manual	http://intranet/view/members/informationmanual/MembersInformationManual.pdf
Member's Office Support Handbook	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/Members%20Office%20Support%20Handbook.pdf
Parliamentary Procedures Handbook	http://www.premiers.qld.gov.au/publications/categories/policies-and-codes/handbooks/parl-proc-handbook.aspx
Register of Member's Interests	http://intranet/view/members/register_interest.asp
Financial delegations	http://intranet/view/corporate/documents/policyDocuments/clerk/FinancialDelegations.pdf
Financial guidelines	http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/documents/Members/entitlements/Speakers%20Guidelines.pdf#xml=http://www.parliament.qld.gov.au/internetsearch/isysquery/c99b8ce2-056a-40a0-b2ac-23f1e5951273/10/hilite/
1629	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1630	10/09/2013	Submission in relation to a Discussion Paper on Remuneration of members and former members of the Queensland Legislative Assembly Released by Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Submission on current salary levels. Queensland Parliamentarians are currently well remunerated when compared to overall Australian population; they are in the top 1% of wage earners in Australia, the average Aust salary is $72, 436 per annum and Queensland $86,096. Therefore there is no impediment, when assessing their current base salary, to 99% of Queenslanders running for Parliament. Compared to the rest of The World's Parliaments the Queensland Parliamentarians are also at or very near the top of the pay scale. They sit in Parliament for less days then the majority of democratic Parliaments. Recently the Members of Federal Parliament received a large salary increase for which the Members gave up certain allowances they were entitled to while in and after they left Parliament. Queensland Parliamentarians did not give up or were required to forfeit any of their current entitlements. For approximately 20 years the general workforce, to gain pay rises, has had to demonstrate to their employer and or an Independent Tribunal productivity increases to obtain a pay rises. The Members of Parliament have never had to demonstrate an increase in their productivity t o obtain an increase. This needs to be bought into line with general community standards by showing an increase in productivity to justify any future salary increases. Submission on Allowances. The Members current allowances are not currently audited by the Queensland Auditor General. Like all Queensland Government operations all Members expenditures should be audited so that the electors can have faith that the expenses are justified. Parliamentarians Travel Allowances are well above community standards for companies and Queensland Government employees.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Parliamentarians, at a minimum, should be required to submit receipts for accommodation with an upper limit, for accommodation. Again the standard Queensland Public Sector standards would be a guide to levels of accommodation allowances for different regions of Queensland and Australia. S for meal allowances again they could be linked to the Queensland Government employees rates. The parliamentarian is already well remunerated via "Miscellaneous Allowances" (if it is to remain) for reciprocal entertainment &amp; meals while on duty. Again this allowance is over and above the normal community standard. Submission On Parliamentarians Superannuation scheme. The current Superannuation scheme, similar to Salaries and allowances is well above community standards. In our modern world no employee has a guaranteed job for life. The current superannuation scheme needs to be bought in line with community standards by looking at <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• the public contribution to the scheme,</li> <li>• changing from a Defined Benefit scheme to an Accumulation scheme, as the Commonwealth Parliament has adopted several years ago.</li> </ul> In conclusion <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. I believe that the Queensland Parliamentarians are currently very well remunerated as they amongst the highest paid employees in the State and that no further salary increase are justified.</li> <li>2. Consideration needs to be given, before any further pay rises are granted, to assessing and measuring productivity increases made by the Parliament and the Parliamentarians</li> <li>3. The allowances should be an auditable item similar to any other Queensland Government expenses.</li> <li>4. Their very generous Superannuation scheme needs to be bought into line with community standards by closing the Defined Benefit scheme and only having an accumulation scheme for future incumbents with the option and the public contribution to that scheme should be bought into alignment with current Public Service scheme.</li> <li>5. All entitlements and benefits after leaving office should be ceased.</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1631	10/09/2013	A combination of salary and a limited expense allowance is an appropriate remuneration for Qld MP's. Presently an MP on the basic salary and allowances package as shown on your website, not including travel allowance, will receive in the vicinity of $209,000.00 per annum. This is a hugely generous amount and it is simply unconscionable that Qld politicians may be in line for a salary increase of 42%. There is absolutely no justification for an increase of this magnitude. In light of the Qld government's recent and planned reduction in public sector employees it would be grossly hypocritical of them to now accept a salary/allowance increase. Queensland has high unemployment. A vast number of Queenslanders are subsisting on very low incomes and those fortunate enough to be in the workforce can only hope to negotiate small wage increases of 3 – 4% over a specified period. What justification is there for politicians to be treated any differently from any other employee? Yes they may be working at a higher level in government but they're not saving lives, they're not generous humanitarians, most are invisible until an election rolls around. Strict guidelines should be in place articulating what a politician's allowances can be used for and additionally they should be accountable for allowances received as is the case with most employees. After all they are our employees we the taxpayer and electors of politicians. Allowances should not be paid in advance but rather as a re-imbusement. Evidence of acceptable expenditure should be a requirement of re-imbusement. Give a politician a lump sum and of course they'll spend it, that's the nature of the beast. Lack of submissions to the Tribunal should not be construed as approval for the increase but rather one of resignation that it is simply a fait accompli. Furthermore it was not widely publicized that submissions could be made. I only read about it in yesterday's Courier Mail, one day before submissions closed.
1632	10/09/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. Answer: Yes. Just like normal employees, remuneration should be appropriate to the responsibilities. At present the remuneration in actual direct $s is below what would be paid in other jobs of similar responsibilities. Having said that, $ remuneration should be discounted somewhat because politicians only say and do what the Party allows them to, without taking any personal responsibility. They also do not run as much personal risk as outside workers of being sacked immediately when they make monumental, extremely expensive incorrect decisions. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. Answer: Costs associated with actual Parliamentary/Government Business, paid under the same conditions and rates as other Public Servants. If the allowance is not available to Public Servants then MPs should not get it either.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Reasonable costs when travelling on official business, paid under the same conditions and rates as other Public Servants. If the allowance is not available to Public Servants then MPs should not get it either. Some printing and postage. Only to inform constituents of legislated government policy, actions, benefits to constituents, with no mention of, or credit given to, the politician or Party. Not to canvas Party proposals, or to present the politician in a favourable light (such as saying "Printing costs covered by Joe Bloggs MP", Joe Bloggs is NOT covering the cost, the Taxpayer is). Not for glossy publications claiming credit for getting this or that built. If an individual politician or Party wishes to claim credit then they should cover the cost of publicising that opinion. Politicians exploit this printing allowance for Party political and personal benefit, especially around election time. Phone costs associated with Parliamentary or Government business. It should not cover the cost of MPs carrying on personal or Party discussions and business. At present I do not believe there is any such enforced rule. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? Answer: All allowances spending must be publicly explained, not hidden in some miscellaneous category. When costs incurred by Members are paid there is a record made of that payment, so that record must be made public. MPs must not be allowed to keep any unspent allowances, they must be returned to Government. Use it legitimately or lose it! Travel and Accommodation allowances should be paid on the basis of actual cost. Currently I believe travel and accommodation is paid as a set amount irrespective of whether or not the cost is actually incurred by the MP. If an MP does not actually incur the cost of the allowance they should not be allowed to pocket the difference between the allowance paid and the actual cost. Travel and accommodation allowances should not be any better than as laid out for average (not high ranking) Public Servants. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? Answer: There should be no automatic, benchmarked pay rises for MPs. All politicians pay claims should be argued before a public industrial tribunal, just as has to be done by other employees. They could argue their case personally or have their "union" (to which they would pay union dues) present their case for them. Other employees have to argue their worth relevant to other employees so MPs should also have to do this if they want to increase their remuneration. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Answer: MPs are really nothing more nor less than Public Servants. As such they should have exactly the same conditions of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		employment as Public Servants. MPs should not be entitled to, nor paid, any allowances which are not available to other Public Servants in the course of their employment. Just as for other Public Servants, these entitlements should cease when their employment is terminated. MPs should not be entitled to carry these over into life outside Parliament. Employees who get staff discount and other perks during their employment have those things removed when they cease working for that employer, so that should apply to MPs. Politicians should have exactly the same Superannuation and pension rights and conditions as other employees, no more no less. I believe Politicians have a very difficult job and should get just recompense, but I also believe there are other members of the community whose jobs are more stressful, dangerous, difficult and undervalued than MPs. People such as Police, Firefighters, Nurses, Teachers, to name a few, have a far more difficult and stressful task, sometimes putting their own safety and lives at risk, than MPs and have to fight tooth and nail in a Tribunal for better pay and conditions. MPs should not be treated any more favourably than these employees. I believe there is so much public outcry when politicians get increased remuneration, allowances and conditions because the perception is out there that they give themselves great rewards, or pass the buck to some group of people appointed by the MPs, whilst fighting to deny similar benefits to the people who employ them, the general public. I believe that if Politicians had to abide by the same rules as other workers then there would not be so much outcry in the community against them if they do prove they are worthy of increased pay and conditions. It cannot be argued that MPs need bigger and better remuneration than other employees because they have no certainty of continuing employment. They actually have more certainty than most other employees who can be sacked or retrenched immediately, not just every 3 years. If MPs do the right thing and are seen to be serving the electors, and not just themselves, their Party and their mates, than they will be re-elected time and time again. In conclusion I submit that there should not be a separate, so called Independent (but appointed by the politicians whose remuneration is under review) Remuneration Tribunal for MPs. Why should MPs not have to lodge submissions for increased pay and condition to the same tribunal, or whatever other body, as is required of other employees? The existence of this so called Independent Review Tribunal only serves to reinforce the public opinion that MPs think they are above the rules and restraints that MPs lay down for non-MPs because they think they are somehow better than non-MPs. Basically MPs should have to work and live by the same sets of standards as the ordinary employee has to work and live by.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1633	10/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1634	10/09/2013	I provide to you my submission for your deliberations regarding the responsibilities of an MP and their remuneration and allowances to fulfil their duties. I hope this document is of assistance. [personal information] Submission to the State MP Remuneration Tribunal for a new Queensland September 9,2013 Submission from: [personal information] Executive Summary This submission is intended to give an overview of the work of an MP and the use of wages and allowances in their duties, rather than to request a certain level of remuneration. I respect this will be undertaken independently. While allowances have always been accounted for to the Tax Office, I believe it is reasonable for people to want to know how electorate allowances are spent.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The principle of remitting allowances should be based upon accountability while also ensuring the methods of doing so are uncomplicated and not necessarily costly to implement. I have been a Member of Parliament for [personal information], and like many other MPs from across the political spectrum, I have consistently spent significantly more than I received in the form of an allowance in order to fulfil my duties in the electorate and as a [personal information]. I estimate that I have spent an average of $11,000 a year extra on my duties, over and above what I receive from allowances, which I have self-funded. (see appendix). The reasons for this includes there being a number of costs that the central Parliamentary Service does not pay, particularly for backfill for staff and additional training. The costs of communication, including postage, have risen, not fallen, and there has been a need to drive better electronic systems of correspondence management with tailored software which is not supplied. These are tools of the business to serve the area. It should always be recognised that there is a great diversity of electorates represented in the Queensland Parliament. All electorates are different. MPs and their staff are on the frontline and thus the flexibility of a discretionary pool allowance has allowed them to respond to electorate needs in ways which are more tailored than a central bureaucracy. Historically it has also been the case that many items of equipment, including furniture, were initially self-funded by MPs. For example, before Parliament House supplied laptops, I bought my own -as did others. I still run my own additional computer systems due to their greater flexibility for out-of-office management. I purchased approximately one third of the furniture in my office, including the meeting table and chairs, as Parliament would not provide them at the time. With this background then, I support: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A requirement for a cost effective and practical reporting mechanism where MPs report their expenditure;</li> <li>• Continuation of a flexible allowance in which an MP receives a lump sum to determine how they may best allocate their budget according to electorate requirements as discerned by the MP;</li> <li>• The ability for local MPs to shop locally rather than to centrally purchase consumables; and</li> </ul> The need for provision by Parliamentary Services of a number of core services which are not currently provided such as backfill while a staff member is on annual leave. If the allowances are cut as was initially proposed, I will continue to provide local services in my electorate from my own wages. This submission provides an overview of my work as a local MP as well as many years as a [personal information], and is informed by my office accounts. [personal information]

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		This document also provides reflections and feedback on: the changing work environment of electorate offices over the time I have been in Parliament; how MPs have adapted to meet those requirements; and the challenges centralised bureaucracies have in getting the balance right between accountability, cost effectiveness, and innovation. I would be happy to further discuss any of these matters with members of the Independent Remuneration Tribunal. The Work of an MP Local constituency work is one of the great privileges of the work MPs do. It is the human face of our advocacy, it is both challenging and rewarding, and the reality check upon people's higher ambition. No one in a democracy deserves to serve at a higher level unless they are willing to serve locally as well. An MP's local constituency work and parliamentary duties are both important. I have previously held [personal information] roles which I reference below as my previous expenses also reflect supporting these roles. A local MP's work involves the following aspects: Electorate roles <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Advocating &amp; helping problem solve for individual constituency needs</li> <li>• Advocating for local services and infrastructure</li> <li>• Engaging with community organisations -extensive attendance at functions &amp; events</li> <li>• Engaging with other tiers of Government re above</li> <li>• Manage communications - media and broader community</li> <li>• Managing and supporting staff</li> </ul> Parliamentary roles <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Shadow Ministry</li> <li>• Committee work</li> <li>• Research</li> <li>• Speeches</li> <li>• Policy work</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Background of existing allowance system There are vast differences between equipment and services which Federal, State and Local representatives receive directly through their respective bureaucracies. Any review of relative salary and entitlement systems needs to comprehensively map and recognise these differences. It also should be recognised that the different way Queensland MPs adapt their allowances to meet their specific electorate needs is also a reflection of the diversity of electorates and MPs, changing demographics and technology. It is also a response to a centralised Parliamentary bureaucracy which has been unwilling or unable to fund upgrades in technology or to meet local staffing requirements. To be fair, there have been budget constraints over many years on the Queensland Parliamentary Service. This has resulted in some MPs including myself responding by personally funding services from allowances and our wages. This is in contrast to other Parliamentary bureaucracies which would directly fund these expenses. This is why discretionary (pool) electorate allowances are important to support local constituency services. They have assisted me to fund a range of services or items not directly funded by Parliament: i.e. mobile phone for MP, internet, additional staff support, updated software, office cleaning, additional computers etc. It has also provided me with the opportunity of shopping locally and supporting my local retailers and service providers. More detail is provided below with regard to some specific areas below. Mobile phones - Queensland State MPs (with the exception of ministers/assistant ministers/or leaders) are completely responsible for buying their own mobile phones and paying their running costs. I pay for this phone from my electorate discretionary allowance. Unfortunately, like most systems, the abuses of a few people in the past have resulted in rules being rewritten to cover the whole, but not always effectively or practically. The current allowance system is a legacy of this. About 15 years ago, Parliament supplied handsets and directly paid the phone bills. Someone abused it and this service was changed to a mobile phone allowance of about $1000 per year. Since then, rather than being paid as a separate lump sum, this mobile phone allowance was incorporated into the discretionary (pooled) allowance MPs received to spend on various items. Letterheads - Parliament does supply parliamentary crested stock paper. I do not use this and have long engaged my local printers to print my own letterhead. This is a saving for Parliament but is an expense from my electorate allowance.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Home phone reimbursement - I consider this is an impractical allowance which is both costly for Parliament to administer and does not reflect the current communication plans many MPs pay for which allow them to operate while on the road and in the electorate. I have ceased claiming it as it would cost Parliament and my staff more to administer it than it would benefit in reimbursement. This seemed a waste of money and time. However, I recognise there may still be MPs in different circumstances who require assistance with home phone communications to fulfil their out-of-office electorate work, as mobile coverage at their homes may not be practical. Staff costs - The main staff salaries for two electorate officer positions are directly paid for by Parliament. However, Parliament does not pay for backfill in staff positions for the eight weeks of the year when one staff member is away on holidays. This means that under the current arrangements, if MPs didn't backfill and pay for supplementary staff from their allowances, staffing would be at half-strength. This is unfair for the staff member and local electorates. Some members manage this by closing their offices for longer periods over Christmas. This is not an option for all MPs or their electorates. [personal information] roles and responsibilities also places additional administrative burdens on electorate office staff and I have at times needed to employ casual part-time administrative staff to support this. Thus additional casual electorate office staff support has been one of the biggest cost imposts on the electorate allowance, [personal information]. In 2011/12 I expended more than $18,000 in additional staff costs. The Changing Electorate - At times the [personal information] has experienced high growth and high turnover with 55% of the electorate changing every five years. While the population growth rate has slowed, methods of communication in a diverse media market have become more varied and fractured. This requires more sophisticated and costly methods of communication systems to adapt to the changing market place. Communication costs are now more expensive, not less expensive. It is naive to assume that social media and emails are cheap because they aren't always identified with a per unit cost. However, they usually supplement, rather than replace, traditional mail. Electronic communications also require significant management by staff and the MP. It is the role of an MP to try and reach out to electors, and not wait for them to come to them. Appropriately this keeps MPs on their toes looking for effective and welcoming ways to reach and respond to the different demographics in their areas if the community is to be effectively represented.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		While electronic communication systems have provided many advantages to the mobile MP, they have also added significant workload for the MP and their staff. In addition to population growth, this is a reason I believe I have spent more on supplementing staffing in my office, software for administration of emails and other computer technology (i.e. iPads, laptops) not provided by Parliament House. Office dynamics: MPs &amp; staff - It is important to understand that the majority of MP work is mobile and spans beyond the normal working day. For the MP, this work is supported by electorate office based staff that provide the administrative backup during office hours. In addition, MPs spend time away from their electorates on Parliamentary duties, usually without their own direct staff support unless they are in a leadership or ministerial role. This organisational dynamic puts special challenges on the MP/staff communication which requires good systems and good will to operate. Final comments Thus any change to systems in how allowances are acquitted needs to be not only accountable but cost effective and easily administered not just at Parliament House but in the electorate office. It should be remembered that office staff numbers are small and not all existing staff will be trained in book keeping. Depending on how extensive a new compliance and reporting system is, it may incur external accounting and audit fees for electorate office budgets. Furthermore, similar to the tax office procedures, there should also be methods to remediate genuine mistakes and encourage a culture of voluntary rectification. We all want to see a system which has integrity and is workable. Appendix Allowances and expenses The amount received in allowances will vary depending on additional roles (ie shadow ministerial roles and associated parliamentary travel). The figures for 2011/2012 reflect these duties in extra travel allowances received and outgoings expended, in addition to as well as electorate duties. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• [personal information]</li> <li>• Difference of $25,000 in 2011/2012 was supplemented from Member's wage.</li> <li>• However, over a three year period average of $11,000 per year additional cost supplementation from wage to run electorate office and [personal information] roles</li> </ul>

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Summary of typical items I have funded through allowances <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Staff and contractor costs including backfill during leave</li> <li>• Staff training</li> <li>• Software management systems</li> <li>• Communication costs               <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ postage;</li> <li>○ mobile phones</li> <li>○ mobile internet data packs</li> <li>○ printing</li> <li>○ newsletters</li> </ul> </li> <li>• Donations to community groups</li> <li>• Some furniture</li> <li>• Some computers</li> <li>• Cleaning (external and internal office)</li> <li>• Office phone lines (partial) - two lines are inadequate with 3 people in the office so I have funded a third line</li> <li>• Car &amp; fuel (car allowance covers about quarter of cost)</li> <li>• Reimbursement of staff travel costs</li> <li>• Newspapers</li> <li>• Functions</li> <li>• Equipment insurance</li> <li>• Signage</li> <li>• Subscriptions</li> <li>• Meals at Parliament away from home</li> <li>• Colour photocopying</li> <li>• Constituent afternoon/morning teas</li> <li>• Bank fees for electorate office account</li> <li>• Additional travel costs</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1635	10/09/2013	1.It is appropriate to have a base salary plus bonuses for extra tasks/work/roles, and to have allowances relevant to the job eg: travel allowance to pay to get to parliament and around the electorate. However at present the amounts of all these are excessive and Australia can't afford it! 2.Expenses should be similar to what other's can be paid - living away from home allowance for time in Canberra, travel allowance, meal allowance with set upper limit per meal such as those used in the Defence or recommended by the ATO. 3.The salary is exceptionally high with earnings between $137G and $280G+. Allowances are not required to top up the salary. Allowances are set in every job and in the Defence (differences for different ranks) follow these guidelines or the ATO's guidelines of a fair approximation for allowances. Or leave off the allowances and allow the MPs to claim the allowance as a tax deduction. All receipts should be submitted to show the amount was spent appropriately. 4. The majority of people are earning around $50G a year - twice that would be appropriate for the MP - hence whilst our income is $50G - their's should be $100, not 5x the amount! 6. I think that the base pay and allowances need to be drastically reduced, but those who keep election promises should be given an extra bonus of at $5G per promise kept. Those who attend 95% of all parliament sessions (must be the whole session, not walk in for a few minutes then walk out) should also be given a bonus of $5G.
1636	10/09/2013	In order to determine a fair wage for backbenchers, it is important to look at what they actually have responsibilities for. It is very little. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- backbenchers have no real decision making power;</li> <li>- no formal academic qualifications are required to enter parliament;</li> <li>- most representations on behalf of members of the electorate are merely forwarded to ministers by a member of staff and the verbatim response provided to member;</li> <li>- their presence at parliament house is required so that they can vote as directed by the party;</li> <li>- they attend functions in their electorates more as ongoing electioneering than adding any real value from their presence.</li> <li>- I am well aware of the old saying "pay peanuts get monkeys". Unfortunately we feed our monkeys on caviar.</li> </ul> You should ask yourselves the question - "has the quality of representation improved with the massive pay rises that people like you have awarded politicians in the last decade?" The answer is clear but I guess that the perk of being on the remuneration

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		tribunal is worth preserving. If only you were truly independent.
1637	10/09/2013	Do you not think it is unwise to increase salaries of MPs during a time when the financial affairs of our country are not in order? Currently the mining sector has gone through a period where over 25000 people have lost employment. This has been within a year. Does this rate of unemployment not worry the people who should be MOST concerned about the welfare of their state/country? Admittedly some of the positions that were cut may have been extra unwanted fat. However the end result is many people out of work, some of which will not apply for the Dole and therefore not form part of the true unemployment figure which politicians often refer to. The true result is many people not contributing to the economy, and a large number of people now seeking the same work, having to take jobs at a level below their education level - as it is in places like India, all the while the politicians increase their wealth and status - without actually TRUELY contributing to the state of financial affairs of Australia. If you want more money - be prepared to generate better results - or get out and stop burdening the system further. The people who are getting the increased remunerations MUST be held accountable for their work. Reviewing the makeup of the MP remuneration, they must remember - others employed in the community outside of parliament yet still employed in executive positions DO NOT receive similar entitlements. Why create the gap? There does not appear to be any humbleness in this which will only create a larger rift... surely I am not the only person that can see this?
1638	10/09/2013	I believe the current salary and perks received are in extreme excess of what our MP's deserve. The fear that not having a high enough remuneration to attract the right people into office is a joke! We should be attracting people with passion for helping people the state and country not their wallets! There should be NO continued perks or remuneration once they leave office also! The job should be looked at like any other job because it is just that! Once a suitable remuneration has been established there should be no increase or changes allowed that are not also passed onto public servants. I believe that the MP's should not receive allowances , they should receive a salary and then any thing they need to spend money on related to their work should be from a budget allocated to their office. This should be auditable and managed like corporate cards in the government, forcing them to reconcile their spending often! Eliminating the possibility of this just adding to their fat bank accounts. To answer the Tribunal's questions: 1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. No, I believe that a salary should be paid with superannuation but with no allowances. Expenditure related specifically to their role should be paid with a budget that is reconciled so all expenses are itemised and justified. Other expenses like phone etc they can

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		claim on their tax like everyone else who uses a phone for work purposes. If they want a phone for work purposes only then pay for a mobile phone out of their budget. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. None, they should all be covered for under budget, things like travel, stationary mobile phone some meeting budget such catering etc. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? Force a budget to be reconciled like a corporate card and audited. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? What changes they make to their community for the better. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Any remuneration to "former" MP's, this should be abolished! They should be forced to live like all other Australians. In conclusion I would like to say our state MP's salary's should be brought back to more in line with other states or less, maybe around the 130,000 per year mark with formal roles and positions maxing out $200,000 to $250,00 total (including base salary). All allowances should be removed and replaced with budgets for their positions/electorates, where money that is not spent goes back to the state or maybe even rolls over every financial year and stays with the position and not the MP them self. Miscellaneous allowances should be removed as well as the travel allowance which should come out of their budget and minor entitlements to be removed also, such as telephone refunds, MP's should be forced to claim these things back on tax like the rest of us! As for MP's and former MP's receiving superannuation or pension benefits, this should be completely removed! Current MP's should receive only the same superannuation benefits that are received by public servants. Former MP's should no longer receive any funding at all as they are no longer employees. If they are completely out of money and have no job they can line up at center link like everybody else!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1639	10/09/2013	I apologise for this late submission but I have been away and only found out about your Tribunal today and that it closes for submissions tomorrow. I must declare myself at the very outset by saying that I think we have one level of government too many in Australia and the State Governments are a wasteful extravagance. As far back as when I was a teenager there seems to have been a continual stream of Royal Commissions/Inquiries into corruption at state level from ex Premier Burke in WA to the present ICAC Inquiry in NSW. More recently in Qld we have seen the unashamed nepotism of the Newman government in the Transport Dept in particular which has cost Qld taxpayers heaps. Having said that - If you pay peanuts you get monkeys. In broad terms(because of the time constraints) I ask you to consider: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>➔ Base salary for MPs be $250,000 pa.</li> <li>➔ Parliamentary Secretaries, Ministers and Premier's salaries be 5,10 and 20% above MP salary.</li> <li>➔ No extra remuneration for sitting on committees.</li> <li>➔ Every MP to be provided with one suitably staffed and equipped electoral office.</li> <li>➔ All allowances be replaced by budgets for travel and entertainment which need to be scrutinised and approved by Treasury in advance. No over budget expenses should be tolerated.</li> <li>➔ Mileage allowance to be paid for privately owned vehicles in accordance with present transport and Main Road schedules. Consideration may also be given to supplying members with a "company" car for use within their electorate. These car would be clearly marked with a large government logo and should not be taken outside of the electorate without the prior written consent of the Treasurer or his nominee.</li> <li>➔ Overseas junkets, alias trade missions etc should be banned. Trade negotiations should be left to the professionals at Austrade. Overseas business is the province of the Commonwealth.</li> <li>➔ Signs saying "this project was funded by Qld Govt" should be discontinued or paid for by the political party in government at the time as they are really just party political advertisements.</li> <li>➔ All prospective members of parliament should be investigated well before they receive their parties nomination by CMC or police and ATO to avoid people like S. Driscoll, MP for Redcliffe and P. Dowling, MP for Redlands from sullyng our government. It is unbelievable that this "red wine willie" could masquerade as chair of the Ethics Committee.</li> <li>➔ On retirement from parliament: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>⤴ I think that the parliamentary pension scheme was abandoned by the previous government for new members. Those who were members of parliament before the abandonment still receive their entitlements.</li> <li>⤴ Being a politician is a risky career so there needs to be some reward for service to the state.</li> <li>⤴ From now on a one termer would get no pension and little super.</li> <li>⤴ The chances of being re employed would depend on a number of things including age, trade, profession, experience etc.</li> <li>⤴ Someone who has been a member for some years and retires at 65 should have enough super for future financial security.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>⤴ It is more the younger ones with a family and a short term in parliament that need some “protection” or incentive to put in for the job and all parliaments need people from all age groups to be truly representative of all the people.</li> <li>⤴ I am not sure what the answer is yet but perhaps something like a means tested pension for a period to allow these younger and family mothers and fathers to retrain or whatever to seek employment.</li> <li>⤴ No ex parliamentarian or their family should be allowed to be a lobbyist or be a member of board of any government corporation for 10 years after leaving parliament. The “jobs for the boys” rewards have to be expunged. I am not sure that lobbyists should be allowed at all. I have had many successful discussions with many Ministers and MPs over a long time as an industry representative and everything was transparent and bribe free. I think we still have one ex State Parliamentarian behind bars for corruption and I think the mere mention of lobbyists muddies the water.</li> <li>⤴ There needs to be some discussion about ethics and standards raised. The present situation where P. Dowling's jilted girl friend blew the whistle on him and his disgraceful conduct (I am not a prude) and he confesses to everything in parliament and yet the Premier defends Dowling and says the matter is being investigated !! Hey he has already confessed Mr Premier. Grubs like Dowling should be expelled from parliament and receive no consideration as far as pension is concerned. This is a clear demonstration of what happens when Caesar judges Caesar – surely CMC should be judging Caesar or send him back to the electorate immediately for their verdict seeing his party leader has such confidence in him.</li> </ul> Some of my comments may seem to be outside your terms of reference but I hope you find them relevant and helpful.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1640	10/09/2013	Queensland Nurses' Union Remuneration of members and former members of the Queensland Legislative Assembly Submission to the Minister for Health The Honorable Lawrence Springborg MLA September, 2013 The Queensland Nurses' Union (the QNU) thanks the Minister for providing this opportunity to comment on the establishment and operation of the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal (the tribunal). The QNU covers all categories of workers who make up the nursing workforce in Queensland including registered nurses, registered midwives, enrolled nurses and assistants in nursing who are employed in the public, private and not-for-profit health sectors including aged care. Our more than 50,000 members work across a variety of settings from single person operations to large health and non-health institutions, and in a full range of classifications from entry level trainees to senior management. The vast majority of nurses in Queensland are members of the QNU. These workers are subject to the terms and conditions set out in industrial awards and agreements. Remuneration Tribunal Review The Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Act 2013 established the tribunal to make determinations on remuneration for members and former members of the Queensland Legislative Assembly (MPs) guided by a set of principles based on their role functions and responsibilities. The QNU provides some general comments in respect to question 4 of the Discussion Paper - Review of Members and Former Members of the Queensland Legislative Assembly (the discussion paper) on the introduction of the scheme and we note that as with many of the LNP government's public inquiries, there has again been a very limited timeframe in which to give full consideration to the matter. Question 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? We accept that MPs should receive a level of remuneration that reflects the duties and responsibilities of the role. Aside from the additional responsibilities associated with appointment to a parliamentary office or as a Minister or Shadow Minister -

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		parliamentarians have two significant groups of work. First, they must meet the ongoing demands of their electorate and secondly they must attend to their many, increasingly diverse and consuming responsibilities in the Parliament (Commonwealth Remuneration Tribunal, 2011). The processes of government would be unworkable without their commitment. While we recognise that there are diverse views within the community about the nature of the work and remuneration of MPs, we believe that an effective public administration of capable parliamentarians is essential to representative democracy. It is also essential that parliamentarians meet the same standards of wage restraint that this government has imposed on public sector workers. Queensland taxpayers elect and pay for these positions. If, as a means of fiscal restraint, the LNP had to make massive cuts to public sector jobs, then there are no circumstances that justify excessive increases to MPs' remuneration. Clearly, the establishment of the tribunal is intended to appease the public backlash against the proposed increases that would have seen MPs receive significant wage rises. This comes at a time when the LNP government has cut 14,000 jobs and denied modest wage increases to public sector workers ostensibly because the economy cannot support such a level of spending. If the tribunal acts in good faith, then it must hold MPs accountable to the same standards they set for state government employees responsible for providing public services. In our view, MPs should receive the same level of increase as that outlined in the state government's wages policy (for both the base salary and allowances). 1 The Commonwealth Remuneration Tribunal commented in its report (2011) that any linkages between state and federal salaries should be severed as they are no longer appropriate. We concur with this observation. Enterprise bargaining replaced centralised wage fixation for most Australian workers 20 years ago.2 Consistent with that approach, it is appropriate that states undertake their own mechanism for setting the salaries and allowances for MPs. According to the discussion paper (p. 1) the tribunal decisions cannot be challenged or appealed. Determination will be tabled in the Queensland parliament and made publically available on the tribunal's website. We suggest that in the interests of transparency, the tribunal must also provide a statement of reasons and the evidence it took into account for each determination it makes in relation to its decision. The Industrial Relations (Fair Work Act Harmonisation) and Other Legislation Amendment Bill 2012 amended the Industrial Relations Act 1999 to require the Queensland Industrial Relations Commission (QIRC) to give consideration to the financial position of the State, individual public sector entities, the State's fiscal strategy and public revenue when making decisions on wages and other entitlements. If the QIRC must uphold this requirement for state public sector employees, then the tribunal must apply the same principles to the remuneration of MPs. In responding to the Independent Commission of Audit, the LNP government accepted nearly all of the 155 recommendations that apparently represent 'the most significant transformation of the public sector in Queensland for four decades. It is a plan for better government services for Queenslanders by increasing productivity and enhancing service delivery.' (Queensland Government,

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		2013, p.2) By any measure then, the tribunal must impose on MPs the same constraints that the LNP government has enforced in the public sector and adopt a remuneration regime that is consistent and fair. Recommendations The QNU recommends that the tribunal: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>· aligns increases in the annual base salary and allowances to the government's wages policy for the public sector;</li> <li>· discontinues any nexus with federal counterparts;</li> <li>· provides a statement of reasons and evidence for each determination it makes in relation to its decision.</li> </ul> 1 In February, the LNP government announced that a new Government Wages policy for the Queensland public sector (excluding Government Owned Corporations) would lower the existing ceiling from up to 3% per annum (determined in May 2012), to between 2.2% and 2.5% per annum inclusive of productivity. Departments will be funded for 2.2%, with cashable savings as a result of productivity allowing for offers up to 2.5% per annum. 2 Each year, unions apply to increase minimum award wage rates during the Fair Work Commission's annual wage review process. This is to ensure the award safety net keeps pace with living costs. Not all employees are in workplaces where enterprise bargaining is the main mechanism for establishing pay increases, so the safety net review is critical to ensure all Australian workers receive fair reward for their labour. References            Queensland Government (2013) Response to the Independent Commission of Audit Final Report p.2)            Commonwealth Remuneration Tribunal (2011) Review of the Remuneration of Members of Parliament Initial Report retrieved from http://www.remtribunal.gov.au/determinations-and-statements/parliamentarians)
1641	10/09/2013	Submission to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal On making my submission I would like to say that all employees in the workforce should be treated fairly and on their merits. It would appear that Politicians at times are beyond what the average worker and taxpayer, expects (this can be seen in the recent pay rise granted) It is obvious that politicians do not come under an award hence the reason for the tribunal. A lot has been said about "feeding people peanuts and getting monkeys". We need to attract good people into parliament, but the package should not be the catalyst for becoming a politician. In looking at the remuneration I feel that the things that Politicians do should in some way be linked to industry standards, if that is not already being done. Politicians should not obtain anything that a normal tax payer would not be able to get. I have recently retired after 50 years working in the, (Public Service 10yrs &amp; Private Industry 40yrs) and the expectation in Private Industry is that you don't get paid for everything that you do, ie ringing clients customers after hours, attending community

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		meetings, service clubs, working weekends, because it is said that it is part of your package. So an hourly rate could be $60/hr and end up being $25/hr for the time you have put in. I think a Politician should have to do a business plan each year and it should include a detailed list of expenses 1 I agree with the base salary of $137149 and that it should be indexed to the CPI annually. I also believe that all MP's should be made accountable to their electorates, if more were put on notice of not achieving KPI's then we as voters might have better representatives 2 I agree with an allowance that is based on the size of the electorate, plus country MP's should also have their fuel allowance increased from the city MP's (my last position as a Business Development manager all over Qld and Fuel etc is a lot more expensive. This allowance should also be index
1642	10/09/2013	Politicians are Servants of the people and are employees just like any other worker. They should be subject to the same rules as the rest of society and their pay rises should be in line with what the Government is offering the Police, Nurses, Firemen and Schoolteachers. Their Superannuation benefits should also be in line with other members of the public - they are no a special case and the Tribunal examining their pay should comprise members of the public. It's time they were subject to the same pay and conditions they inflict on all other Government workers and the public workers. A 40% pay increase is obscene.
1643	10/09/2013	no payrise, everyone has it tough.
1644	10/09/2013	I spent almost [personal information] years as a member of the Federal parliament -[personal information] representing three electorates -two metropolitan and one that swept from the outskirts of [personal information]. It hardly matters what the Tribunal decides you will be caned and over my years I saw about five salary increases stopped by the Prime Minister of the day which gladdened population hearts for about 24 hours and that was it. Over those years both Fed and state electorates have increased population wise and while one has only 24 hours in a day the job has become more demanding. The present problem stems directly from the huge increase determined by the Federal Tribunal a year or two ago and by Qld MP'S tying their salaries to $500 below a Federal MP some years back. Everyone in public life thinks they work hard - often motivated by a desire to survive in a marginal seat or an ambitious person in their own party with eyes on their seat. Over my years I would have had a good 20 State MP's operating within my various boundaries and was able to observe who worked their "guts" out and those who had an easy ride. There are also those who have succeeded at an election who end up making a huge sacrifice in terms of the security of the job they resign and those in business or a profession who have to abandon it because of their new role. You will never be able to recognise those realities in the task you have been given and I recognise you are only determining a basic MP salary at this time with allowances for additional duties/ office to be determined at a later time. When it comes to back bench salaries, the lot and responsibilities of a Federal MP are heavier than that of a State MP. I respectfully submit a salary level set at say 87.5% of a Federal MP'S OF $195,130 would be a fair outcome.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1645	10/09/2013	I wish to make the following submission and reply to the questions as outlined in Section 3 of the Discussion Paper. Response to Question 1. I believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation) and some expense allowances. Response to Question 2. Expenses that should be allowed include a single electorate vehicle, mobile phone and laptop computer. Reimbursement for the use of the MP's home phone is not relevant as the MP can use their mobile phone. The vehicle should only be used by the MP and their office staff; not by friends, family, party members or other persons. Response to Question 3. Expenses should be determined by the electorate office manager and not the sitting member. All accounts should be made available to the public and receipts provided. Any allowance not spent should not be pocketed by the MP. Rather it should be returned to the government or donated to community groups. Response to Question 4. - - Response to Question 5. It would be expected that elected MPs devote their time to this important role and make themselves readily available to the electorate. They should not participate in other activities where they draw an income or financial benefit such as running a business, being on a board, etc. This ensures that there is no 'conflict of interest' and that they devote their time and efforts as expected by the community. All MPs are Committee Members then this role part of the expectation of being an MP. Hence, an additional salary should not be payable for this role as the annual base salary is more than generous. Once an election is called, MPs should cease receiving any entitlements (eg. access to vehicles, mobile phones, office stationery, etc.) and remunerations until the election is over and the results have been declared. This would ensure a fair and even playing field amongst all candidates standing in the election.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1646	10/09/2013	The pay of MPs should be pegged at their current level and then increased annually in line with the rate of inflation. This would save an immense amount of time in research and negotiation time. It is no good having a more generous scheme for MPs. Public servants are having their increases capped to match the government's ability to pay such increases. The same restrictions should apply to MPs pay increases. The whole process should certainly not involve MPs themselves as the recent debacle showed with the government waving through 40% increases for themselves. A clear conflict of interest which should be halted forthwith
1647	10/09/2013	Submission on the issue of the remuneration of Queensland MPs and former MPs. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the total remuneration package which includes the generous superannuation component received by politician and the length of time that that benefit is received as opposed to that received by the general working population.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1648	10/09/2013	The MP wage increases should be structured around the public service wage increases. Simple. But I understand this cannot be the case. I question the "independence" of this tribunal and the value placed on submissions from the general public. I assume you will need to provide the government something to "spin" into a good news story. So why not give them an increase of around 12% then tie it into the public service wage increases. The LNP shouldn't lose too many votes that way, and you'll make your masters pleased.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1649	10/09/2013	1. Yes. I consider a combination of Salary and some expense allowances to be appropriate 2. Most expenses outlined in the Entitlement handbook are worthy. I believe any travel should be done via economy class on all levels of transportation. I don not believe any payments should be made to accomodate Spouses or relatives in any aspect of MP emtitlements. If an MP wants to invole a spouse, then that expense should be born by the Member. 3. Expenses should be paid via the current system of making a claim to the Clerk once the expense has been incurred, not as an 'paid in advance' allowance. 4. I would expect that a modest salary be available with expenses allowable to cover the day to day running of the Members office and in the Member carrying out their duties. 5. I do not agree in past members receiving benefits. Benefits and allowances should only be available for those who are currently serving the Public as an MP. Please stop the carry on of entitlements for past MP's! I believe the current Salaries coupled with most of the allowances are sufficient enough to attract the right people with a view to serve their Local area and that of the State. Thankyou for the opportunity to make comment.
1650	10/09/2013	SUBMISSION RE RENUMERATION PACKAGE FOR POLITICIANS IN QUEENSLAND. While I accept politicians must be paid a generous salary in accordance with their station in the community I fell that the current salary is excessive in the extreme given the fact they also receive an Electoral Allowance of $39,263 to $77,922 depending on the size of the electorate, as well as a Miscellaneous Allowance of $32,355 per year plus a range of Travel Allowances and other minor entitlements, such as home telephone refunds. Politicians are entitled to a salary and some allowances but there is really no need for them to be so large given the broader community who works in an everyday job also has to travel from their home to their place of work using their own vehicle and their own money and according to the Taxation Act are NOT entitled to recommence for that travel. The only time they are entitled to a Travel Allowance is if their employer sends them away to another city or town on business as part of their job and Politicians are employed by the voters of Queensland and their place of work is actually Parliament House in Brisbane so they really do not need to be paid a Travel Allowance to work there. If however they are required to travel interstate or overseas or yes with community Cabinets to another part of the State to conduct Parliament yes they could be entitled to a Travel allowance then it should be paid. As for their role in the community as a representative of the people in their electorate playing an active roll in the community that too could be construed as part of their employment whether they get paid extra for it should be governed by hours they are required to do the work just like a normal 9-5 worker they can work overtime and get paid a set amount of money per hour. I know politicians are required to attend fetes, meetings with local dignitaries etc and this what the electoral allowance covers, but the amounts listed are as great as what some people earn as a yearly salary which is excessive in the extreme. Then there are all the additional salaries politicians get paid for Chairman of Committees and Treasure, Leader of the Opposition, Speaker, Whip, or Committee Member as well, why should they be paid so much money to do those jobs. A small allowance should be enough for a Committee Chairman or Member, because some committees are only established for a short time and the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		high money paid is not warranted. Politicians shouldn't be paid extra to sit on committees as that is part of their jobs as Parliamentarians, just like normal people are allocated jobs at work. They should be getting a set salary and only paid extra if they happen to be Premier, Treasurer, Speaker or Whip as that is a higher duty.
1651	10/09/2013	Having been a voter in Qld. for many years I feel that our politicians are considerably OVERPAID when all the extra allowances are taken into consideration, in some cases almost doubling the actual salary. Please when you set a figure, take all these allowances into consideration including the very very generous superannuation. A lot of politicians consider themselves on a "gravy train". YOU and I do not have access to all these benefits yet they are "our servants". Be true to your task, be fair to the people of Queensland. Often Parliament sets up these Tribunals as a "sop" knowing full well and expecting results very favourable to themselves. When you consider that so many other positions in the Public Service are then re-graded in as much as their salaries are set in relation to any increases - judges, heads of department and so forth. Think really really hard and consider the people of Queensland, I implore. Thank you.
1652	10/09/2013	Since coming to power the Neumann Government has complained about the financial mess left by the previous administration. To counter financial shortfall, 14,000+ public servants have been sacked. This is a considerable burden for the Queensland public to carry. It is only right, fitting and proper that this burden be shared by all Queenslanders and in particular by those responsible for applying financial pressure on the public to correct this shortfall. I therefore demand that the remuneration paid to politicians reflects the genuine responsibility that the government believes necessary of the Queensland public to suffer to right this financial problem.
1653	10/09/2013	Politicians' pay is way too high considering the poor representation we get from some of them. There is a lot of abuse of privileges and if the pay rises do eventuate politicians should be responsible for more of their own expenses such as travel and accommodation and maybe this would make them think before presenting their card - if it is their own.
1654	10/09/2013	As a former Member, I understand the necessity of having a public and transparent salary package. I believe that the Electorate Allowance should be set to the level which equates to the size of an Electorate as at present, and the base salary should be increased to include the current Miscellaneous Allowance which would be taxed in accordance with the Income Tax Scale. The Miscellaneous allowance was designed to meet the cost of telephone, meeting costs of the Members Office which is not all met by Parliamentary Services and other ancillary costs. Present retired Members, since 2006 do not retire on a pension until their Superannuation matures at the age determined by the Superannuation Legislation. There are only limited post retirement benefits which were designed to reflect the length of service and it is submitted that they should be retained in their present form.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1655	10/09/2013	Attached are submissions from our supporters to the Tribunal regarding politicians pay in Queensland. We've had more than 900 responses, these people have endorsed these key points and many of whom have added their own contributions on this important matter. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul> We look forward to your response and thank you for this opportunity to contribute on this important issue.
1656	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1657	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1658	10/09/2013	How dare the politicians even consider giving themselves a pay rise (let alone a big fat one) after they sacked all those poor public servants last year. I thought that money was to be used to fix our economy (to get it back in the black) rather than pollies' already hugely fat pockets. The absolute cheek of them The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1659	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1660	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1661	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1662	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1663	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1664	10/09/2013	We are expected to accept a 2.2% pay rise - they should have a 2.2% pay rise! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1665	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1666	10/09/2013	Because this Government stopped the renewable energy subsidies my business will soon be bankrupt and this Government has slashed the public service reduced services. Also have state many time how broke the State is they should not get one penny in pay more if anything a reduction should be imposed. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1667	10/09/2013	Politicians are employees of the people, to represent the people. They assume their positions because they "care" for their communities. They are no bigger, bolder or more intellectually adept than the community that they represent. Whilst they engage in a media focus during parliamentary sittings, they realistically work no harder than a senior public servant of an SES 2 level. As such, enough is enough and they should be linked to the SES level. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1668	10/09/2013	1. Role of Qld MP/remuneration structure - Yes, remuneration structure should be a salary package (which would include salary , super, fringe benefits, car, committee meeting fees). These payments largely relate to their skills/effort. All other payments to MP are expense allowances (ie. for expenses incurred). 2. Expense allowances - These are paid separately to salary package. ie. reimburse actuals or pay an amount based on gazetted rates eg. accommodation, plane flights, taxi fares, kms travelled, telephone costs). There should be a maximum threshold based on size of electorate. PM like the rest of us need to manage expenses to annual budget. This is to cover additional costs while doing their work. NB. The above is an update of the submission i have made directly to the Tribunal (it has been enhanced). I have submitted to you for inclusion in union submission (and so you know i have made a submission). 3. Ensure expense allowance $s are not substitute for salary. - Only reimburse actuals or pay an amount based on gazetted rates. ie. MP only get enough $s to cover costs. These costs are not related to hours put in to their work, they are one off additional costs. 4. Benchmarks/Factors for salary (excluding expense allowances) - . paid only a determined % above departmental accountable officers. (Both MP and Accountable Officer are paid for services rendered to the state. They both have their own specialised skills. An accountable officer is responsible for the services of his agency across the state and is responsible for implementation of change) * consider the planned operating result of the State (ie. as we can only afford to pay public servants about 2% how can we afford to pay MPs more. MP salaries should not come from savings resulting from sacked staff which i thought was to be used for front line services) . 5. Anything Else: * After benchmark is set. Future increases should be based on similar % applied to departmental accountable officers/public servant The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1669	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1670	10/09/2013	I work for TAFE Qld. We have had our employment conditions changed with no consultation, so that we are no longer public servants. We have not had a pay rise for some time. This government is offering us a 2.5% per annum pay rise. I ask you to consider equity across the Qld state, at a time when TAFE staff are at risk of losing their jobs through the changes put in place by this government, so that politicians' wages are pegged to the increases in the public service. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1671	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1672	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1673	10/09/2013	In a true democracy, if our elected leaders do not keep their promises or do not act according to the wish of the majority, they would be immediately sacked. The LNP broke too many electoral promises, committed acts of nepotism and on top of that they are awarding themselves a massive pay rise whilst offering hard-working public servants a meager pay rise below the inflation rate which is effectively a pay cut. And if that were not enough, they are eroding our rights to collective bargaining in direct violation of the International Labour Organization convention. It is not only unfair, but is also unethical and therefore they should be sacked. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1674	10/09/2013	?The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. ?The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. ?The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. ?The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. ?The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians? pay to Commonwealth politicians? pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1675	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1676	10/09/2013	The Pollies should be given the same pay rise that all Queensland Government employees are given. There is absolutely no reason for them to receive anything higher or lower. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1677	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1678	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1679	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1680	10/09/2013	If pay went on performance, Queensland's LNP politicians would get a sizeable reduction. The slash and burn tactics in Queensland haven't worked. In the first 16 months of the LNP government in Queensland (to July 2013), employment increased by just 12,800 people (trend data). Full time employment fell by 4,700 in that time. In the previous 16 month period, employment increased by 33,700, and full time went up 43,400. Australia-wide employment rose by 181,500 in the last 16 months. Growth in state final demand for Queensland has fallen sharply during the time of the LNP government. In the year to June quarter 2013, it rose 1.8%. In the previous three years, it rose 18.7%. While they are slashing and burning, they seem to be spending plenty of money in other others. They are running deficits larger than any of the previous state Labor government. The 2011-12 actual deficit was $5.5 billion. The previous Labor government was in office for about three-quarters of this. The 2012-13 estimated actual deficit was $8.7 billion. The 2013-14 budgeted deficit is $7.7 billion. Debt will go from about $60 billion to about $80 billion in the first two years on the LNP government in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1681	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1682	10/09/2013	I find it disgraceful that Politicians can even contemplate increasing their payrates when we are told the state cannot afford to maintain services. What else will be cut and how many more people will lose their livelihood to fund these increases? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1683	10/09/2013	Everyone should be entitled to a fair and reasonable pay rise to keep up with the cost of life. It is hard to justify a 40% pay rise after 'saving' so much money from sacking so many staff in the public service and yet not offer the same to remaining public servants. Politicians are public servants - the same rules should apply across the board. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1684	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1685	10/09/2013	If you really wanna cut spending, stop spending taxpayers money on yourself! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
1686	10/09/2013	The new LNP state government changed the legislation in a matter of weeks to enable it to sack 14,000 public servants - and causing further damage to small business through the knock-on effect - yet it blames legislation for making it problematic not to allow itself a 42% pay rise in a time of economic hardship. As well as culling staff, causing huge stress for remaining resources working with fewer people, they have cut multiple 'unaffordable' services in the name of the budget bottom line. How then can they possibly justify exorbitant pay rises for themselves while putting so many others out of work or/and business entirely, and restricting pay increases for the rest to less than 3%? I am so mortified at the glee with which I voted out Labor in 2012 - I won't be making that mistake again. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1687	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1688	10/09/2013	I believe Queensland politicians' pay rises should be tied to public service wage rises with separate electoral and expense allowances which reflect the cost of carrying out their duties (higher for those with greater travel distances and costs) and no more. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1689	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1690	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1691	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1692	10/09/2013	The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1693	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1694	10/09/2013	It is a stain on the creditability of all politicians if they get this pay rise. Campbell Newman should have agreed to a 2.2% pay rise like all public servants have received. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1695	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1696	10/09/2013	Queensland politicians deserve to have their pay packages reduced rather than increased. this is due to their less than lackluster performance. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1697	10/09/2013	State government politicians should get the same payrise they are offering the general Qld public service - 2.2%. This is only fair, considering that they get generous superannuation when they retire - much more than anyone else in Australia. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1698	10/09/2013	You, and all politicians DO NOT DESERVE A PAY RISE. You are all paid enough for the job you do. You should only do a 3 year stint and then you should get out and go back to your vocation previous to politics. Politics is NOT A CAREER, it is COMMUNITY AND COUNTRY SERVICE. Go out, start your own business and feather your nest that way and not through ripping off AUSTRALIANS for a job half done !!!!! You ought to be ashamed of yourself and your proposals in regards to pay rises. You do nothing more than push a pen and talk a lot of [inappropriate content] behind each other?s backs and what seems like, manoeuvres to always make you look like you?re busy ?actually? doing something. You bring your own personal beliefs and your own opinions into the realm when in fact, YOU ARE THERE TO REFLECT THE BELIEFS, NEEDS AND WANTS OF OUR NATION and not just your own. You simply are not that important, you need to realise this. There are many who could do a much better job than you have and they would accept a lot less pay for doing so. Time to wake up and stop believing your own press releases and those [inappropriate content] you have around you, pandering to your ever growing and ugly ego that is constantly in need of stroking. Work FOR THE COUNTRY and not just for your own profit ya mug! Kind regards [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1699	10/09/2013	Politicians are quick to give themselves a payrise anytime they feel like it (of course on the advice of an ?Independant Panel?) and they carry on like children in Parlimant. But if Public Servants carried on the same way would be sacked immediately. We also subjected to the public?s wrath over what the Politicians are doing and yet Newman is only offering us a 2% pay rise for the next 3 years, well below the CPI Index. Privatising Health and Education Services will disadvantage the low socioeconomic community, so how can the Pollies say they are doing an excellent job and deserve a pay rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1700	10/09/2013	Sir John Chandler was a three term Mayor of Brisbane and never took any pay. Clem Jones five times elected likewise. One Labor, one not, both served with distinction &amp; honour. These men contrast greatly with the self serving interests of the present State government. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1701	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1702	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1703	10/09/2013	Personally, I think at present the Queensland government should get the equivalent of the dole only. Just for the way they lied to us and what they have done to the people of this state. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1704	10/09/2013	MPs' incomes MUST be linked to Public Service pay rates. That is manifestly just. Allowances are separate and should be paid according to their use not as an add on to pays with no accountability. Stop the Queensland gravy train NOW! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1705	10/09/2013	The proposed pay rise is absolutely disgusting when so many people are living below the poverty line. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1706	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1707	10/09/2013	The increase in pay rises for politicians is not necessary when there are so many other issues and places where this money could be more wisely spent. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1708	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1709	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1710	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1711	10/09/2013	The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes not to other jurisdictions, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1712	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1713	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1714	10/09/2013	We had to fight for a fair deal in our latest eba and their final offer was 2% PA. Where is the justice?? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1715	10/09/2013	How does hiding allowances in pollie salaries make open and accountable government? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1716	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1717	10/09/2013	Why should MPs pay rises, be Much Greater than the Average Worker? Greed, is the Only Answer! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1718	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1719	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1720	10/09/2013	How about all working Australians get the same amount pay rise they do ?, owe that's wright we cant afford it. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1721	10/09/2013	Politicians should have to justify wage increases just like the rest of us. Police, nurses and teachers get small rises which hardly keep up with the CPI. I realise politicians have an important role, and don't quibble about that. Perhaps their extra electoral expenses should be linked to where their electorate is situated. Those in city electorates should receive less as their travel expenses would not be as high as those in country areas. City politicians could even catch (heaven forbid) public transport just like the rest of us have to!! At least they would then know hoe it feels. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1722	10/09/2013	Why, shame on you Campbell Newman! A pay rise for pollies? NO WAY! You have hurt thousands of hard working families pockets by taking away jobs &amp; hard fought for, conditions of other workers &amp; you have the gall to give yourselves a big fat pay rise. I don't think so Mr. Newman! Please have the decency not to insult us in this way. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1723	10/09/2013	Stop the Pollise Pay Rise The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1724	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1725	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1726	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1727	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1728	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1729	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1730	10/09/2013	Politicians should have the same level of payrises as the rest of the working Australian's as handed down by the Australian Industrial Tribunal. It might make politicians sympathetic to working Australian's difficulty of paying government bills like Council Rates, stamp duty when buying a house etc. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1731	10/09/2013	So did Newman not follow-through on his apology to the people of Qld? after his trip to Vietnam to reverse the pollie payrise decision voted to, in his absence? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1732	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1733	10/09/2013	The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. A lot of members of the community have a poor view of politicians at the best of times. By aligning the pay rises to the core Public Service agreements, there are no surprises each year. I do not agree with pay freezes UNLESS the MP salaries have become obscenely large as recently given. The community is well within its rights to be disgusted at this level of increase while the core public service cannot agree on a 2.2% increase. The granting of any new system must be seen to be fair by all members of the community. The granting of additional monies for being part of a committee has also been abused by the current government to provide a de facto pay rise to its own members. This should also cease. Level for MP's should be tied to the AO8 level 4 public servant rate. Politicians should not be in parliament for the money but to serve the community. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1734	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1735	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1736	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1737	10/09/2013	Living costs vary with locality. Politicians wages should be linked to public sector wages in their State, not anywhere else in Australia. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
1738	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1739	10/09/2013	Damned disgusting, Bligh stopped it why can't Newman do the same The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1740	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1741	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1742	10/09/2013	Show by example; not by suspect/greed/self centred attitudes; "IT IS ATTITUDE; NOT APTITUDE THAT GAINS ALTITUDE...ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS..."HE" QUOTED.. "YOU WILL RECEIVE THAT WHICH YOU NEED" The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1743	10/09/2013	CPI rise in wages for politicians only - the same as the majority of workers. If State Government employees get 3% then that is all that the politicians should receive. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1744	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1745	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1746	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1747	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1748	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1749	10/09/2013	My preference would be for the Base Salary of Queensland MP's to be linked to that of Core Queensland Public Servants. MP's are after all public servants. This would ensure that Queensland MP salaries were not able to be overinflated as has currently been proposed by the Queensland Government. It would also ensure that a "Fair Go" principle is in play. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1750	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1751	10/09/2013	Queensland MPs are Public Servants,, they should be linked to Pubic Servant pay rises. They are no different from Public Servants, they are NOT our better, equal rights for Public Servants the workers holding Queensland Together.. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1752	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1753	10/09/2013	I am totally disgusted at the proposed pay rise that our elected politicians are being granted. Where is the accountability for their actions. How dare they cut back on government expenditure that cost many Queenslanders their livelihood, then have the gall to grant themselves such massive pay rises. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1754	10/09/2013	I also think that politicians wages should be tied to middle management level state public servant wages. Holding office is a privilege and a public duty and as such our politicians should NOT under any circumstances be going for holding such an office on a wage basis. I see no need to continue to provide pensions and privileges to politicians after they leave office. Pay rises need to be linked to state public servant pay rises. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1755	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1756	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1757	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1758	10/09/2013	? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances should not be a reason to incorporate them into direct salary but, as in the past, misuse of public monies should result in audit investigations; more stringent guidelines for use of allowances; increased monitoring of allowance usage; and charges of misconduct where appropriate. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. These actions would meet the government's espoused openness and accountability. ? The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. Remuneration should be based on a truly independent valuation of the role and responsibilities of a position. Allowances do not form part of this assessment but are payments to compensate for different factors that affect the ability of individuals to perform the same role and responsibilities under differing conditions. For example, the cost of travel to Brisbane city meeting from Inala versus Thursday Island. ? Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional, actual costs associated with representing larger regional or geographically dispersed electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs and the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Again, this would increase the openness and accountability that the current government states that it intends to achieve. Making allowances part of salary reduces accountability and openness and does not cater for the different costs experienced by MPs in undertaking their role. Allowable expenses should only include actual, incurred costs directly related to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. ? The Tribunal should continue to follow The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1759	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1760	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1761	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1762	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1763	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1764	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1765	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1766	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1767	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1768	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1769	10/09/2013	The amount politicians are paid is above the "normal" wages of the average citizen. When a person decides to go into politics they are aware that their life is not going to be like before and the wages and allowances paid make up for the "disruption" to a normal family life - but that is the choice they make. 47% is a beyond comprehension when people are on welfare and live from day to day and in alot of cases through no fault of their own. The 47% pay rise should go back into govt coffers seeing that Qld is debt. The sacking of 14,000 staff has had such wide repercussions on the people of Qld in loss of business as people do not have the money to spend now and this flow on effect is affecting Qld state wide. 47% back to the coffers to support essential services cut from WOG organisations. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1770	10/09/2013	We, the workers, are struggling without so much as a 1 cent payrise during the last 2 years whilst the Queensland MPs vote themselves ridiculously large payrises then try justifying it by saying 'it is the law'. Sheer hypocrisy. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1771	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1772	10/09/2013	I think a 40% payrise for polities, (back-dating to 2009 or not) is inappropriate and obscene, considering public servants like me cannot be offered any more than a 2.2% payrise (not back-dated to a previous month let alone a previous year). Put a decimal point in there and they might get my vote of approval. What world are they living in - not mine obviously!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1773	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1774	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1775	10/09/2013	2.5 % per year in crease is only justified for all politicians, they should see it a privilege to serve the public and not reap the rewards of huge pay outs including massive superannuation and dismiss all there claims it is not lawful and its plundering public funds for there own pockets while all public servant have to justify there accountability for there minimal income has fallen way behind the average income. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1776	10/09/2013	I as an employee of QCS who got a 2.2% rise, because of the lack of money the government say they have. The politicians should get the same (2.2%) if Queensland is so cash poor, or did the politicians lie about the state of Queensland's finances. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1777	10/09/2013	How can a government who have repeatedly stated that the state needs to save money justify a 40% wage increase as this money comes from tax payers pockets. They are answerable to every tax payer. This money could be better spent on improving those services that have not been cut from rural Queensland. There is more to Queensland than Brisbane. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1778	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1779	10/09/2013	I still can not believe the hypocritical rhetoric that pours from the mouths of our politicians on this pay rise issue. It was announced a few months back that by Bruce Flegg that they would be 'breaking the law' if they did not accept the pay rise. However they are the same government who rush through legislation (sometimes till the early hours of the morning) to attack and erode the working conditions of hard working public servants. They want our unions to be open, accountable and transparent but the same does not apply to them. These double standards must stop if they want any credibility in the eyes of public servants, the people who work for them and all Queenslanders. Joe Public swallowed their BS during the election campaign (a lot of them public servants) only to find out that it was all 'smoke and mirrors'. This just another example of their true greedy selfish nature that is so far removed from reality it is ridiculous. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1780	10/09/2013	please take note of this submission,hard to believe they have the gall to put this through The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1781	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1782	10/09/2013	Given politicians are dependent on public servants for delivery of good government and because it is mainly the public servants who provide the information which politicians use for good government, any pay rise for politicians must be in line with the pay rises given to public servants. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1783	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1784	10/09/2013	After the loss of jobs for 14,000 public servants it is hypocritical, and I believe, highly unethical to give politicians any pay rise, let alone the pay rise that is proposed. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1785	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1786	10/09/2013	Totally agree with the dot point outlined. MP pay rises should be linked to be the same as members of the public service as we are all public servants employed to provide quality services to the Queensland public. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1787	10/09/2013	Politicians' pay increases need to be linked to reasonable cost of living increases and in line with the general Public Service of the state where they sit. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1788	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1789	10/09/2013	We fight like crazy to get the same pay rise we have experienced in the past three agreement of 12.5% over 3 years (4.5% first year, 4% the next two years) and all government were prepared to offer was 2.3%. We work hard on the ground to make sure their portfolios provide the best service government can offer and are not rewarded for making them look good. For them to get anything more than the percentage they are prepared to pay the public servants is ludicrous. Pay them no increases until they pay a reasonable, agreed upon, increase to public servants and definitely not 40%. They do not deserve it. No one deserves a 40% increase. We do deserve a 4.5% increase though, back dated to the end of our last agreement, not 1 July 2013. This is day light robbery. We have gone without a minute increase for our small wage, they enjoy a humongous wage and want even more. This is criminal. Stop the polities huge pay rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1790	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1791	10/09/2013	What sickens me most is that politicians think it's okay to demonize people who cannot work, to make us live on what is, compared to the pay rise, a pittance. I have not taken a holiday since 1988 (before I needed to be on the pension). I don't know a politician who has waited that long. So now, it's their turn to wait. Campbell Newman has turned Queensland into a battleground full of people who have no jobs. Why should he be paid more for causing so much pain to so many? I say, ENOUGH - NO MORE PAY RISES UNTIL QUEENSLANDERS SAY THE POLITICIANS HAVE EARNED THEM!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1792	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1793	10/09/2013	If you can't value and reward your employees with a 2+% pay rise, then you can't and shouldn't be brazen enough to award yourselves a massive massive pay rise. After all, a large majority of information that politicians use in their work is actually prepared and provided to them by public servants. The politicians only deliver the message provided to them. Give us a break please!!!! Respect, value and reward your employees!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1794	10/09/2013	The LNP are showing their true colours, one rule for them and a mass of unfair and unrelenting rules for the public service and the people of QLD. If this continues this party will ruin QLD and have it all over us and we the people will lose what manner of control we do have. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1795	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1796	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1797	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1798	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1799	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1800	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1801	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1802	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1803	10/09/2013	In addition to the statements in this submission, I would like to add a personal comment: It is unfair in the extreme for any working person to receive a payrise as high as 47%. What really hurts about this whole process is the "one rule for them, another rule for us" regime that politics seems to be all about. If they want 47%, then treat everyone equally and give us 47%. Of course we know that's not possible, so I'll settle for the politicians missing out on a massive payrise in favour of a more reasonable figure, let's say 2.2%, which is what they are currently offering me in my position. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1804	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1805	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1806	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1807	10/09/2013	Line politicians wage increases with all government workers. 2.5% over 3 years. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1808	10/09/2013	The cuts you are making to services such as cancellation of Fire Ant eradication MUST come before pay cuts and junkets by politicians. My husband volunteered for this service many years ago and, as a pest controller, knows how vital vigilance is. Before voting yourselves increases in pay, you should substantially increase the boundaries for state electorates thereby reducing by at least half the state politicians needed. The amount of state politicians we have is ridiculous. too much time on their hands leads to all sorts of naughty and unethical behavior involving red wine. THAT WOULD BE A GOOD CUT. I The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1809	10/09/2013	Well done polities you want to give yourself a pay rise that is bigger then my whole 12mnth pay &amp; you try to shove o [inappropriate content] % on us shame shame shame . Ps what comes around goes around &amp; pay back is a bitch at election time The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1810	10/09/2013	This government has made clear statements about the Qld economy and how the state needs to save money. Many people have already lost their jobs in support of cost cutting. For the economy to improve, we need people employed and spending money, not concentrating more money in the hands of politicians who already have adequate income. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1811	10/09/2013	I,m sick of politicians taking huge wage rises while [inappropriate content] the workers of this country, its the only thing they agree on. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1812	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1813	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1814	10/09/2013	It is disgraceful that politicians seem to think that they can be granted a pay rise at such a significantly greater percentage than any other worker in Queensland, The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1815	10/09/2013	Queensland MP's should be paid the basic wage, with no entitlements, allowances nor any other gratuities. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1816	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1817	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1818	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1819	10/09/2013	politicians are public servants. Their pay should reflect those of the public sector. Any increases politicians pay should be linked to that of public sector wages outcomes indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. There is no logical or ethical reason why politician pay rises should be treated differently to those of the public sector. When the state government argues the need for for austerity and that public servant should therefore be satisfied with less than a 3 % pay rise (one less than the rise in the cost of living) it should be leading the way. The best way to do this is to link politicians pay increases with that of the public sector. Therefore if the public sector is expected to be satisfied with an annual 2.5% pay-rise so it should be for politicians. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1820	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1821	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1822	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1823	10/09/2013	I believe the State politicians pay should be linked to that of the State Public Service. After all they are but Public Servants themselves. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
1824	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1825	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians'™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1826	10/09/2013	Slashing public services, which will harm Qlders - while awarding yourselves MASSIVE pay rises is OBSCENE!!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers'™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians'™ pay to Commonwealth politicians'™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1827	10/09/2013	Restrospective wage rises should not be on the Agenda, when the previous Government declined these increases for the benefit for the whole of the state and the rise should be in line with Public Service increases as we are all employed by the same employer the State of Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers'™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1828	10/09/2013	I OPPOSE THE MASSIVE PAY RISE FOR THE NEWMAN GOVERNMENT. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1829	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1830	10/09/2013	The bourgeois must be defeated. We must win and recover everything we have lost. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1831	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1832	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1833	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1834	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1835	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1836	10/09/2013	How does a 40% pay rise for politicians compare to a 2.2% pay rise for workers in this Department? We've already missed out on 12 months worth of a small pay increase in 2012/13 and now are battling to achieve an agreement some within 2-3%. How about the money that is planned to be paid to QLD MPs is used to pay workers in the various Qld Government Departments? I'll gladly take it from the MPs. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1837	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1838	10/09/2013	I know he's cunning but trying to sneak this pay rise through now is a new form of low. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1839	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1840	10/09/2013	My point for the Submission: The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians? pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1841	10/09/2013	While nursing homes and community assistance organisations are shutting down and I am losing work colleagues and not getting a 3% pay rise, the politicians can get a pay rise of that magnitude. I hope the people of Qld don't forget this at the next election! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1842	10/09/2013	The current Qld government under Campbell Newman's leadership is failing the people of Queensland; failing to listen; failing to do what's fair; failing to tell the truth; failing to represent the community accurately. Cambell Newman's LNP is purely focused on schemes that will benefit themselves and their immediate family and forgetting the rest of Qld. I work for the Qld government in Child Protection and this government is expecting us to do more work with little money. In working with our most vulnerable, the government doesn't see fit to allocate budget finances for ongoing training of staff - but there is money for their pay increase! - yet another clear example of how this Qld government under Campbell Newman is all about benefiting the few. 40% for pollies and they expect us to accept 2.2%! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1843	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1844	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1845	10/09/2013	Tony Abbott's #ZombieTeaParty Bogan Army Have Been Assimilated By Austerity Politics. #auspol Shame on you Campbell Newman. Have a heart for thousands of people sacked in your mistaken drive for the surplus we don't need right now, because you are taking food off the table of kids. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1846	10/09/2013	Our country is presently ruined by greed, politicians are elected to represent and make the right choices for the betterment of all, not just line their pockets with coin and look to a more than comfortable retirement. All entitlements should cease on their exit from this scene. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1847	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1848	10/09/2013	No payrise , we have not had a payrise in 2.3 years!!! and only want to offer us 2.2% The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1849	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1850	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1851	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1852	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1853	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1854	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1855	10/09/2013	The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1856	10/09/2013	The new Government introduced new legislation for so many issues quickly and with minimal fuss when it suited them &amp; their policies. For the Premier &amp; other MPs to say they are 'obliged' to accept this pay rise (and especially the back-pay) because it is 'legislated', is total contradiction. They could quickly and easily over-ride this current legislation and set the standard. Their actions are most definitely self serving, and not at all in the interests of the State of Qld. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1857	10/09/2013	As a government committed to saving money, the leaders ought to set the example and honour previous pay rise cancellations. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1858	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1859	10/09/2013	I also strongly object to Campbell Newman laying off front line health workers and firemen to save money, then turn around and grant himself and his government a 40% pay rise, which amounts to some $37M a year. It is blatantly lining their own pockets at the expense of Queensland citizens. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1860	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1861	10/09/2013	Where is the fairness and equality in decreasing TAFE teachers' wages by $15,000 and increasing ministers wages by $45,000 to $100,000? Therefore Queensland Government Ministers need to be linked to Public Service wages. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1862	10/09/2013	Politicians are representatives for the community that public servants form an integral part of supporting, serving and protecting. Politicians working conditions need to be congruent to the public servants since both have the genesis of supporting our communities. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1863	10/09/2013	This massive pay raise is unjustifiable in the current economic climate. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1864	10/09/2013	Absolutly disgusting,arrogant and demeaning - this is why the peasants over the years revolted and destroyed so called nobility and kindoms - the rich get richer and the peasants kept poor - no way do I support these fat leeches giving themselves a fat pay increase unless they start caring for the people who employ them - they should set up a people pay tribunal not one their so called leader picks and puts in place. Talk about pulling the wool over the peoples eyes!!!!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1865	10/09/2013	Their payrise should be linked to performance kpi ...subject to voters satisfaction. ..I bet theyd miss their payrise...work choices is for all not a selected group of disadvantaged government workers. Afterall what has been done is really work choices by another name. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1866	10/09/2013	Hourly Rate... I understand that the issue was resultant from the unfreezing of the lawful pay-scales for politicians of Qld Government, however as they have been saying how the whole state needs to make sacrifices (and have sacrificed many peoples jobs) in order to meet budgetary measures, it would be borderline criminal to then take a payrise when the state's debt levels are apparently so high. People should go into public office because they want to make a difference, to improve our state, not simply to seek power and financial gain through such greed. If the wages were not so high, I would imagine we would have a different kind of candidate applying for such positions, a person whose interests are for the state and not their own pockets. I believe the Politicians should come off salary and go to an hourly rate, commensurable to about the upper end of the working class, I would say $40 per hour would be fair, then they can be paid on the amount of hours they put in, the harder they work, the more they make, just like the rest of us. If they don't perform - no pay rise. Also lower their travel expense limits and ministerial financial privileges and junkets. These 'expenses' all add up and lets be realistic, they would be eating if they were at home and not being paid for that, so why should we have to cover them for a-la-cart meals. Overall it looks contradictory in the fact that they have destroyed so many peoples lives with the mass sackings, then feather their own nests despite the apparent debt we are in. I think they have destroyed their own credibility and I know I will never vote for Qld LNP again after the horrendous form they have displayed since taking government. Shame Campbell Newman, Shame! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1867	10/09/2013	So everyone, except politicians, has to sacrifice to get Queensland on it's feet again. Collectively each and everyone of our state politicians disgust me. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1868	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1869	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1870	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1871	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1872	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1873	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1874	10/09/2013	I don't believe it is fair and reasonable to the government cut jobs and services to repay debts and then issue themselves with excessive pay rises. The Politician pay rises should be linked to public service pay rises (given that they are also public servants). As such they should only receive the same pay rise level as is being offered to their workforce. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1875	10/09/2013	The government was able to immediately implement a transparently greedy pay rise while simultaneously destroying any vestige of the government acting as a model litigant by using every dirty trick in the book to prevent public servants from receiving even a modest pay increment. It is about time the same standard was applied for all public servants; both policy makers and implementers of policy. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1876	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1877	10/09/2013	As public servants, politicians pay should be linked to the public service award. A pay increment of 2.2% would seem appropriate, given this is what is on the table for the public service. Given the commission of audit by Peter Costello into the public service, I think it would be appropriate for an ex-labor politician/treasurer such as Paul Keating to undertake an audit into LNP politicians salaries, benefits and allowances. Perhaps we could fly some people in on 457 visas to run Queensland? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1878	10/09/2013	The disability sector in Queensland has suffered the loss of a wide variety of highly experienced staff in allied health. Clinical support/ supervision across disabilities and Education have been severely affected with committed staff being told their jobs were no longer available. Disability is now trying to convene Clinical Governance but with less staff who have not necessarily had a clinical focus to their workloads in recent years. This makes helpful supporting at the coal face almost impossible. How is it possible to find money for a frightening level of increase for politicians salaries, but not have money for clinical support staff for allied health. This does not make sense. [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1879	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1880	10/09/2013	I find it difficult to believe that you need to cut millions of dollars from the TAFE sector resulting in myself and colleagues possibly becoming unemployed, when you can sit back and conscientiously take a pay rise. I believe that this is double standards, you are prepared to see people unemployed and struggling to make ends meet when you sit back and just say that you deserve it and therefore take it. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1881	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1882	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1883	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1884	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1885	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1886	10/09/2013	They are on a very High Salary, plus perks now, so all the other Public Servants urgently need their backdated payrise of 4.5% which will be no where near $57,000.00 per annum in any case. We have not had a payrise for around 2 years. The Politicians DO NOT need anywhere near a $57,000.00 per year payrise. Talk about looking after themselves!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1887	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1888	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1889	10/09/2013	At the end of the day, Queensland's elected representatives are still employees of the people of Queensland, and as employees of the people they should, in justice and fairness, be subject to the same entitlements as other employees of the people of Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1890	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1891	10/09/2013	None of you deserve even a 1 cent rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1892	10/09/2013	It was always said that the government are there to help all the people, not just themselves. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1893	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1894	10/09/2013	40% for polities &amp; yet they argue in the courts about 3% for the rest of public sector. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1895	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1896	10/09/2013	When funding cuts have 'hit' all sectors of the community, and my colleagues and myself have problems sourcing suitable supports for our clients due to these funding cuts, I'm wondering how these pay rises can be justified? My work entails I justify my spending, why is this not a requirement for the people we've elected, trusted, to act in the best interests of Australians? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1897	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1898	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1899	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1900	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1901	10/09/2013	How can politicians give themselves a pay rise that is equal to my entire annual salary when I am fighting to get a reasonable cost of living pay rise? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
1902	10/09/2013	Another example of their arrogance - link their wages to Public Sector wages. THEY ARE PUBLIC SERVANTS. (Supposed to be - presently it is all about them) I know of some good people who have had their lives thrown into turmoil because they were deemed to be excess to requirement. There are a lot of people out there who are regretting voting for this mob. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1903	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1904	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1905	10/09/2013	Current pay increases are in the order of between 2 and 4%. Anything more than that is completely out of line with current trends throughout the nation. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1906	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1907	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1908	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1909	10/09/2013	Pay rises should be at the same % as that of public servants (2.2%); additionally politicians should not received free meals, free travel, free accommodation and other perks above what public servants receive. THE only other issue of grave concern to me is political donations - they should be illegal; no political donations means no corruption. This country craves honest politicians and unfortunately the last honest politician in Queensland died some years ago. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1910	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1911	10/09/2013	A pay rise nearly equal to my whole year's wages! In addition the change in Fly Buy points, means a free family holiday each year. Disgraceful! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1912	10/09/2013	Politicians can hide behind a series of excuses to justify the proposed huge increases. But those with integrity will have the courage to say no. Then they will do the honest, correct thing and ensure that the suggestions in this submission are implemented. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1913	10/09/2013	I think this pay rise in today's world is uncalled for and very wrong. You are elected by the people to serve the people and as far as i can see all you are doing is feathering your own nests and is nothing short of highway robbery of the tax payers of Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1914	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1915	10/09/2013	Why on earth do these chumps get a 40% pay rise when they are quibbling over less than 3% over a few years' time. And where is this 40% coming from? Removing funding from other areas to line their own pockets seems HIGHLY corrupt. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1916	10/09/2013	I think the Politician pay rise in the midst of cuts to Public servants entitlements and halt to any pay increase is an absolute disgrace and demonstrates the hypocritical policies that allows this to legitimately occur in parallel to other events. I feel the wage rates of Australian politicians and the policy covering them is based on and influenced by the politicians themselves and cannot be justified by their actions which appear to primarily petty sidewalk soap box banter. If Australians need to fasten their belts and take cuts for the country -this should begin with Politicians wages as an indicator they are committed to the country. To be a politician is a privilege not a right and feel this behaviour is shame and absolutely disgusting. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1917	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1918	10/09/2013	You do not deserve a pay rise, people that deserve money are the people that lost their jobs in Campbell Newmans axing of jobs. Pull your head in and do the right thing, this is down right greed! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1919	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1920	10/09/2013	A pay rise of such magnitude just isn't fair. Especially when so many in Queensland are doing it so tough, with thanks going to this government. It is absolutely ridiculous, they should be required to pay back any monies they have already received in postponing/prolonging this payrise debacle. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1921	10/09/2013	Politicians pay rises should be linked to Public Service pay rises. These are in line with average wage rises for the community. A forty per cent wage increase is not in line with community expectations or values - it is obscene. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1922	10/09/2013	they say if you pay peanuts you get only monkeys. however we already have monkeys in charge. greedy one's at that. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1923	10/09/2013	I am in favour of politicians getting pay rises. Pay rises indexed to the inflation rate are a fair increase. When the raise in pay puts a state premier on a higher pay rate than the president of the USA, it is clear something is very wrong. Especially after so many cuts have been made to the public sector. If the LNP is so enthusiastic about cutting public spending, let's see them take a pay cut. Otherwise, keeping pace with inflation is more than enough of an increase. Thank you. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1924	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1925	10/09/2013	This proposal is one of the most hypocritical moves I have ever witnessed by a state government in the current economic climate. Your credibility is at stake - maybe you don't care as the assumption is that we will all forget if we are ignored for long enough. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1926	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1927	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1928	10/09/2013	?The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. ?The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. ?The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. ?The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. ?The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians? pay to Commonwealth politicians? pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1929	10/09/2013	In hard times, constituents expect leadership from their electoral representatives. Please display your leadership credentials by exercising the restraint you are demanding from the people of Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1930	10/09/2013	I have been a conservative political supporter for as long as i could vote. But no more. The Newman governments arrogance, their incessant efforts to fill their pockets with taxpayer money, their efforts to stifle the freedom of information act, their corruptness in giving govt jobs to friends and relations, and their unwillingness to sack their own corrupt politicians has finally driven this once loyal supporter to jump ship and support another party. I wish the Newman government all the bad luck they deserve. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1931	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1932	10/09/2013	The community should decide the salary of a politician. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1933	10/09/2013	I expect better leadership from our politicians who, after all, have a grave job to do in these challenging economic times. To, effectively, sack 12,000 public servants on the basis of re-balancing the public service while seeking to take a 40% pay rise is an affront to decency and the concept of political credibility. I am a conservative by belief and while I understand that the public service was out of balance under the previous administration I am appalled at the double standard being demonstrated by the current cohort of our politicians. Any decision to ratify this proposed salary increase is not in the public interest. To our politicians I say show some leadership and do what you are certainly capable of; retrospectively amend the offending legislation. As a point of interest in the late 1970's a state MP's salary was not too much more than a Degree qualified professional public servants salary. This is no longer the case and linking MP's salary to CPI increases or public service award increases will still provide adequate remuneration for an MP. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1934	10/09/2013	It's absolutely necessary that our elected representatives show the direction and leadership that we elected them to do. If they cannot demonstrate fiscal restraint, then how can they expect anybody else to. They MUST lead by example and only give themselves the pay rise that they are offering to all the public servants under their authority. That is only reasonable and fair. This is NOT the private sector which is ruled purely by greed. Our Members of Parliament are here to serve the public good and must not be slaves to self interest. This proposed pay rise, in this climate is totally irresponsible [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1935	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1936	10/09/2013	Who do these polities think they are. They were elected by the people and now they want to [inappropriate content] the people, they are abusing the powers they have. Any pay rise they get and I don't believe they have earned it because they are destroying this state not making it better, should be at the same level as what they are offering public servants 2.2.. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1937	10/09/2013	Politicians? pay rises should be linked to public sector wages outcomes which indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. Politicians who walk away from delivering the services our communities need don't deserve huge pay increases! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1938	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1939	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1940	10/09/2013	Stop the payrise The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1941	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1942	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1943	10/09/2013	I agree with the rationalization of politicians' pay. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1944	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1945	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1946	10/09/2013	The naked greed of the politicians is enough to do your head in. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1947	10/09/2013	A very greedy grab for well-paid politicians when thousands of public servants have been sacked and have no jobs. Shame on you Campbell Newman. You must have no conscience. A better idea would be for the pollies to be sacked. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1948	10/09/2013	This pay rise is unjustified given the salaries these politicians are already earning. The rest of the community is drowning. Whatever happened to the cost of living rises. If they are good enough for the rest of us then politicians should be subjected to the same. How dare they? Mr Newman hardly has the same level of responsibility that the US President has. It's laughable although not surprising given the unjust decisions they are making. Do these people have any decent values and ethics? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1949	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1950	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1951	10/09/2013	I live on a $19,000 pension a year. This needs to be raised before the politicians get ANOTHER pay rise! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1952	10/09/2013	This is completely unfair given our State's welfare and health system at the moment. I have many clients who cannot access healthcare, dental care and are not able to afford private health insurance therefore are subject to long waiting lists in public-sector health services. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1953	10/09/2013	A pay rise is certainly NOT acceptable to any politician who is on 80K a year or more, when there is such a large number of people out of work and unable to get work due to the shrinking local economy. Industry does not seem to be able to increase it's work force, although it would like to. The incentive needs to come from local governments in the form of Apprentice payouts for willing employers to assist in bringing down the cost of hiring more people. There is growing concern in the community on the expanding population of Brisbane without a growing sustainable industry, which will only spell disaster in the years to come. With the recent job cuts, it is without doubt disgraceful at best to even consider giving members of local government pay rises, when so many people have lost there jobs as a direct consequence of a government decision to sacrifice those jobs to assist the budget only to take from that budget for themselves. Anyone who earns more than 120K per year and wants a 40% rise is disgracefully greedy when there is so much need going on within the community. I'm talking honest hard working Australians who are struggling just to find work to put bread on the table. That money should be going into an economy stimulus package. At the end of the day, where does the money come from? From the pocket of the hard working honest Australian's tax money. That's where. Sorry, this was a bad year. If anyone in any job I know of has had a bad year, they do not get a pay rise, in fact it's often a pay cut or even worse a job cut. It's time the local government delivered on it's promises instead of patting itself on the back, especially when it is not earned. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1954	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1955	10/09/2013	Politicians should not be granted higher pay rises than they are suggesting public servants should accept. If public sector employees were asking for a 40 per cent pay rise they would be told the state cannot afford it. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1956	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1957	10/09/2013	My partner is a police officer with the QPS and the pathetic pay rise that was granted to them earlier this year is just a huge slap in the face by Campbell Newman. Not only have they had to fight to get any sort of pay rise, but because of some stupid new law that has just come in, they are now not entitled to any back pay from the whole time they've been waiting to get granted the pay rise in the first place. This pay rise by the way equates to around $20 a week to my partner?wow won't that help him, and he's at sergeant level?what are the poor connies getting? These are the people who protect us, who see the most heinous things and have to deal with the grubs in this society, a lot of the time putting their lives on the line. One would think the government would reward people like that, not continually * on their faces. To think just how much Campbell Newman will be getting for his next pay rise, for gods sake the man will be paid higher than the US President?and for what? What has he done for this state? God help up

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		if his bed buddy Tony Abbott wins this federal election?..I think I'll move to NZ The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1958	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
1959	10/09/2013	Not justified. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1960	10/09/2013	Superannuation is the only payment that politicians should receive when they retire and it should be in line with the ordinary public sector employee's benefits. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1961	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1962	10/09/2013	I have read the prepared dot points for the submission and fully agree with it's content. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1963	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1964	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1965	10/09/2013	It is not just a slap in the face for government workers but all tax payers in Queensland to see politician asking for such a large increase in wages. politicians seem to think we can afford to pay them out of the spare hard won wages and saving. Campbell start saving Queensland money by taking a wage cut. Then I will think you are for real. I voted for the LNP but never again. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1966	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1967	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1968	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1969	10/09/2013	Politicians should never get a rise greater than the average rise for small businesses in the state. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1970	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1971	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1972	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1973	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1974	10/09/2013	I worked for the government for over 20 years and we always had to fight for any pay increases which usually came in at around 2% per year and we had to show achievement in many parts of our work. What do the politicians have to prove before they get pay rises? The politicians should be working on the same scale that the other public servants are paid at and they need to be reminded that they are public servants as well and prove that they are worthy of the pay increase. Personally I don't believe that most of them are worth what they are paid now let alone getting a hefty pay increase. I fully agree with the above statements and support them 100% but also would like to see politicians proving that they have earned a pay increase not just giving themselves one because they can all vote to pass it through. Maybe the taxpayers should be allowed to vote on whether they have earned it or not. In this present climate I don't believe they have earned anything as the financial position of this state is dire at this time and if cut backs are happening to staff then the polities need to make cut backs as well. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1975		Politicians salary should be on a set multiple of the age pension and incremented at the same $ rate as the age pension (eg $1 age pension increment= $1 politicians increment.) after all most age pensioners have supported this political system by working in mediocre jobs and paying their taxes without any perqs such as super etc and politicians should not keep thinking that they are some special class who can be paid handsomely for failing to perform adequately what their electors put them in place to do. Out here in the real world workers do not get paid to underperform and in fact they get sacked forthwith if they fail to do their job satisfactorily, which is what should happen to politicians who fail to fulfil their promises and this should be enabled by a petition of their constituents to the Governor. After all is it not the case that people enter politics for the altruistic motives of benefitting their fellows and not just for their own and their friends financial wellbeing and therefore they should be content to keep their salaries and conditions at a reasonable level compared to their electors salaries and conditions of their electors. If they think that they are worth what executives in the commercial world receive then that is where they should be employed Thanking you for your attention [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1976	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1977	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1978	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1979	10/09/2013	It is appalling hypocrisy to be canning jobs and privatising services while awarding oneself pay rises. The rest of us have to fight like mad to get rises that even cover inflation. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1980	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1981	10/09/2013	14,000 Govt jobs cut by Newmann last year, a lot of people not only affected by being unemployed but people being pulled back from "acting up" in other positions i.e. A04 to come back to A02 job! We are all still waiting on our payrise from July 2012 which we probably won't get as they waste time argueing in court about it and if we do it will be like 2.2% and no back pay. Give them nothing! Don't vote for them! And for the love of God don't give them a 40% payrise. What are we giving them a payrise for so they sell of the country's only assets ie.hopitals and public services so we can enter a world where selling off power companies and phone companies makes it "so much cheaper" for us as a consumer - NOT!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1982	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1983	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1984	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1985	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1986	10/09/2013	How can someone be so hypocritical as to carry on about the budget so enthusiastically, destroy peoples lives and then give themselves a payrise. This is not acceptable. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1987	10/09/2013	What makes politicians so special and important that their wages must be increased by 40%? Cuts to important public sectors and polliie pay rises? Something doesn't add up right and it smells like rat. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1988	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1989	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1990	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1991	10/09/2013	Politicians' pay rises should be linked to public sector wages. There should be no more than a ten-times difference between the lowest paid public servant (say a base-grade clerk) and the highest paid public servant (that is, a politician, and by extension, the Premier of Qld). So if you Campbell Newman wants to pay himself more then he has to pay the clerk more as well. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1992	10/09/2013	It is quite easy to understand why politicians are frequently referred to as "Pigs with their snouts in the Trough" The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1993	10/09/2013	At a time when Queensland is slashing public service jobs to save money, it is unbelievable that the government is happy to vote themselves and their unelected personal advisers huge wages. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1994	10/09/2013	I am totally disgusted that Queensland MPs are eligible for this payrise when we are cutting services to health and education. How can that be? GREED GREED GREED The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1995	10/09/2013	you are public servants your pay should be reflected in line with public servants rates and increases and based on your performance so far you shouldn't be entitled to any wage increase. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1996	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1997	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1998	10/09/2013	Queenslands leader should lead by example. If Queensland is in such dire straits that we are laying off heaps of public servants because of a lack of money why should there be an increase of politicians pay. It is immoral. Our pollies are here to serve the public not manipulate our dwindling funds to give themselves a pay rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1999	10/09/2013	Absolutely disgusting, when so many have been made redundant by this state government that they should pat themselves on the back and give themselves a huge pay rise makes me sick. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2000	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2001	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2002	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2003	10/09/2013	I cannot believe that this is happening. where is the money coming from? Each time when it comes to money for the rest of the community, this state govt tells us there is none. The politicians salary rise should be the same as the rest of the civil service. See if they can live with that!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2004	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2005	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2006	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2007	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2008	10/09/2013	Politicians are like pigs in a trough. It seems to me that they are in the business to get what they can in as little time as they can for not much work. Gone are the days when people went into politics for the good of the Country. The wages they receive for the work done is far too high now, without further pay rises. No one needs that amount of money to live. Poor old age pensioners, single parents, young people not able to find work have to manage on a pittance while politicians are receiving wage rises that amount to more than a pensioner receives per year in total. Let the tribunal be made up of ordinary working folk and see how much pay rise they decide that politicians need to receive. No wonder Australia is going to the dogs. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2009	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2010	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2011	10/09/2013	?The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. ?The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. ?The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. ?The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. ?The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. Margaret Clarke The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2012	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2013	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2014	10/09/2013	Stop massive payrises for the politicians. but this stops short. Stop paying the politicians after they have left office. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2015	10/09/2013	I am concerned that politicians In Queensland would be gaining significant pay increases when they have just made thousands of people redundant. This is a blatant exercise of ideological power relations in action and reflects an undeserved level of disrespect for public servants who have somehow seen as easy targets and that the public will accept this passively. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2016	10/09/2013	Disgusted beyond words - your audacity is unbelievable. How can you cut jobs and services with the one hand claiming fiscal responsibility and with the other, behind your back, vote for pollie pay rises AGAIN. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2017	10/09/2013	How do politicians justify their wages to start with? How do they justify the money grabs through unnecessary expenses that seem to the public to be outright thoughtless and selfish waste, total disregard that it is the public taxes that they are spending, not some blessing from the genie of the lamp. If the government is keen to cut expenses, start with the politicians who seem to be able to engage employees for jobs they create out of their own heads. Rudd and his Minister for Cities is a horror story. Which one of Rudd's relatives does he have lined up for that one. The list of the cost of airfares is horrendous. It is time the politicians were called to order. They can't sit in their aeroplane seats flying all over the country, costing millions to that they can walk around having their photos taken, and not turn in a report of what they are doing, how they are going. I am all for a performance review of the politicians, just like any other job, to check that they are doing their job, on track, and haven't been seduced by the style to which they would love to become accustomed. I resent my money going to fund Rudd's nonsense, and every other politician's

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		grab, when I have worked hard for my money, paid my taxes, paid my dues, and now because they have overspent, they are reaching out into my little nest egg to take that off me, while their nest egg grows fatter and fatter without any restrictions. Stop the pollies payrise! Make them live on the basic wage and see what happens then. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2018	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2019	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2020	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2021	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2022	10/09/2013	I find it offensive that a State Government would even consider awarding itself a pay rise of 40% while slashing jobs and services to its electorate. Offensive, but not surprising from the Liberal party The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2023	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2024	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2025	10/09/2013	You are already getting enough. Do you think you deserve more money now you have done away with all the public servants. I don't think so!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2026	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2027	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2028	10/09/2013	I have been unemployed for the last two years, desperately seeking work wherever I can, including in a fast food restaurant one day per week trying to make ends meet after the cuts Campbell Newman made making it even harder to get a job now. Why on earth should politicians who already earn a substantial wage be allowed a 40% pay rise when I struggle to manage on part time work and unemployment! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2029	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2030	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2031	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2032	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2033	10/09/2013	They are paid well enough The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2034	10/09/2013	Link Politicians pay rises to the state public service. If we cannot afford to give hard working police, nurses and teachers a large pay rise, we certainly cannot afford to give politicians a large pay rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2035	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2036	10/09/2013	Ensure that all members are working to serve their constituents. How is this massive pay increase justified? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2037	10/09/2013	STOP the Politicians Pay Rise. Campbell Newman and his Govt. have frozen the Pays of other Queenslanders but is willing to fill his pockets and those of his politicians. There are children living below the Poverty line, there are people living on the streets. We need emergency housing, drug and alcohol programs. We need roads , hospitals and workers to man the hospitals. We need schools and More teachers. All of the above and MORE need to be funded before the Politicians' pockets are lined with more and more. I certainly wont be voting for this Govt. again. They have failed miserably. They need to be more humanitarian - reduce the crime rate. Reduce the suicide rate by developing more jobs with the money instead of being personally greedy. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2038	10/09/2013	Politicians are supposed to stand for the electorates but are lining their own pockets and leaving Pensioners and single parents and others on Newstart scraping to eat and keep warm. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2039	10/09/2013	CPI for politicians. Join the working club. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2040	10/09/2013	Queenslanders still remember the greed and graft of the Bjarke Pederson era. We do not want a repeat performance. We know what you are up to. We aren't stupid despite what you may think. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2041	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2042	10/09/2013	What a bloody disgrace, such greedy buggars, if they did their jobs with some community spirit instead of just grabbing the cash and bludging like Peter [inappropriate content] Dowling and the mates. Campbell Newman has little respect for public money The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2043	10/09/2013	Why should they get a rise when essential services are cut. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2044	10/09/2013	This payrise is beyond the understanding of every Rate Payer in Queensland and should not be allowed! A Tribunal set up by the Government is not independent and should not have the option of making the decision! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2045	10/09/2013	why are you politicians getting a pay rise and the health and education sectors are being cut? give us a break, you don't deserve what your getting now, so why more? give it to those who NEED it The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2046	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2047	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2048	10/09/2013	Campbell Newman and other State MPs, I implore you to give the same consideration to your own pay scale as you bestow upon the emergency services who serve this state so well. When you are trying to remove their penalties and give them a lousy 2% payrise, while giving yourselves a 47% payrise, well, that's just the height of unspeakable arrogance, particularly after the huge number of people you sacked, because you wanted to save money. How about you put your money where your mouths are and do the same. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2049	10/09/2013	Premier Campbell, any pollie who expects a pay rise and a huge one at that at this time, has completely lost touch with how tough the community is doing it out here. I vote NO to any pollie pay increase at this time The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2050	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2051	10/09/2013	A 40% pay increase for politicians, when they have promised our firefighters 2% is too hypocritical for words. It must not go ahead! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2052	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2053	10/09/2013	Queensland politicians have been stressing that Queensland is in a very poor financial position. The government has clearly pressed this in its arguments against public servants getting pay rises. It should also be a major consideration for politicians' pay rises. The outrage expressed in the community when the earlier proposed rise was announced shows that a significant rise is regarded as unacceptable. Politicians themselves have largely said that they should not get such a large pay rise. Electoral allowances should be maintained as a separate amount to ensure that politicians have a proscribed amount of money to service their electorates. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2054	10/09/2013	For the politicians to accept a large pay rise now is not only immoral and unethical it is disrespectful to the community they allege they serve after the government of the moment has cried poor and has dumped 12,000 of it's public servants on the scrap heap, and consequently severely impacting on public services The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2055	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2056	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2057	10/09/2013	Paymnet needs to be connected to minimum wage so they can only get a pay rise when all do. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2058	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2059	10/09/2013	I am disturbed that they feel it is acceptable to have a Payrise when Single Parent families are struggling to meet their basic needs. Housing affordability is critical. Where is the accountability for ignorance to what is happening in their community. Do the research... The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2060	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2061	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2062	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2063	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2064	10/09/2013	If anyone who earns more than 120K per year wants a 40% rise is disgracefully greedy when there is so much need going on within our community. I'm talking about honest hard working Australians who are struggling just to find work to put food on the table. That money should be going into an economy stimulus package. At the end of the day, where does the money come from? From the pocket of the hard working honest Australian's tax money. That's where. Sorry, this was a bad year. If anyone in any job I know of has had a bad year, they do not get a pay rise, in fact it's often a pay cut or even worse a job cut. It's time the local government delivered on it's promises instead of patting itself on the back, especially when it is not earned. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2065	10/09/2013	Generally speaking, politicians are liars and cheats. If they were employed in an industrial/commercial setting, they would be sacked for their deplorable/incompetent behaviour. Their salaries are already too high, given the inadequate leadership qualities they have shown up to this point in time. They are essentially public-employees and as such, the public should have the right, and the power, to determine their wages based on true merit - not lies and deception. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2066	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2067	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2068	10/09/2013	I also find it deplorable how short a time you have allocated for submissions and that this has been organised to coincide during a federal election. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2069	10/09/2013	We keep being fed this line 'pay peanuts you get monkeys' to justify rises in pollies salaries, and stories about how they would earn twice as much in the commercial market. Well, let them. I know of young mums with handicapped children who can't get respite care in Queensland, or have to wait for it, because there is no money in the health budget, of pensioners who have to save up to pay their electricity - and that's only what I know of. How arrogant are you to grant pay rises to politicians who are already, apart from their wages, on so many perks for travel, petrol allowances, meal allowances, away from home allowances. I am not against anyone being paid a fair and decent wage for their work and undoubtedly, although for the love of me and the experience of observing I don't know why, they seem to command more for their responsibilities - which incidentally are often not fulfilled. However, they are well paid now compared to MOST Australians - and not comparing to the CEOs of Telstra or other major companies, who seem to be feted with obscene wages. I object with every essence of fair play and wealth distribution, and the fact that many of us do not enjoy the privilege of automatic pay rises, approved by our internal systems. NO PAY INCREASES. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2070	10/09/2013	Stop lining polities pockets and start helping the people who are working hard and thereby raising the taxes the polities so freely spread amongst themselves. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2071	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2072	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2073	10/09/2013	How can the public take politicians seriously when there is not enough money to pay nurses a decent wage but there is enough for overpaid politicians to take a huge wage rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2074	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2075	10/09/2013	The politician payrise is hypocritical in the current times of austerity and reduction in spending on public servant wages. Our politicians are, after all, our pre-eminent public servants. If the government had the will it could overcome any putative legislative "impediment". The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2076	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2077	10/09/2013	I find the proposal to increase State Politicians salary reprehensible and downright arrogant. It should be linked to performance targets achieved over x no: of years. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2078	10/09/2013	In this time of job losses(I lost my job just before Christmas)it is absolutely obscene that politicians would even consider putting their own pay up. They are vastly overpaid as it is &amp; are not a productive part of our society. They should feel honoured to serve their country, not put their snouts in the trough. If anything, politicians should vote themselves a pay cut. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2079	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2080	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2081	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2082	10/09/2013	As a taxpayer and Queenslander, I am strongly opposed to the politicians' payrise which I feel is (1) overly generous and disproportional to CPI, (2) comes at the cost and on the backs of LNP's deep cuts to the public service in Queensland (e.g. in education, health services, community services, fire and rescue, police and ambulance services). I know of decisions to cut in the healthcare sector which seemed to be made without proper examination and scrutiny, resulting in loss of high-performing and valuable parts of the health service which had contributed tangibly to improve patient safety, medication safety and a high-quality (and relevant) clinical education and training of junior healthcare staff. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2083	10/09/2013	"Representatives" must show that expenses are evenly distributed across meeting with all sections of the community, not just the cashed up part of town. Spending should be allocated evenly across socioeconomic status of meeting attendees, not just business owners and corporation representatives. When was the last time a "representative" listened to the desires and needs of a homeless person, an unemployment benefit or sickness benefit recipient, an abused child under the "care" of the state, or a pensioner trying to pay the rent? Also, "representatives" should allocate a minimum of 50% of their private/public meetings per year to lower socioeconomic status individuals - thus time and money can be shown to be invested in the people they claim to "represent" The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2084	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2085	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2086	10/09/2013	It is appalling hypocrisy to be slashing low paid jobs for ordinary mums and dads and privatising services which will ultimately mean the most vulnerable will miss out, as is all too frequently becoming the trend in our state, while awarding oneself exorbitant, unrealistic and unnecessary pay rises. The rest of us have to beg and fight for increases that don't even cover inflation. Ordinary people are getting fed up with costs rising out of all proportion and the struggle to get by on what used to be reasonable wages but is now below the poverty line. The current government is very out of touch with grass roots constituents and what they consider reasonable - politicians try listening to them some time and actually doing something about it. Politicians don't need a pay rise - they need a pay cut - then we may actually have a chance of getting people who care about this state to run it. I am disgusted. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2087	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2088	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2089	10/09/2013	The behavior and attitude of this LNP government with premier Newman at the helm is disgraceful. Cut cut and more cuts but it's ok to give a 40% pay-rise to members and made worse on the way it was approved by Deputy Premier Seeney - so unprofessional and unethical. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2090	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2091	10/09/2013	I find it absolutely disgusting that the Queensland politicians should try to award themselves a 40% pay increase after sacking thousands of workers, their salaries should be linked to public servants pays and never go up by any percent more than the people they are supposed to be looking after, Liberal government = greedy bastards, government should be about looking after people not about how much cash you can grab for yourselves, shame The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2092	10/09/2013	I am totally opposed to the Queensland Politicians Pay Rise, particularly in light of the Queensland Government trying to minimise the small increased being sought for by the various emergency and health workers in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2093	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2094	10/09/2013	pigs at the trough! I think its disgusting when these hypocrites demand austerity when they give themselves a massive payrise. Mr Newman is an ex-army officer and he should surely know that one must lead by example so how about a pay cut which workers where I work maybe facing?? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2095	10/09/2013	Get real you [inappropriate content] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2096	10/09/2013	Some of us in Queensland believe that having a State Government at all is hugely expensive, unnecessary waste of money. Local government and federal government is all a country as small as Australia needs. Given this, you can understand that I think Queensland State politicians are worth nothing at all. The very least the Tribunal should do is reduce the salaries of State politicians. They are worthless parasites and a blight on this State. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2097	10/09/2013	If the public service only get a 3% pay rise so should the politicians. If there package includes cars, telephones are travel reimbursements they should not be entitled to any more than any one else that works for the government. ie public servants. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2098	10/09/2013	I don't think the politicians should be granted a 41% pay rise. If they are offering 2.2% to hard working Police, Firefighters , Ambo's , because "there is no money" then how can they justify such a payrise. It is hypocrisy. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2099	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2100	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2101	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2102	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2103	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2104	10/09/2013	Tie pollies pay rises to public servants EB agreements.. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2105	10/09/2013	Politicians' pay rises should be decided by an independent body - not by the people themselves !! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2106	10/09/2013	In relation to pay rises of politicians, what is the difference between the general PUBLIC, and POLITICIANS ?? nothing except that they think they are privileged, so they have a POLITICAL TRIBUNAL, for their own pay packets, WHY?? IT IS THE ONLY COUNTRY IN WESTERN WORLD THAT I KNOW OF, THAT WE, THE PEOPLE, GET THE CRUMBS AND THE FAT CAT POLITICIANS GET THEIR BIG PAY RISES, and THEIR EXTRAS, WITHOUT HAVING TO BE ACCOUNTABLE, WHERE THE HECK DO THEY THINK THE MONEY COMES FROM???. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2107	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2108	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2109	10/09/2013	?The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2110	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2111	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2112	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2113	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2114	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2115	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2116	10/09/2013	I believe that a person must earn a reasonable wage for the job performed. When people are sacked, jobs are cut, services are cut.... all in the name of balancing the budget.... then those doing the pruning must look at their own remuneration and cut that as well. A politician does NOT deserve a payrise for putting workers out of jobs and cutting necessary services to communities.. You CANNOT cut workers conditions and services to improve a budget just to put that money in your own pockets.. in what other job but politics, can people get a payrise just after they start and for breaking pre-election promises The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2117	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2118		Why do Polititians have a separate tribunal for their pay rises,after all as John Howard said when he became PM that he was after all just a humble PUBLIC SERVANT ,and as such they should be under the same rules as every other public servant in this country. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2119	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2120	10/09/2013	Politicians are publicservants so should get same pay and allowance rates. CPI increases only. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2121	10/09/2013	At a time when Australia faces an uncertain future surely it is the ethical and moral thing for politicians to set an example for the people they represent by being willing to seriously lower or refuse pay rises completely. It seems obscene for any Politician to even consider a pay rise of 40% when the country is in danger of recession. Anna Bligh had the courage to freeze the exorbitant pay increases when Labour was in power perhaps the Campbell- Newman government would like to show Queenslanders that they have more than their personal finances on their minds. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2122	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2123	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2124	10/09/2013	This pay grab by the LNP is immoral and needs to be reversed, especially with the wholesale sackings of so many people in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2125	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2126	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2127	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2128	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2129	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2130	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2131	10/09/2013	Politicians should not have a pay rise, especially during the economic downturn. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2132	10/09/2013	With Queensland employees suffering anxiety about the security of their jobs and always with very limited pay rises when they come, it is obscene for politicians to be awarded huge increases in light of poor performance. Make it linked to outcome and it might be acceptable. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2133	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2134	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2135	10/09/2013	My reasonable and sensible pay increase entitlements that align with CPI were frozen when Campbell took office under the notion that he had to save the state by reducing state expenditure. I can't see any possible way in which the pollie pay rise of 40% can be justified - considering the justifications used for all the cuts that have been made elsewhere in QLD's Public Service. It's disgusting and incredibly out of touch with community expectations. It's an abuse of power. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2136	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2137	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2138	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2139	10/09/2013	Pay rises should be set the same as what Public Servants get. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2140	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2141	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2142	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2143	10/09/2013	Politicians are public servants and receive their remuneration from state funds, just like other public servants. As such, their wages and salaries should be subject to the same percentage increase as provided to public sector workers. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2144	10/09/2013	How do politicians think they deserve an outrageous pay rise, when they are trying to cut penalty rates for our paramedics, privatise public hospitals,, our health and education are in an appalling mess. They need to take a pay cut like they are trying to do to our emergency services employees. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2145	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2146	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2147	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2148	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2149	10/09/2013	Politicians are Public Servants ? in many cases in the position without the qualifications, experiences and specific criteria required to be appointed to the job as the thousands of workers serving the Community. Therefore any pay rises should be linked (and certainly no higher than) those achieved by the Public Service. Electoral Allowances should be kept separate from salaries (and scrupulously accounted for legitimacy) as are any expenses incurred in the course of earning income and recouped by an employee. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2150	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2151	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2152	10/09/2013	How about a 2 or 3 per cent pay rise?... In line with what other public servants are getting. Politicians pay should also be performance based like many other high paid / high profile professionals. Also, politicians have many aides and assistants who do most of the hard work, while the polities take all the credit. I also believe there are too many tiers of government and bureaucracy and that the state governments should be abolished in favour of more local governing. Getting those snouts out of the trough would probably save billions (in waste). The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2153	10/09/2013	If our state is in so much debt and jobs and services must be cut, your government should lead by example and cut your own salaries and benefits not increase them. You were elected by the people of Queensland to serve, protect and provide. So far the only people you are helping is yourselves!!!!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2154	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2155	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2156	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2157	10/09/2013	How can they justify giving themselves a pay rise, some up to 26% and then fight us when we want a 2 % pay increase to stay in line with inflation and the cost of living. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2158	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2159	10/09/2013	Make the pay rise not above the average of Queensland Public servants since the last increase. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2160	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2161	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2162	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2163	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2164	10/09/2013	You are an elected servant of the people, not a self serving dictatorship. Pay attention to the needs of your employee's above the greeds of yourself. If we need to show an increase in our performance to get a 3% pay increase, do you not think you should dazzle us with amazing results for a 40% pay increase. Wake up. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2165	10/09/2013	How dare you show the contempt to give or allow the pay rise you have in mind for politicians when you fight so hard not to give us workers a pay rise, We are the ones doing the work certainly not you bastards The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2166	10/09/2013	Pollies are meant to be for the people so why do they give them selves hugh pay rises. Instead of pay rises put more staff into hospitals were people are saved. We are not here to pay for fat cats when you already earn more than enough The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2167	10/09/2013	It bloody well stinks and they are greedy grubs. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2168	10/09/2013	40% payrise - a lot of us wouldnt mind the 40% as our yearly salary!!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2169	10/09/2013	The general public opinion now of Politicians is that of a [inappropriate content] flooding in a sewerage plant.. Don't let it become lower.. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2170	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2171	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2172	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2173	10/09/2013	Its not right what while the LNP is asking eveyone to tighten their belts and natioanlly the plan to slash spending that ANY pollie gets a pay rise at all. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2174	10/09/2013	NO MORE PAYRISES! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2175	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2176	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2177	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2178	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2179	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2180	10/09/2013	The Queensland government is in Big Brother mode. They have the attitude that they are above the rest of us so deserve huge pay packets. It is time citizens in this state/country grew up, matured and showed some back bone. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2181	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2182	10/09/2013	Just in these days it is just unacceptable that politicians are filling their pockets and taking it out of the normal people pockets. Just cancel the binding connection to the Canberra's pollies so QLD pollies don't have to worry about the future skyrocketing increases. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2183	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2184	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2185	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2186	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2187	10/09/2013	the idea that this lot of politicians deserves an enormous payrise is ludicrous and cruel when they've destroyed the jobs and lives of so many people without a thought! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2188	10/09/2013	This is nothing short of greed and hypocrisy...none of you have earned a pay increase of any amount and as it is my tax dollars I insist it is given to other public servants to keep this state going!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2189	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2190	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2191	10/09/2013	The average worker earns around $50,000 to $70,000 and many work many more than the 38 hours week to earn it. I think these sort of rises are outrageous and if 2% is offered for public servants then that is all they entitled to get themselves. I'm angry that Campbell Newman was in constant attendance with Tony Abbott when he was in Qld. I thought WE were paying him to run Qld not electioneer for the Coalition. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2192	10/09/2013	Politicians are no more entitled to large pay rises than anyone else. Neither should their pay rates be linked to people in other countries or states. Pay rates should be linked to the percentage given to the public servants and general public that our politicians are serving. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2193	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2194	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2195	10/09/2013	It is a disgrace that in a time where you have been cutting back on services that you would allow a pay rise. It is also a disgrace that you would even possibly think that a 40% pay rise was acceptable.... surely your takin the [inappropriate content]. If this pay rise goes through, you will suffer hugely at the next election Mr Newman... I will not vote for you a second time. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2196	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2197	10/09/2013	Politicians should be reminded that once elected they become Public Servants and with that comes the great responsibility of spending the Publics' Money wisely....not enhancing their own lifestyle at Public Expense.They deserve a Fair Salary....but what is Fair should come under greater scrutiny and not be decided by the Parliament but a completely separate organization or Ombudsman, The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2198	10/09/2013	I disagree with Cambell Newman giving the government such a massive increase in pay, if he can afford to do this then he can afford to increase the electrical rebate for all qld pensioners, but according to the government they can't afford to this, if they can't afford to increase the pension elect rebate, then they can't afford to give themselves such a ridiculous pay increase. [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2199	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2200	10/09/2013	Give them a massive decrease in pay The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2201	10/09/2013	I am a pensioner/part self-funded retiree and my husband is the same. We survive on $38,000 p.a. I think the amount of the pay rise for Queensland politicians is obscene. Let them try and live in the real world! Queensland is broke. Put the money into paying back some of the debt left by the Labor Government and restore our faith in the LNP. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2202	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2203	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2204	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2205	10/09/2013	Why should Pollies give themselves a pay rise when they are sacking everyday workers I am a pensioner we don't get a pay rise of $100, people should have to vote for the Pollies to get a pay rise The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2206	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2207	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2208	10/09/2013	The Tribunal must consider that the Newman government ran on a platform of minimising waste and correcting the budget deficit.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		As a result of these promises thousands of Queenslanders are now without work and more are to follow. It is inconsistent with the promises of this government to now allow over-paid politicians even more money. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2209	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2210	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2211	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2212	10/09/2013	I think it is so wrong that they get yet another pay rise, When the local worker, such as school teacher, hairdresser, painter, nurse etc, When was there last pay rise. What do they do for us, they take advantage of there power, &amp; take advantage of dinners cars travel holidays using tax payers money, we could put that money to help our homeless, our agecare, hospitals, roads etc The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2213	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2214	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2215	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2216	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2217	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2218	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2219	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2220	10/09/2013	I disagree with politicians getting a pay rise, really what do they do to earn one, and what about all the ex service personnel who are living on a pension sometimes less than old age pensioners, I think they deserve a pay rise more than these so called politicians running or supposedly running our country when they are not fighting like two year olds The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2221	10/09/2013	When you are making thousands redundant and also privatizing departments to save money it is unreasonable to allow huge pay rises for mps and the premier. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2222	10/09/2013	How can you politicians even think of a pay rise when all the pensioners are struggling to meet everyday expenses? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2223	10/09/2013	about time something was done about the greedy polititions The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2224	10/09/2013	All pay increases to be no more that the usual CPI for other employees The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2225	10/09/2013	We do not have the population and economy to support the wages received (not earned) by our politicians. Our politicians should be receiving only 1/5th in comparison to the US politicians as we have 1/5 th the size of their population. Any government or politicians who do not act in the best interests of the Australian people should be personally and financially responsible for their mistakes, eg Qld Health pay system. None of them are worth the money they receive and a better way of justifying the pay base should be implemented. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2226	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2227	10/09/2013	It has been my delight to interest many young people in the political system. However, it is hard to counteract the negative image of politicians. Much of this is deserved when politicians are seen to be self-interested rather than having the traditional motivation of wanting to do something worthwhile for the people they represent. It is no wonder that people are cynical when politicians argue for the need for such enormous wage increases. How can we believe that they are worried about the economy when they vote themselves an extra 40% of an already huge publicly funded wage while putting off other public servants? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2228	10/09/2013	This is rediculas while most of us live on the bread line the polititions seem to think they are not paid enough, it has to stop. To make matters worse we get slugged kmore to put the state and federal into the black, this may be by power phone rates etc. cut your pay down to basic wages then australia will have ample money to catch up on extremly large debt. ENOUGH IS ENOUGH. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2229	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2230	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2231	10/09/2013	Politicians payrises should be linked to all other public sector workers like ambos, nurses, police, fire fighters. They serve us, not the other way around. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2232	10/09/2013	You work for us ... so ASK US if you want a payrise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2233	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2234	10/09/2013	Enough is enough, they are slowly sucking the life out of OUR country. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2235	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2236	10/09/2013	Give this money to our hospitals. I am a 19 yr old sufferer with scoliosis and there is no money in he hospitals to fix me! This is a joke and I can't live like this for much longer. To think that these lying [inappropriate content] get MORE money is heart wrenching. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2237	10/09/2013	It is immoral for politicians to be awarding themselves this grossly unfair wage increase when so many cuts have been made to jobs and services in QLD and many families are struggling to make ends meet. It is disgusting and wrong and I'm very glad I didn't vote for Newman the first time and CERTAINLY won't be doing so the second time! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2238	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2239	10/09/2013	Campbell Newman sacked 70% of my customer base (I have had 70% of my emails returned with "mailer daemon" because they were all from my city girls/women who worked in town for the govt. who gave me their work email addresses for notifications of sales and events) and [personal information] things have never been this bad. It has affected all of retail in the Brisbane CBD. Even Myer and David Jones had to sack a lot of their staff as there are less shoppers in the city now. This has flowed through to a lot of empty shops for rent all throughout the CBD. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2240	10/09/2013	All politicians are being paid to much as it is Doesn't seem fair their pay rise is equal to or more than some family's yearly income. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2241	10/09/2013	I cannot understand how the privileged in politics have no compassion about others in society. How much money does one person need? Greedy, greedy, greedy!!! No other sectors in society continue to receive astronomical pay for ?..NOTHING, for the rest of their life!!! Plus all the extras. Obviously no guilty consciences in politics. Just take what you can from the public purse and look out for yourself! It honestly makes me sick in the stomach to see the selfishness of people who don't give a damn about the underprivileged in society and the workers who are the backbone of our community. I am disgusted. Pigs in the trough! Look after the pensioners who built what we have today with their blood, sweat and tears and no handouts. Hang your heads in shame if you don't oppose this ridiculous pay handout. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2242	10/09/2013	It is amazing that the politicians can make new legislation when it suits them to stop other Government employees obtaining a payrise because they claim the State can't afford it, or to change their working conditions but can't make a legislation change that will affect . The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2243	10/09/2013	Should be getting a pay decrease, if you want to earn this money go work for a private company, public servants are there to look after their employers interests and not the polities pockets. Politicians wages should be on the same scale and fairness as every other employee in Australia. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2244	10/09/2013	Give them the same payrises as a Teacher Aide. 3% over 3 years!!! Because that's all they gave us. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2245	10/09/2013	I do not support the current pay increase for Queensland State MPs. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2246	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2247	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2248	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2249	10/09/2013	Their pay is is higher than the aged pension they wanted the job to help people this is not helping at all .Hospitals, Education &amp; Essential services could benefit by this cash grab. Perhaps they should take a leaf out of Clem Jones book . The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2250	10/09/2013	Unbelievable. How many nurses would that money re-employ. Maybe make the Sunshine Coast University Hospital a true PUBLIC hospital instead of a pretend one. How many police and other public servants could we re-employ instead of you lot lining your pockets- how do you sleep at night??? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2251	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2252	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2253	10/09/2013	Be honest at least now and act righteously and make the right decision. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2254	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2255	10/09/2013	It is disgraceful what the politicians give themselves yet sack the working class government workers nurses, cleaners, correctional officers, office staff etc.ect where is the justification in this. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2256	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2257	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2258	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2259	10/09/2013	do not give any pay increase to any member of government state or federal for 5 years, and their superannuation should be capped at only $100,000 per year increasing at cpi. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2260	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2261	10/09/2013	When we vote a man or woman in to work for the good of the public we don't expect you to turn into a mob of money grabber's to line your pockets and have a life of riley you are there to represent us and the well being of the hard working people of Australia, we have 100,000 people sleeping rough through no fault of there own rents far to high for the majority. So I say to you politicians who we vote in get your act together stop the lies &amp; [inappropriate content] and help the people who need it most and for once put your honest cap on and do what we put you in office to do. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2262	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2263	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2264	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2265	10/09/2013	If the state can't afford to offer important people in the community such as Healthcare worker, Police, Emergency service workers a pay rise then the politicians shouldn't have a pay rise. Stop spending money on stupid studies and perks then fair pay can be had. Nobody should be given a car for there job and pollies should drive themselves about. How about we get rid of a level of government The councils could be stronger for local issues, and the federal government can look after the services needed every where such as hospitals, schools, police and services, then we don't need state government. Less pollies more money for essentials. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2266	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2267	10/09/2013	Make the pay rise not above the average of Queensland Public servants since the last increase. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2268	10/09/2013	My solution is rather than set up another expensive tribunal that politician's pay rises be the same as those awarded to the public service, Also there must be more accountability of MPs allowances, perhaps it would cut down the self serving mail I receive that purports to be public information. Other public servants such as teachers and nurses could also argue that their remuneration is not commensurate with the duties carried out, but generally they are restricted to cost of living increases. I definitely oppose the incorporation of allowances into salary. Another point it was suggested that the increase would be paid for by removing campaign funding unless a candidate received 10% as opposed to the present 4%. I regard this as an insidious attack by stealth on our democratic system to stifle by starving of funds peoples right to express an alternative point of view., thank you The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2269	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2270	10/09/2013	What is good enough for everyday Queenslanders should be good enough for the Politicians that are elected to serve all Queenslanders! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2271	10/09/2013	It is unbelievable that this government has even considered this payrise The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2272	10/09/2013	if politicians do not believe they are getting a fair wage, they should resign and make way for others that would love to be earning their type of money The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2273	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2274	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2275	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2276	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2277	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2278	10/09/2013	The public should be able to view all expenditures annually and be able question any abnormal amounts requested. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2279	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2280	10/09/2013	Don't allow it please! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2281	10/09/2013	All politicians pay shall/should be directly linked to the Public Service pay scales!!!!!! So if they grant themselves a pay rise then all public servants get the same pay rise. This is exactly what New Zealand parliament polities are tied to. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2282	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2283	10/09/2013	Their suppose to be public servants, that work for the people. Not rip them off with over the top pay and benefits. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2284	10/09/2013	I believe the politician's pay should be inline with that of all Qld public servants. If a 2 or 2.2% pay increase, or none at all, is all that the State budget can afford then politician's should be given the same. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2285	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2286	10/09/2013	I cannot understand the salaries and benefits now bestowed upon politicians. Have their duties truly become so much more onerous since Queensland first elected a parliament? With the tyranny of distance broken by air travel and modern communications why do our politicians need to have such large travel expenses. Why aren't they simply reimbursed for their out of pocket expenses like the majority of employees are in this country. Why do they feel they require to be treated to 1st class travel? I have the greatest respect for Bob Katter and this started when I once flew from Brisbane to Townsville. Several Federal Politicians were on the flight. Every one of them except Bob sat in first class. He sat with us general public and he spoke to everyone who spoke to him. He is in touch with what the every day Australian is feeling because he is interested. What justification do Queensland's politicians have for this current pay rise? Their should be direct links to their performance - hours spent actually dealing with their constituents and bringing about positive change - if the State is not saving/making money then why should they be paid any more? I believe that the Parliaments wages should be DIRECTLY linked to the pay increases that they offer to Public Sector workers. My justification for this is the fact they are simply the highest level of PUBLIC SERVANTS. They are ELECTED by the PUBLIC to SERVE them. Unfortunately over the years they have come to have a belief that they are there to reign over us and we are here to serve them. All politicians need to have a reality check, do what they are paid to do and accept a reasonable amount of pay for it. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2287	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2288	10/09/2013	I strenuously object to the flagrant misuse of public money - our money, my money. Politicians should not be given a massive pay rise. In this difficult financial time it behoves our politicians to consider taking a pay cut and to consider that everyone else is doing it tough. It is absolutely disgraceful to take advantage of the vested interests that all sides or parliament, all party members have to vote themselves a huge pay rise. WE THE PEOPLE OBJECT. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. Details of MP's details expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Transparency is essential. A politician afraid of transparency, or revealing what they spend OUR money on, is a dishonest politician. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The system stinks. Politicians are taking advantage of their power and the fact that most will not oppose a pay rise - especially not such a huge one. Disgraceful behaviour. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2289	10/09/2013	I guess a politicians pay rise is far more important than areas such as health services etc. Have fun on your vacations and think of all the people who have lost their jobs and will in the future due to your ridiculous job cuts, as they won't even afford medication, Rent, mortgages and so on! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2290	10/09/2013	when are they going to realize that all this extra monies that they want could be used to stop cutting services constantly The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2291	10/09/2013	I fully endorse a FAIR AND REASONABLE remuneration for any employee, whether within Queensland Government or not. But I DO NOT accept that a 42% pay rise which amounts to approximately $50 000 is fair and reasonable. NO other employee in the state gets this. Queensland's essential services such as hospitals, police, ambulance service, schools, etc...have seen massive cuts in funding under the Newman led LNP. To now ask the public to allow them such a pay rise, nevertheless backdated 4 years, is a massive INSULT to every single resident of Queensland!!! On a personal note...My brother could not access adequate care or any palliative care services whilst he was dying of cancer last year. Why? Lack of funding! But the state can afford a 42% pay rise for politicians??? INSULTING. The other issue I would like to raise, as I feel very passionately about it, is the fact that politicians continue to receive wages and allowances such as for vehicles, offices, travel, etc...after their term of office is complete. THIS NEED TO STOP. Why should the taxpayers continue to fund their lifestyle after their term of office? I do not feel that the taxpayer has any legal or moral obligation to do so. It has been made quite obvious that their salary package PLUS allowances whilst in office is MORE THAN QUITE SUFFICIENT to be considered fair and reasonable remuneration for the job they do. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2292	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2293	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2294	10/09/2013	Who are we voting for these days, politicians or pirates? Their employers should advocate the pay rise i.e. the citizens of Queensland. Salaries should be comparable to general market. A honest days work for an honest days pay, no more, no less. A gold pen &amp; a hand shake on retirement like every other public servant! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2295	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2296	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2297	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2298	10/09/2013	Let's make Newman's a one-term government. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2299		The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2300	10/09/2013	In agree wholeheartedly The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2301	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2302	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2303	10/09/2013	Why should you get a payrise when we don't!!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2304	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2305	10/09/2013	The benefits that ex politicians receive should be slashed immediately ie free travel, office assistants. The percentage that the current politicians receive in superannuation should be reduced and not increased. The privatisation of Government assets is ludicrous look at what Beattie has done with our electricity supply. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2306	10/09/2013	I am completely and utterly outraged at the very idea of politicians receiving yet another pay rise - especially a 40% increase - when the rest of us just get the usual CPI. It is not acceptable, they do not deserve it and I am so sick of hearing about ridiculous pay increases, benefits, option to take superannuation before retirement age, expensive perks even after leaving office - over it big time! This has to stop and it has to stop now!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2307	10/09/2013	Too much, for too few, doing too little. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2308	10/09/2013	we artists live on average of $15000 per year with an average education of at least a degree with no complaints so how do you justify your huge pay increase? i dont accept this and neither do all the other low paid workers let alone the unemployed or the pensioners. shame on you after you told everyone that anna bligh was a money spender! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2309	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2310	10/09/2013	LNP party offered QLD Police a 2.2 percent pay rise on a take it or leave it basis, yet a fortnight after this was accepted by police given the state of the Qld economy and as stated by LNP there was no money to offer any more than that, politicians gave themselves a 40 percent pay rise! This is unacceptable given that the LNP has not even offered nurses or fire and rescue anything, they are still waiting. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2311	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2312	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2313	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2314	10/09/2013	This is outrageous, I don't follow politics much at all, but it looks like from a distance that this is one of the very, very few issues that they all agree on. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2315	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2316	10/09/2013	With all the belt tightening around Qld, Politicians need to be leading by example. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2317	10/09/2013	Politicians get paid too much now let alone a huge increase. put it in line with the average australians wag increases. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2318	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2319	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2320	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2321	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2322	10/09/2013	Politians should enter politics wanting to better their fellow citizens lives not for financial gain. The politians superannuation deal shows the greed and elitism within Australian politics and that the politians have no shame. How can Newman put health workers out of employment to pay for the politians decision to use IBM to design a payroll system, while IBM get away scotfree. Disgraceful to say the very least. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2323	10/09/2013	Why do you think you deserve a huge pay rise when, due to the current governments staffing cutback I have to do three times the work I used to do with no pay rise for 4 years. Also working conditions are hard enough with out the financial drain on our house hold. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2324	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2325	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2326	10/09/2013	Polititions need to remember they represent the public. We vote them in and we pay them to serve us. We pay them what they are worth- and no more. If they tell us to tighten our belts they must do the same- lead by example. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2327	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2328	10/09/2013	I am totally disgusted at the proposed pay rise that our elected politicians are being granted. Where is the accountability for their actions. How dare they cut back on government expenditure that cost many Queenslanders their livelihood, then have the gall to grant themselves such massive pay rises. How dare they make a mess of our economy with their stupid political decisions (For eg: Qld Health Pay Debacle) then be rewarded by such massive pay increases. I am truly absolutely totally disgusted. If anything they should be jailed as a result. They should indeed be held accountable for decisions that lead to such wasted public funds, and not rewarded as such. They should be treated the same as any other public servant and not be held above others like some sort of royalty or celebrity figure. I am sickened to the core and absolutely totally opposed their proposed pay increases. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2329	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2330	10/09/2013	Try living as a single part time working mother who also studies, earning 700 pw, 260 goes to rent, 100 to food, and between petrol, insurance, budgeting for bills like electricity...not much is left. In this day &amp; age a mother should also not have to return to work full time until their child is 13 at least as the current age of 8, is crazy. An 8 yr old cannot defend itself in a bsd situation. it also means the child may be home alone till 6pm when the parents can return, and what sort of childhood is that? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2331	10/09/2013	Disgusting, how about a 40% payrise for the real workers of our country... the public !!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2332	10/09/2013	How can these politicians have a conscience to take a rediculously large pay increase when they have sacked so many public servants and destroyed their lives. This state is in such a state of disrepair with debt to our eyeballs that these pigs at the trough just get fatter. Not bloody happy as a Queenslander doing it tough!!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2333	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2334	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2335	10/09/2013	The pay rise is not in keeping with world industry standards and should not be accepted by those who seek monetary gain only, The performance of governing during this period has not been keeping up with the expectation required to warrant the increases sought after. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2336	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2337	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2338	10/09/2013	Polies just don't care about State gov employees who work there butts off despite little recognition.....most of us do have a conscience and work for self worth unlike Newman and his cronies.... The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2339	10/09/2013	After their sacking of thousands of government staff now we see the money going into their own pockets. Absolute disgrace. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2340	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2341	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2342	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2343	10/09/2013	Politicians should be subject to the same concessions and cutbacks as every other tax-payer funded service and staff member has been over the past 12 months or so. It is disgusting that they would even consider taking any form of payrise when thousands of comparatively low-paid public servants have lost their jobs and services subsequently been cut back in the name of economic efficiency. These people (i.e. politicians) are already very well paid and do not work any harder than every other public servant. They should not have been entitled to such outrageously high salaries in the first place. The double standards and self-serving attitudes displayed by this government are sickening. Before any services (i.e. public service jobs) are cut back, there should be cut backs to the salaries and positions of politicians. Cuts should start from the top down where less impact will be felt by the public who access the services and the hard working middle class people and families who service the public within government roles. Much fewer jobs will need to be cut if they are done from the top down - starting with the politicians who should have to justify the necessity of their own numbers and positions like every other tax-payer funded position and service. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2344	10/09/2013	The increase should be the same as public servants. The 'proposed' increase for this year should be retroactively cancelled and redone at the same level as senior public servants. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2345	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2346	10/09/2013	NO PAY RISE following the dispicable tactics of Newman and his government lackies forced unmercilessly on Public Servants. Also endorse the comments by [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2347	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2348	10/09/2013	Politicians are employees of the people, to represent the people. They assume their positions because they are suppose to ?care? for their communities. They are no bigger, bolder or more intellectually adept than the community that they represent. Whilst they engage in a media focus during parliamentary sittings, they realistically work no harder than a senior public servant of an SES 2 level. As such, enough is enough and they should be linked to the SES level. We the public are drowning in the constant cut back to health , housing , education and pensions while also having the constant increase in our every day living expense's. We should all be very careful who we place as the leaders of our country because if we place the wrong party leaders in we are going to drown. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2349	10/09/2013	I also find it offensive a State Government would consider giving themselves a payrise of 40%. The message is continually about reducing costs and minimalisation. What does this save? Nothing. Increasing your wage over and above other senior diplomats is disgusting. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2350	10/09/2013	can i ask why the politicians are asking for an over the top payrise. When they have only offered the public service such a small payrise with no back pay. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2351	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2352	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2353	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2354	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2355	10/09/2013	Answer is simple really. Pay them what they're worth and then give the hypocrites a polly bonus so that their income is the same as that of pensioners. Also, at the next election, get rid of your sitting member. The incoming crew will better understand who works for who. See this govt job ad  https://smartjobs.qld.gov.au/jobtools/jncustomsearch.viewFullSingle?in_organid=14904&amp;in_jnCounter=221371128&amp;in_orderby=scoring desc            The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2356	10/09/2013	This is a self serving, greedy and disgusting idea. How dare they desire to give themselves a pay rise whilst decimating TAFE, hospitals and plans to ruin the Barrier reef! And lord knows what other sneaky, devious and evil plans for Queenslanders!.....With SOLIDARITY AND SUPORT FROM A VICTORIAN WITH MANY QUEENSLAND FRIENDS WHOSE LIVES WILL BE EFFECTED by this out of control right wing government of yours. Shame Cambell Newman! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2357	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2358	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2359	10/09/2013	Are they not public servants? Give them 3% like they offer the Public Service. Better still Newman has a bigger majority than he needs so make a few redundant. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2360	10/09/2013	i believe it is unfair that politicians are trying to get a payrise when those who make the things which make them successful (teachers, nurses, etc) are being told their wage will stay the same or in some cases get a lower wage. how is it fair that those who help make Australia the great country it is in terms of teaching, health, etc are being paid peanuts and extra money will be generated for the politicians? give those hard working people the money as they deserve it more then some people in suits who are in a way bullying them to work for less and make them more successful The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2361	10/09/2013	I find it unbelievable that a government that has slashed jobs in the health and police service and to old age pensioners, can award themselves a 40% pay rise. While the rich get richer, the poor get poorer. Unethical and greedy!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2362	10/09/2013	I am outraged that the pollies should get a pay rise while more and more gets taken away from the people who pay the pollies wages. All my costs go up but my wage does not. When it does go up once a year it is a few cents an hour. I am 58 years old and have worked full time all my adult life and paid my taxes. I live alone so I have nobody to boost the kitty. These days I am lucky if I have $30.00 a week for food. No treats for me and no entertainment or sports. Australia, the lucky country? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2363	10/09/2013	I'm a public servant and my wages have been frozen so why should politicians be increasing by such a large percentage?! It's unfair and unaustralian - we are both public servants. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2364	10/09/2013	Politicians' pay comes from tax payers money. That makes them public servants. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2365	10/09/2013	I am able to understand that we all need to agree to smaller but fair wages rises as it is a responsible thing to do for the good of all. However, the Pollies wage rise is too much, we are all here to care and be fair to our communities. If the pollies are not prepared to care or be fair they should not be representing our communities. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2366	10/09/2013	over paid; under worked; perks to polities should cease 12 months after retirement from office . salary according to ability. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2367	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2368	10/09/2013	Instead of lining their own pockets how about they look at the elderly, disabled (including caregivers) and war veterans. I for one have had enough of the way politicians hold the people in disregard in this country. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2369	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2370	10/09/2013	The cavalier way that politicians put their hand out for overly generous pay rises with such monotonous regularity disgusts me. I have never seen anyone give an account as to how these never ending pay rises are justified. Certainly when the government is fighting the ordinary public servants measly 3 to 5% pay rises, to then put their hand out for a 40% payrise for themselves displays a level of arrogance and hypocrisy of downright biblical proportions. At the very least, politicians salaries should be indexed to the same increases that are given to returned soldiers pensions, or if not, then a clear explanation given as to why politicians have been given preferential treatment over those who have risked their lives in the service of their country. Also, increases in politicians salaries should account for at least 10% of official CPI index calculation. The fact that politicians never offer any kind of explanation to justify the reasons for their pay rises absolutely disgusts me!!!!!!! [personal information] Regards, one of millions of long suffering tax payers. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2371	10/09/2013	What a load of [inappropriate content] they have not earned it in any way. STOP IT!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2372	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2373	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2374	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2375	10/09/2013	Their rise should be the same as they are offering to public servants The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2376	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2377	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2378	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2379	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2380	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2381	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2382	10/09/2013	My terminally ill husband can't even get a health care card ... Your selfishness repulses me Campbell Newman The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2383	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2384	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2385	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2386	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2387	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2388	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2389	10/09/2013	I feel the situation is unfair when Politicians are granted 42% wage rises and the rest of the state are being blocked a wage rise by these politicians. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2390	10/09/2013	Give politicians the same pay rise as all other public servants and everyday people. 42% pay increases are not sustainable, responsible or justifiable under any economic circumstances. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2391	10/09/2013	If only the politicians looked after Australia's veteran and Defence members as well as they look after their own. They have risked life and limb for this country. I would like to ask what have politicians risked other than showing Australia how greedy they are. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2392	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2393	10/09/2013	I am a public servant just like politicians are. My last pay increase was 2% so why shouldn't politicians get the same rate. Are they really in it for the good of the workers or just themselves. Politicians are so out of touch from real workers when they have done 'real work' for years. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2394	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2395	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2396	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2397	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2398	10/09/2013	Politician Patrice's above public sector averages/CPI is both obscene and immoral and should be abhorrent to all. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians pay to Commonwealth politicians pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2399	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2400	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2401	10/09/2013	I request that you consider that Politicians' pay rises be linked to public sector wages outcomes as these outcomes indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. This would provide a fairer system and restore faith in government. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2402	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2403	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2404	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2405	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2406	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2407	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2408	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2409	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2410	10/09/2013	This LNP maggot government is not getting a cent of my taxes!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2411	10/09/2013	The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2412	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2413	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2414	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2415	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2416	10/09/2013	sick and tired of the greedy, self-serving nature of wanna-be 'politicians' The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2417	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2418	10/09/2013	Politicians Pay Rises should be linked to the same standards/agreements/percentages as all other workers within the Public Service. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2419	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2420	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2421	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2422	10/09/2013	I don't believe it is fair and reasonable to the government cut jobs and services to repay debts and then issue themselves with excessive pay rises. The Politian pay rises should be linked to public service pay rises (given that they are also public servants). As such they should only receive the same pay rise level as is being offered to thier workforce. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2423	10/09/2013	A 40% pay rise for politicians, when emergency workers and other public sector employees either had to settle at 2% for less than the CPI or are still fighting for a wage increase, is hypocritical and unethical. Stop wasting Queenslanders money and spend it where it's needed! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2424	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2425	10/09/2013	Politicians salaries must reflect what is happening in the community they work for. Their salary increases must be equated with the common persons salary increases. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2426	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2427	10/09/2013	Paid more for mismanaging state assets accumulated by the people of qld- disgraceful The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2428	10/09/2013	I have paid the price of our freedom in Australia literally with my body and blood as a soldier. I am on a Vet Affairs Pension and I will never get a pay rise like the politicians. Politicians do not have the right to such a large pay raise. Why should good men and women give their life for your freedom to have it thrown back in their face. Why Veterans families struggle day to day! Why should they get a pay rise when we need better Education, Health Services and Infrastructure for our state and country it is criminal and the politicians have failed in their duty to our country! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2429	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2430	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2431	10/09/2013	How can any recipient of a 47% pay rise justify accepting the peoples hard earned tax dollars ? without proving to us ? any productivity increase, or any other believable reason for why they should take our money? This legislation would have been rescinded immediately had the pay rise been given to workers?accidentally or intentionally! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2432	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2433	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2434	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2435	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2436	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2437	10/09/2013	Modest allowances must be used appropriately. Local Councillors pay rises should be set using the same criteria but not Federal politicians. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2438	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2439	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2440	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2441	10/09/2013	My husband works for the Queensland Government and has not had a pay rise in 2 years. It is now with courts and they have been offered a measly 2.2% increase and to add insult to injury only back dated until 1 April 2013!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2442	10/09/2013	I think it is absolutely disgusting that in this time of fiscal belt tightening, politicians consider themselves such a rarefied breed that real world economics doesn't apply to them. Their wages should be tied to public service wage rises and indexed to cpi. Enough of the snouts in the trough mentality! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2443	10/09/2013	As i remember as soon as Mr Newman got into power they received a pay rise well and above a normal citizens wage rise. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2444	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2445	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2446	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2447	10/09/2013	I am absolutely disgusted with the politicians in Queensland, not one single one of them deserves any sort of payrise. Any idiot can sack thousands of staff to "save" money, he's not saving it though, he's giving it to himself and his cronies, maybe he should have shaved all of the cream off the top of the ladder instead of taking out the bottom rungs. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2448	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2449	10/09/2013	I find it offensive that a State Government would even consider awarding itself a pay rise of 40% while slashing jobs and services to its electorate. Offensive, but not surprising from the Liberal party. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2450	10/09/2013	It is disgraceful that the government through hospital boards can dismiss so many valued workers, stop payrises for those remaining then within weeks give themselves a payrise not attributed to output. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2451	10/09/2013	Unethical and completely unfair. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2452	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2453	10/09/2013	I find this to be so ludicrous, that QLD politicians want a pay rise when I was sacked so they can save money! This is a joke, a sick joke. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2454	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2455	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2456	10/09/2013	I am one of the 14000 people in the public service who have been Cambelled. What right has this government to sack hardworking public servant and then take money (that the newman government says is the reason why you sacked me) to line the pockets of politicians who actually produce nothing tangible for the people of Queensland regards The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2457	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2458	10/09/2013	I see it as fair and appropriate that people working for the public should be linked with regard to remuneration levels. It makes perfect sense that politicians also sit with other public sector workers when it comes to changes in pay levels. A case must be made if there is to be a change and it must be approved by an independent body. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2459	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2460	10/09/2013	?The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. ?The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. ?The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. ?The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. ?The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2461	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2462	10/09/2013	Politicians' pay rises should be linked to public sector wages outcomes which indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2463	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2464	10/09/2013	This pay rise is a sign of greed which shouts lack of integrity and selfish disregard for ethics and decency, when so many are suffering due to lack of services. Governments were organised to help provide for the welfare of the people and now needed services are cut while politicians live off the people they serve. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2465	10/09/2013	Politician pay rises should be no more than anyone else ever gets. I also vote to abolish their lifetime pension as its a ridiculous waste of taxpayer money &amp; they do NOT deserve it. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2466	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2467	10/09/2013	It is essential that allowances are fully accountable by being totally separate to salary. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2468	10/09/2013	I think it's appalling that politicians are in their position only to line their own pockets. Their job is to create and maintain services to the people. How about making this a priority? When was the last time public servants had a decent pay rise . They are the ones who deserve it. Politicians have not earned the right to a rise in their salary. Not even by 1%. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2469	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2470	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2471	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2472	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2473	10/09/2013	GREED! 40% on $160,000 is a hell of a lot more than 2% on a $60,000 worker's wage The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2474	10/09/2013	Give them 2% - when they give the public servants THEIR 2% The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2475	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2476	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2477	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2478	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2479	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2480	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2481	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2482	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2483	10/09/2013	Pure greed, on top of all those job cuts. Shame! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2484	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2485	10/09/2013	Excessive. Not justified. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2486	10/09/2013	Your plan to award yourselves a 40% payrise in view of the 1100 fte in nurse is abhorrent. LNP - you've broken your word to the people who voted for you. Never again! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2487	10/09/2013	I have a simple suggestion re state parliamentarian salaries, and that is that they are part of the public service enterprise bargain. They work toward the same goals as the public service, and the public service eb reflects the cpi and general public expectations of what people on publicly funded wages are worth. I'd also suggest that any allowances be kept separate from salaries since allowances should vary per mp according to issues like the size of their electorate. Regards [personal information] The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2488	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2489	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2490	10/09/2013	No person in their right mind would sanction a pay rise of this magnitude; not only is it an obscene usage of parliamentary power, it is a slight on the workers supporting Queensland's hidden majority, those who have no major platform or voice to decry a blatant power grab and the "perks" associated with riding on the backs of the real workers. . The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2491	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2492	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2493	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2494	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2495	10/09/2013	Greed has its own Karma. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2496	10/09/2013	No Pay Rises for Pollies. If they must get one it should be no more than CPI &amp; The Public servants should get The same pay rise or better. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2497	10/09/2013	no politician is worth the obscene amount of cash grab qld. pollys are trying to extort from the unsuspecting public of qld. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2498	10/09/2013	I think your pay rise should go to the poor pensioners that need it the most. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2499	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2500	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2501	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2502	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2503	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2504	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2505	10/09/2013	When the country is doing well we can all share in that, when times are tough we all need to have our shoulder to the task. Politicians are well paid, not on the bread line and not always doing a good job/being honest or truly representing the people. Medicine costs for chronically ill people has been reduced, families with really sick children and all the pressure that puts on a family and then Politicians want to award themselves a huge increase. Stand up and share the load..... The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2506	10/09/2013	Politicians are the employees of the state and should have to show productivity gains and justification for salary increases like the rest of the workforce. If car industry workers are open to a wage freeze why not Queensland politicians who are already earning above average salaries for below par performance, regardless of which party they belong to. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2507	10/09/2013	Pollies pays should be linked to productivity and increase in the wealth of the state. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2508	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2509	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2510	10/09/2013	Why is it necessary for polities to have such increases in pay. Why don't the TRUE pensioners get a decent amount of money on which to live? NOT the freeloaders, dole bludgers, childbearing, illness fakers, drug takers and freeloading immigrants. Come on Campbell, show the voters that you are a GENUINE, caring person as you try to come across to the voters, and give the state a break and a chance to recover from these increases. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2511	10/09/2013	I agree with all of the above statements. It is appalling that politicians feel justified in increasing their salary at this time. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2512	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2513	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2514	10/09/2013	Politicians pay increases should be tied to Public Sector wages. That will ensure, reasonable increases and demonstrate that they are prudent, when spending taxpayers money. Politicians should be mindful, that they have chosen to be a representative for the community, and therefore earning a modest salary should be paramount.....after all they are just doing a job just like all of us earning modest wages. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2515	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2516	10/09/2013	I recently got 2 cents in the dollar as a pay rise. In my tax each year now I receive a low income offset. SHAME. I never thought I would have a job where serving the public and boeing responsible for the safety of over 100 people at every moment meant I was paid a poor wage. The damage to my moral health is shocking The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2517	10/09/2013	I think it stinks that you cut jobs and wreck peoples income only to give yourselves such a huge pay increase. You are out of touch with the people that pay your wages. It you have any class or morals you will not increase you wages. Politicians already get too many perks and I don't believe you should get your wages after you retire. No one else gets paid after they quit work besides you already get paid too much any how. Who do you really think you are. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2518	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2519	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2520	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2521	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2522	10/09/2013	Tie politician salary rises to increases in the minimum wage. When a grocery clerk gets an additional $10. per week, the pollies get an additional $10. per week. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2523	10/09/2013	The amount of remuneration should be analysed with respect to the amount paid outside of state politicians. The general rate is a moral obscenity. They should be paid on performance as everyone else is. Also the Super and Retirement payments made after their terms should be abolished/adjusted to reflect payments made in the real world The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2524	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2525	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2526	10/09/2013	It is morally wrong for politicians to seek such huge payrises while denying Queensland Public Service workers a decent EB increase and while cutting essential public services. What value is our tax dollar- we fund their expensive lifestyles/ The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2527	10/09/2013	Allready overpaid. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2528	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2529	10/09/2013	The state can not afford such an exorbitant pay increase to anyone. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2530	10/09/2013	At a time when Qld state government employees have been waiting for their enterprise bargaining wage rise for over a year and we are constantly being told how we all need to tighten our belts as services are cut and employees made redundant, it is simply outrageous that a wage increase for politicians is on the agenda. Why don't our state politicians lead the way and show us how they are prepared to make sacrifices for the good of this state. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2531	10/09/2013	MP`s are not a protected species and deserve no more than CPI increases to their salaries and in tough times should forgo them like the rest of the working population, we need to start living in a real world where those we elect to government actually are in touch with reality, I would love to have their pay performance based, but of course this would put the greater percentage into the low income bracket The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2532	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2533	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2534	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2535	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2536	10/09/2013	The size of the pollies pay rise is ridiculous, when compared to those who lost their jobs. It was stated that the debt of the state is unmanageable, and yet they want a $54000 plus pay rise, some with $100,000 back pay. Many of us in the private sector have had minimal pay increases, below CPI for years. Let their pay increase be tied to CPI like everyone else. Greed needs to be brought under control, before our state reaches the point of no return. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2537	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2538	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2539	10/09/2013	The proposal to increase politicians pay by 40% while slashing public services to 'save money' is nothing more than an insult to all Qld public servants, and indeed all Queenslanders. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2540	10/09/2013	An outrageous waste of public money considering public sector workers pay increases have been frozen to a low value by the same government. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2541	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2542	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2543	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2544	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2545	10/09/2013	It is about time that politicians learn to earn what the populous earn, and also not to expect that once they are a politician that will have a path of gold for the rest of their lives. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2546	10/09/2013	MPs in QLD are Public Servants so it seems logical to relate their pay and conditions to that group-simple. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2547	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2548	10/09/2013	I believe instead of giving politicians pay rises ( they already earn more than enough) how about you start looking after your Australians who need the money for example: people with apprenticeships are earning far to less, if you want more job increases maybe you should make more of an incentive for people to join apprenticeships no one can live off $200 a week. Obviously centrelink needs to be more worked out, I know for a fact, there a thousands of people cheating the system just so they can sit around all day living off the doll. People who are studying like myself who had to fully support myself off centrelink as my parents do not help financially can not receive centrelink anymore because my parents earn to much, this doesn't make sense. If you want people to get jobs first step is education, and how can someone do this if they don't have to financial funds to do this, especially when finding a job is extremely difficult even with as many qualifications and many hours as I put in. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2549	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2550	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers's monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians's pay to Commonwealth politicians's pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2551	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2552	10/09/2013	Endorsed. Why should pay rises be given when funding and jobs are been cut at an alarming rate. Politicians are meant to serve the people not them selfs. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		allowances as part of salary.
2553	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2554	10/09/2013	Absolutely disgraceful that we are told to pull in our belts and QLD we're in a bad debt... But how easy it was for our pollies to have a disgraceful % increase of their wages - when they don't do anything for that sort of money... I'm happy to invite any of them to come and do some real work in one of our public hospitals see if they can hack it!!! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2555	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2556	10/09/2013	Hey Mr Abbott, instead of cutting Centerlink, why don?t YOU make a sacrifice first? Prove we can trust you. Until you?re living on less than 100k a year, you don?t deserve to say that people with a mental disorder (like myself), people with a physical disability, and people who are struggling to find jobs, are lazy and unmotivated. Like I said. Prove that you deserve the position. Prove that we can trust you. Lead by example. Or step the hell down. If you don?t put the people first, you don?t deserve to lead. That simple. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayersâ€™ monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politiciansâ€™ pay to Commonwealth politiciansâ€™ pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2557	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2558	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
2559	10/09/2013	The Tribunal shouldn't give politicians big pay rises while the Government delays giving one for public servants and cuts the services we all rely on. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2560	10/09/2013	Pollies need to prove what they're worth! The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2561	10/09/2013	Put them on minimal wage for a month and see what they can do... Undercover boss? The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2562	10/09/2013	Our LNP government since taking power has continually informed teachers, nurses etc that the state is in a lot economical state. how can they now approve major pay rises for parliamentarians. They tell us it is law. However, since their time in power have changed many laws for their benefit. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2563	10/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2564	10/09/2013	Politicians pay rises should be in line with all other pay raises. If this pay rise of over 50% is allowed then it is leaving the door open for unrealistic pay raises at any time for them. The money that is given for their electorates should be spent on the electorate not considered as money for them. Structure and accountability of our politicians for the running of the state is imperative. More concentration on the job on less on 'what's in it for me' attitude. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
2565	11/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
2566	11/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
2567	11/09/2013	[personal information] If further information is required please phone me on [personal information]
2568	11/09/2013	I served for ten years in the Queensland Parliament from [personal information] which included three years in the Ministry. I am not in a position time wise to make a submission for existing MP remuneration except to say that the remuneration should reflect the onerous commitment most members make and that it should reflect comparable remuneration that is paid in the private sector Given I am late responding to you all I would like to put forward is remuneration for past members for such entitlements like travel are not justified in my mind and should be abolished given superannuation benefits are generous compared to the private sector. Again my apologies for this late response

End of submissions.