

Submissions to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal
Public Consultation
23 August – 11 September 2013

Notes:

- This document is searchable.
- The content of all submissions, including electronic and hard copy, received by the Tribunal from 23 August to 10 September 2013 (with an additional 24 hour grace period to 11 September 2013) is included below.
- Please note the following have not been included:
  - duplicate submissions with an identical submitter's name, contact details and submission content; and
  - emails received without any submission attached or included.
- The unedited content of all submissions is published below with the exception of personal information (including information that could constructively identify a submitter) and content deemed inappropriate i.e. offensive language.
- Introductory and concluding salutations including for example addresses, comments such as "Dear Tribunal" and "kind regards" and the submitter's name have also been removed.
- Where a submitter has requested confidentiality, the submission has not been published apart from identifying the submission number.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1	23/08/2013	Confidential
2	24/08/2013	In receipt of your request for information regarding my pension entitlement I wish to advise I received [personal information] dollars for the 2012/2013 financial year. Trusting this is the information you require as I have received no other payments other than what QSuper pays on a fortnightly basis. I am a bit confused that you would not have access to this type of information.
3	24/08/2013	Qld Politicians should only get CPI increases or you establish a panel of community people who decide on a pay rise based on their performance in office. It is outrageous &amp; unconscionable to hear that they can be awarded a 42% increase whilst you &amp; I have to negotiate under EBA terms to try and get more than CPI (currently at 2.9%) The Qld gov have only offered 2.2% &amp; at a loss of critical public service conditions. So please except my submission. *Two of my favourite Quotes on politics. 1. Any people anywhere, being inclined and having the power, have the right to rise up, and shake off the existing government, and form a new one that suits them better. This is a most valuable—a most sacred right—a right, which we hope and believe, is to liberate the world. Abraham Lincoln 2. One of the penalties for refusing to participate in politics is that you end up being governed by your inferiors. Plato
4	25/08/2013	I am only a pensioner who has worked all my life and receive a measley $18;000 a year pension and you are proposing this outrages increase, it is a insult to the average person ,what with the outrages superannuation scheme and all the other perks you all get.BRING ON THE REPUBLIC
5	25/08/2013	As an ex. worker who has worked all my life and now a pensioner on $18.000 a year I find these increases that are handed down to these underworked and OVER PAID fat cats. Are a insult to the Blue collar WORKERS of Australia Bring on the REPUBLIC
6	26/08/2013	I am so disillusioned that this government (who I have always voted for for over 30 years) would even contemplate such a wage rise. I am a public servant and we can't even get the CPI rise in our EB so it has now gone to Tribunal. How can you take a 42% rise. It should be based on the CPI as well. Once again the little struggling taxpayers are being tortured and held to ransome whilst the politicians rise to King status with remuneration they pay themselves. I totally disagree with the payrise to politicians. It is outrageous and unconscionable for you to even consider it.
7	26/08/2013	Thank you for the opportunity to respond to The Tribunal's review of MPs salaries. I have long advocated the issue of equity and fairness in members salaries and conditions. During my 20 years in the Parliament I witnessed the erosion of conditions and pay of members including. A ) The removal of accommodation allowances for MPs living outside Brisbane. I estimate that over [personal information] as a minister which required me to be in Brisbane for at least 3 days per week cost me more than $15 000 to provide meals for myself. No other public servant many of whom are paid higher than MPs is expected to bear such a cost. This occurred under the Goss

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		government. B) A fully funded vehicle was provided to ministers in their own electorates with reasonable private use. This was abolished under the Beattie government yet Senior Executive Service officers, judges medical workers etc kept their vehicles. C) The Bligh Government ignored the nexus of salaries of state and federal MPs and took pay increase of considerably less than that which was to apply under the relevant act. My view, to which I referred more than once in the House is that MPs as the ultimate public servants should have pay and conditions commensurate with the Public Service. However due compensation should be given to the fact that Senior Public servants have far greater security and contractual entitlement than MPs. There will always be a noisy minority of those who criticize any pay or conditions for MPs. Generally speaking the community never likes talk of any public servant getting a wage increase however it is accepted that such increases occur. My experience is that the " man in the street " thinks politicians are better paid than they are. Just last weekend I was told how my retirement entitlement was to travel first class around the world with my family twice a year and that I had the use of a driver and car for the rest of my life. There was no convincing the former constituent otherwise. My solution to this problem is that a pay point of an SES position should be chosen for MPs and that ministers should be paid a percentage of what their Director General is paid. While I would like to see that percentage at 100% to be realistic it would need to be something in the order of 70%. That way the unfairness of the Ministers for Police , Health , and other more demanding portfolios being paid the same as ministers for less controversial departments would be addressed. It would also deal with the unfairness whereby DGs were paid twice to three times what their ministers were. When I entered Parliament in [personal information] my salary was higher than the highest paid High School Principal in my electorate. Today that is not the case with the local state member receiving less than that School Principal. The loss of relativity and superannuation benefits have now dictated that any relatively senior public Servant could only be elected to Parliament at their and their families' expense. The loss of a seat and loss of seniority within the public service has catastrophic effects upon superannuation and again deters a section of our community from nominating to serve the community in Parliament. Tying Parliamentarians to Public sector wages is not only reasonable but would mostly eradicate the yearly tumult about politicians pay rises. If pay rises were tied to the average of public sector wage increases in my view only the fanatical anti politician drum beaters could complain. As I am unfamiliar with the current wage structure of the SES I could not suggest a current pay point but when I was in office I noted that an SES 3 was about the area of reasonable equivalence in terms of responsibility. As for allowances again the Public sector could be a parallel. However the fact is few public servants are expected to provide funds

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		to local causes threat MPs are. In my time in office I paid rent for poor people, bought school needs , sporting trophies , paid for sports people to travel away, paid off a workers debt on his car, bought thousands of dollars worth of raffle tickets , donated thousands more in prizes and run a car, phone, home computer and all of the other expenses that MPs have. There will be no drop off in the demand for MPs to hit their pockets if allowances are dropped. Therefore allowances should be maintained. I trust my comments are of use and wish you all the best in your deliberations.
8	26/08/2013	Thank you for your letter of 21 August in your capacity as Chairman of the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal inviting submissions in regard to the review of remuneration of Members and former Members of the Queensland Parliament. I consider that there is a matter of principle that must be taken into account in respect of any changes being considered relating to former MP's which I would appreciate being considered by the Tribunal. When I entered the Parliament in [personal information] like every MP there was an expectation that despite the potential short term nature of the role that certain benefits would accrue over time. Whilst there is always a financial consideration to these matters there is also the issue of retrospective changes to what is effectively an employment contract. I have no objection to laws, rules, guidelines and regulations being changed for newly elected MP's but the implementation of retrospective arrangements is always fraught with difficulty. Benefits to former MP's (and spouses or associated recipients) relating to travel entitlements, for example, are modest compared to other jurisdictions and in my view should be retained. These limited benefits require a minimum period of service and make only passing reference to MP's who have held senior office such as Premier, Minister of the Crown or Leader of the Opposition. I do not support a widening of existing entitlements to former MP's but simply use this as an example of where Queensland has been correctly prudent in this area, as opposed to the Commonwealth and some other States. I would therefore urge that no changes be made to the current arrangements relating to existing former Members of the Queensland Parliament and that if changes are to be made in this area they take effect only in respect of MP's who are elected from the date of the next General Election. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
9	26/08/2013	I appreciate the fact that you have given me and other former members an opportunity to make a submission on this important issue. Being elected to the Queensland Parliament in [personal information] I fully appreciated the fact that it maybe only a shot term career and if I was was successful then additional other benefits would accrue; such a superannuation and travel. Since being elected the rail travel pass for former members, as I have been advised, has been restricted since the Commonwealth sold off their rail network. Members and former members in some jurisdictions were compensated for that loss but not here in Queensland; and most members accepted that decision. I can understand that rules and regulations can be changed for newly elected members but I am concerned that any retrospective changes will further erode the entitlements indicated in the handbook when members were elected. Travel for former members and their wives is quite reasonable when compared with some other areas of Government. I am more that happy for the current travel entitlements to continue and in no way do I seek to have them expanded. May I also add that in some years, due to health problems or other commitments, my wife and myself have not availed ourselves of the travel entitlements. May I thank you most sincerely for giving me the opportunity to make this submission.
10	28/08/2013	Thank you for giving me the opportunity to give my input to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal. As a former Member, my comments will relate mainly to the method of indexation of a former Member's Pension. It is my belief that using the CPI as the method of indexing a former Member's Pension does not reflect the actual street price we pay for goods and services. It should be noted that it was for this reason that the Federal Government several years ago changed the indexation method that was used to index the Old Age Pension. As an example, I know of a Commonwealth Superannuant who retired twenty years ago on a CPI indexed Pension of approximately $20,000 and is now receiving about $300 less per fortnight than if that pension was indexed the same as the Old Age Pension which takes Average Weekly Earnings into account. It is also significant that a former Member who retired several years ago is receiving a Pension much less than a Member who has retired more recently, at the same level, due to the very significant increase in salary over the years. I again thank you for giving me the opportunity to give my input.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
11	29/08/2013	Please permit me to elaborate a little on my previous submission. In drawing a parallel between public servants and MPs it should also be pointed out that there is no entitlement to holidays, long service leave, hours worked , leave loadings RDOs etc. There are no industrial conditions for good reason as it would be impossible to develop an award to cover MPs as the job is so wide ranging. For example the member for Mt ISA covers an area bigger than France while the member for Bulimba could cycle around their constituency. What constituents expect of the Member for Mt ISA is vastly different than what electors from Bulimba want from theirs. For example the member for Bulimba is expected to turn up to every function and an absence from a particular charity event for example is frowned upon by the organizers. This is not the case in huge electorates like Gregory where people understand the tyranny of distance. However the common thread is that MPs are expected to work 7 days a week and sometimes even get disturbed at home to assist. I real being phoned by a constituent at 3 am wanting me to go to the [personal information] to see that her son was not being mistreated. Of course I obliged but no award system could ever develop a system to plan and pay for such service delivery. My point is that any comparison of salaries between public servants a d MPs ought to be calculated at the top of the scale in the relevant classification so as to recognize that there is no overtime or banked leave entitled which applies to public servant. The directors general of departments I oversaw not only were paid twice or more what I was paid during my [personal information] but they also amassed long service leave and holidays which at the end of their tenure added thousands of dollars to their payouts. Therefore it is fair that when a comparison is made these factors are included. Both Premiers and the police minister and indeed the child protection minister had to have extra protection put on their family homes as a result of either forced entry or threats against thir safety or of their children. [personal information] Another MP had a rifle fired into his office. Plenty of members will attest to the rudeness of people who believe they have the right to say the most offensive things to them. I am unaware of any other public servant or indeed anyone at all who has to endure such abuse and again the level of stress generated is far above that endured by most workers. I trust that you will accept this addendum. Basically my points that while a pay comparison with public servants is sensible it ought not be assumed that MPs work public service hours or have their conditions.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
12	29/08/2013	I refer to your letter dated 21st August seeking my views on the Conditions of former Members of the Queensland Parliament. My view is that as a Member of Parliament certain conditions were granted to members upon their retirement and as such these conditions should not be changed to those members affected. What the tribunal elects to do to in the future is a matter for their deliberations. Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to comment on these matters.
13	29/08/2013	I thank you for your letter dated 21/8/2013 re remuneration for past members and their wives. I firmly believe that the status quo should not be altered, we feel this is a written deal and in my case accepted in full in 1974 when entering the Queensland Parliament. Any alteration up or down to past, present or future members would be very wrong. A deal as small as it is, is still a deal and was not to be interfered with. These are my personal feelings and feelings of the people who I represented from [personal information]. For any increases, except parliamentary salaries and electorate allowances at this stage when the socialist Labor Government left us bankrupt, making finance scarce, we should leave these sorts of problems alone.
14	29/08/2013	I am philosophically opposed to this payrise particularly in light of the recent reduction of public servants. This is outrageous
15	29/08/2013	It is unconscionable that MP's grant a payrise to themselves to this level whilst so many of us are under the threat of redundancy and loss of employment. I'm sure that if this government were in opposition, they would oppose this!
16	29/08/2013	This is a completely unrealistic and uneconomical submission to allow a payrise of this nature especially in light of the State Governments cut backs and lack of fairness for a payrise for State Public Servants.
17	29/08/2013	It does not seem Right or Fair that such a large pay increase be awarded to Politicians on the grounds that they missed out because of a freeze. Jobs were cut in the public service when the LNP were elected in because there was such a large debt owing. The Qld Government had to borrow money to pay wages and now they are going to increase the debt by giving themselves an excessive pay increase. Logic and common sense is not being applied in this instance.
18	29/08/2013	They should only get what the whole of the public servants get
19	29/08/2013	I am against the politician's payrise as we are all battling to financially survive in the current climate of a liberal government and I as a government worker am fighting for minimal pay rise, yet this indecent pay rise is being taken by the politicians. It is unforgivable

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		but always expected.
20	29/08/2013	I believe at this time it would be fiscally irresponsible to give politicians a pay rise beyond that which is offered to other public servants and that all further pay-rises should be at the same rate that other public servants receive.
21	29/08/2013	The country is in financial crisis by free admission of the pollies. How dare they have the audacity to think they are worth more and deserve more when the rest of us are dictated by different awards and pay scales run by the government. Most of which are not keeping up with the ever rising cost of living. The former PM was earning (not deserving) more than the United States President. What a joke..... The rot starts with her and filters down the tree.
22	29/08/2013	How can the politicians be granted such a huge pay rise when the state is in such a poor state money wise (Newman tells us that we don't have any money for the services that we all enjoyed over the past years), but he has plenty of money to give himself a pay rise. People have been asked to tighten their belts but politicians wont have to. Are they not there to serve us. My grandmother remembers a time when politicians were not paid but thought it was an honour to serve the community. I am so sick of going without so that the politicians and their friends can have more.
23	29/08/2013	The proposed pay increase for state MPs is a slap in the face to all public servant employees like myself and my wife. Unlike our local member in [personal information], my wife and I both have tertiary bachelor degrees in [personal information] respectively. Will also have post graduation qualifications at a Masters and Graduate Diploma level. How is it fair that as, front line health employees for the government given our educational level and value to the community, our home has a gross total income of $160 000 per year where our local member without even a tertiary or trade qualification can earn more than this alone. It is a disgrace!
24	29/08/2013	I disagree with the politicians payrise. Any rise in the politicians pay should be the same percentage as the public servants payrise.
25	29/08/2013 See also submission number 24	The proposed pay increase for state MPs is a slap in the face to all public servant employees like myself and my wife. Unlike our local member in [personal information], my wife and I both have tertiary bachelor degrees in [personal information] respectively. We also have post graduation qualifications at a Masters and Graduate Diploma level. How is it fair that as, front line health employees for the government given our educational level and value to the community, our home has a gross total income of $160 000 per year where our local member without even a tertiary or trade qualification can earn more than this alone. It is a disgrace!
26	29/08/2013	I believe they should not have access to their superannuation until the proper retirement age and there shouldn't be any 'golden handshakes'. Their payrises should be in line with our emergency services employees, given the danger they put themselves in everyday. Their expenses should be paid out of the salary and then claimed back through the appropriate channels for a refund if it is deemed suitable.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
27	29/08/2013	The push to link State politician's pay to that of Federal ones is just wrong. State politicians do work hard I'm sure but remuneration amount for any job is usually linked to the amount of responsibility held. State politicians only deal with State business and so have a dramatically lower level of responsibility compared to their Federal counterparts. If you think of it in terms of a bank's structure, the State politicians are around the level of 'branch managers', responsible for running a small part of one area of the business whereas Federal politicians are closer to the level of 'board members', responsible for running the entire company. On a separate note, the current tranche of State members have instituted sweeping cuts and yet are seeking to massively increase their pay. This is morally wrong and smacks of corruption of the highest order. If the State is really doing it tough and sweeping cuts to basic services are required, that should apply to State politicians too.
28	29/08/2013	I don't support the payrise in it's current form, when public servants are forced into arbitration to get a less than CPI (over the life of agreement) payrise. Politicians should be entitled to the same levels of payrise as the staff of the departments they lead.
29	29/08/2013	I object to a large pay rise for our politicians most strongly. I feel that essential services like the fire fighters, paramedics, nurses, etc. are more worthy of a pay rise. We have some politicians who have only come into parliament for 1 hour and are being paid outrageous salaries.
30	29/08/2013	I believe pay rises for Members of Parliament (MP) should be linked to the pay rises of core public servants.  Public servants are more likely to accept wage restraint in future EB negotiations knowing MPs will incur similar wage restraint.
31	29/08/2013	Political pay rates should be bench marked to the public service and SES payrates benchmarked to the general public service pay rates. % increase is fair to all
32	29/08/2013	Only a small note,I feel the pollies are well remunerated now in line with the general community.Whilst I realise these gentleman may be able to generate large incomes in the private sector,they are not there and there preference is to serve the public. Please bear in mind what the government of today has offerred the real workers ,the public servants.Mr newman and his governeent have indicated by their actions what they think a pay rise should be...2.2% and NO BACK PAY,DESPITE THE PUBLIC SERVANTS ARE NOW WORKING OUTSIDE OF AN EXPIRED AGREEMENT. Withe due respect I believe the Tribunal should rein in these exorbiatnat increases wher there is no justification
33	29/08/2013	I do not agree with the proposed pay increases for Queensland politicians. Any pay increase should be in line with increases received by Qld public servants.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
34	29/08/2013	I believe the remuneration package is excessive especially given when most MP's hold a formal office role and are additionally paid travel allowances and superannuation. This is certainly no comparison to those that work in the public service or a measure of being paid for what you do. There should be a tight cap on the travel expenses allowed by all MP's - alot of travel to major cities is now not required given the techonology of video conferencing etc. If the MP has a wider remote location to represent, then the budget for travel expenses should match but not exceed a practical budget allowance. If the MP's are provided with a mobile, home phones should not be reimbursed. The same scrutiny as Government Employees should be applied to MP's when claiming expenses. Clearly stating what is accepted allowances in a policy specific for MP's and stating what is not considered as claimable expenses. A direct salary should be based on the community numbers they are paid to represent &amp; the "value" that that member puts towards the community. Different levels of pay awarded on performance &amp; outcomes. I believe that the wage increases for MP's should be under maybe Enterprise Bargaining Agreement like the State and Federal Govt. all wages in public and private sector should be increased in alignment with politicians increases.
35	29/08/2013	I would like to see all pollie's pay for their own office gear like pens etc and to drive not charter planes or at least catch the train or bus, pay for their own acomadation whilst away from home unless the member is in the federal government, not be able to use government cars for own private use only for work purposes, meal allowance set to work time not expensive meals on public purse, the base money paid plus $20,000 is ample for all the rest of us have to live on less, also take into consideration any businesses or farms properties that they have and gain an income from this should be deducted from the base, they are there to represent their people not line their pockets.
36	29/08/2013	My submission is that the Politician's pay rise should be the same as that of the Public Servants who do their work for them. If the Premier is only prepared to give a 2.2% payrise to public servants because he believes that is adequate, then it should be adequate for Politicians as well.
37	29/08/2013	Politicians' pay rises should be linked to those of core public service awards. If they are to be determined by an "independent" arbitrator which is directed to take into consideration economic conditions and the ability of the state to pay, then so should politician's pay rises.
38	29/08/2013	Politicians in Queensland are Public Servants too, though they appear to have forgotten this. I assert that Queensland State Politicians should receive pay rises in line with what the rest of the Public Service receive. This rise would sit at around 2.2%, 2.2% and 2.2%. Perhaps more importantly, since the Politicians are also seeking to reclaim conditions from Public Servants as part of the recent offers, such as removal of employment security and right to have decent industrial representation through Union Encouragement clauses, then I would also assert that Politicians seek to remove, reduce entitlements afforded on cessation of public office and reduce their travel allowances. Unlike Politicians, the rest of the public service do not receive ongoing benefits following the cessation of their employment.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
39	29/08/2013	Many of the rules regarding politicians' remuneration were made when most politicians were elderly men who would not be a drain on the funds for many years. Nowadays many of them are still in the prime of life and we are looking after them for far too long. There should be a cap on the length of time they are provided with offices, secretarial services, travel, etc. They are still young enough to embark on another career and should not be a drain on the public purse.
40	29/08/2013	The payrise awarded to Queensland politicians is unwarranted and frankly obscene. It is hypocritical also for two reasons: 1) the Queensland Premier's refusal to meaningfully negotiate with the Public Sector Union for payraises for public servants. 2) the preaching of austerity that the new government has insisted is so necessary that they have sacked 14,000 public servants.  The money that they feel they deserve as a payrise is more usefully spent funding the employment of more nurses for our public hospitals.
41	29/08/2013	I wish to make known my disgust at QLD MP's disgusting pay grab especially after savagely cutting health and other services services. No wonder they are considered worse than lawyers and car salesmen and not trusted to do what they promise before the election.
42	29/08/2013	All wages in the public sector over $80,000 should be frozen in times like this (GFC) and an increasing government debt. Check out what is happening in Europe, wait 2 years and we are in the same situation. Then we need to take hard financial decisions that are far worse than the current luxury cuts. Politician should lead by example (in a positive way) and not in a negative way as they are doing now. What is set in the past on wages are hard to change, expense claims/allowances are easy to change, start with that.
43	29/08/2013	Recent salary increases awarded to Queensland politicians were absolutely disgusting and so far out of step with the community that I can not fathom who could possibly attempt to justify such an increase. If you take into account the complete lack of responsibility that a politician has with regards to travel or office expenditure it is even worse. Yes they deserve to be paid but when all the other benefits are added to the already substantial salary they receive it is a slap in the face of the many hard working Queensland emergency workers who risk their lives or simply face the daily horror of car accidents or house fires and are then asked to beg to try to receive a tiny salary increase. shame on all of you who think politicians even remotely deserve the salaries and perks that they seem to enjoy at my expense. Yes I pay their wage and their travel bills and their hotel bills and their limo charges and the completely ludicrous pension payments and ingoing perks they receive. It is time to stop the rubbish and bring them back to earth with a sudden jolt. The are meant to serve me and the greater state of Queensland.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
44	29/08/2013	I welcome the creation of an independent tribunal in relation to pay-rises for politicians and I thank the tribunal for the opportunity to comment. I note that new jobs are mostly casual and while being for immigration, most of the unskilled jobs are going to migrants rather than our young Australians at a time when they are most vulnerable (needing a stepping stone into industry) - http://www.monash.edu.au/assets/pdf/news/cpur-immigration-overshoot.pdf. I see this as a gross failing on state and federal governments to moderate immigration at levels sensitive to our needs and economic situation. I further note that living costs keep escalating while real wages have largely flatlined since 2006. If we are to have an economy driven on the back of population growth (which drives up living costs), then politicians need to ensure that existing Australians are not adversely disadvantaged. As it is, we have unheard of housing unaffordability (http://www.theaustralian.com.au/business/property/first-home-beyond-reach/story-fn9656lz-1226703132156), un/underemployment at around 18% with youth unemployment as high as 40% in places, on any given night, 1 in 200 are homeless and we regularly have around 2 million Australians needing to frequent foodbanks. Small businesses are the bread and butter of our community yet I submit that our politicians have been grossly negligent by not adequately planning for proposed population growth and as such hindering productivity and further, not ensuring that operating costs aren't driving small businesses out of business: http://www.onlineopinion.com.au/view.asp?article=11141 Lastly, if we are to continue to run high population growth missions, politicians must demonstrate that our environment and national icons are protected. It is clear that our politicians have been unable to do so, this is all too common: http://www.sunshinecoastdaily.com.au/news/koalas-almost-gone-heading-for-extinction/2000128/
45	29/08/2013	I struggle to see why politicians should receive increased pay and allowances whilst public servants are forced into arbitration to get a less than CPI (over the life of agreement) payrise. Politicians should be entitled to the same levels of payrise as the staff of the departments they lead. They should focus more on running the country and serving the people then lining their own pockets.
46	29/08/2013	Confidential
47	29/08/2013	I believe that increases in the pays and benefits for politicians should not exceed the average of pay rises granted to public sector workers under Enterprise Agreement arrangements. As their base pay is already worth several multiples of average weekly wages increasing politicians' salaries in step with public sector increases will still see them being rewarded well in excess of average increases in costs of living.
48	29/08/2013	I submit that all public servant pay rates are standardized and any increase be set by an independent party. Also any increase is one for all. Premier down to grounds person or cleaner. Stop complicating every thing the government does. Make retirement benefits fairly reflect years of service.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
49	29/08/2013	I believe that only when this government bargains in good faith and allows the hard working public servants of this state a payrise, should they then get the same payrise as the servants of this state. You don't deserve to be paid when you are ruining the state.
50	29/08/2013	I recommend any variations to Queensland politicians' wages and/or allowances be restricted to those approved for Queensland Public Sector administrative officers. This would provide an easily referenced benchmark and would align with community expectations that politicians exercise the same level of wage restraint expected of Public Sector workers and the Queensland workforce in general.
51	29/08/2013	As a public servant of 25yrs service in a climate of uncertainty about job security and having been denied a fair EBA due to budget restraints I am disgusted that pay rises of more than my whole salary have been awarded. A review must find this abhorrent. It is also unrealistic in Qld that there is no overriding authority to ensure impartiality in relation to political IR legislative provisions and instruments. A permanent provision with overriding authority needs to be formed to force political parties to abide by the code of conduct standards. No individual should be able to approve their personal benefits and equity of decisions needs to be reviewable above political level. To whom are our politicians accountable? If not to the community. Trust has been lost. Honour is no more. The code of conduct has not been applied for the purpose of its creation. I am disappointed and disillusioned. I understand that expenses occur and need to be managed but much more accountability needs to be applied. Maybe it's time to develop a role description and to report to a committee or governance authority and for expenses to be budgeted and approved as all other managers have to have occur. Too much freedom has proven to be no longer acceptable. Radical change is required in Qld.
52	29/08/2013	I believe the suggested level of pay rise for Qld Politicians is excessive. Any payrise they receive should be linked to an enterprise bargaining process where they can show improved productivity or decreased benefits. In the current economic climate wage restraint should be exercised by all. I see no reason why any increase should be more than what is proposed to give Public servants.
53	29/08/2013	I wish to object to the recent proposal to increase Qld politician pay rises by an exorbitant amount. A simple pay rise in line with inflation is sufficient. Politician's pay is adequate for the amount of work they do and expenses they are entitled to claim. Especially at a time when public sector jobs are being cut, it is unfair to offer any more than a rise to cover inflation.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
54	29/08/2013	1. Yes, both components of remuneration are appropriate, given the nature of the job. Allowances should relate directly to the dollars spent and amount of work performed, not just size of electorate. 2. Please give examples. only expenses relating directly to the job (travel, phone, away from home, stationary used to reply to constituents). Disallow: clothing, stationary for electioneering, raffle tickets, buying cakes, etc and donations as they should not be included as expenses. 3. Set up performance criteria based on expectations for eelectorate. (time, quality and quantity). Rationalise expenses by detemining reasonablness for each electorate. 4. I am horrified at the recent decision to increase salaries by such an exhorbindant amount, espeically when saying the government can not afford to retain public servants. Increases should include an assessment of affordability (like other groups in business); linked to other public positions, there should not be a linkage between state and federal salaries. Their remuneration comes from the same bucket of money as the Qld public servants, so there wage rise should be aligned with the this and with the growth of the state economy (how much extra money did they bring into the state as a percentage of how much was lost to the state), performance based pay if you will. 5. Attendance and engagement in parilimentary debate is an important role for a politicians (they seem to spend an awful lot of time in the chamber on ipads iphones etc. Maybe introduce a penalty for use of these within the chamber, so that politicians are encouraged to take part and not sit back reading emails/ following twitter, etc.
55	29/08/2013	1. Yes. Appropriate remuneration for QLD MPs should be structured the same as any other hard working Queensland citizen i.e. a salary and then allowances for travel, accommodation and meals that reflect the actual cost of these items and performing the expected roles and duties of the position they applied for, rather than receiving exorbitant annual allowances and lump payments. The "Electorate Allowance", a "Miscellaneous Allowance" and "Expense of Office Allowance" should be abolished. 2. Expense allowances should be at the reasonable or actual cost in the market place for the items or goods and services. 3. To achieve this it should be scheduled in policy or similar. 4. Create position descriptions for MPs. The fact that there are no barriers to becoming an MP is concerning and it seems that what is most attractive is the add-on monetary benefits or allowances. MPs should be educated and possess skills and tertiary qualifications commensurate with the roles and responsibilities of the position. Skills based rather than sector based representation. 5. Yes. I am glad this issue has come to a head. It is well and truly time to review and abolish the unnecessary allowances that Qld MPs receive. Thank you for the opportunity to comment.
56	29/08/2013	I believe that the MP's get more than enough money now without a payrise or backpay. They have too many allowances where one would suffice. When the average Qlder is struggling to met expenses and jobs are being cut it is extremely unfair that they are asking for more money when they are trying to reach a AAA rating.
57	29/08/2013	All Politicians should be limited to the same increase they give to those on the minimum wage.
58	29/08/2013	I am concerned that while the same time the Newman government was fighting in court to actually block a long overdue yet miniscule pay rise for our own nurses, the state Politicians and by way of automatic flow on, our local government members (mayors and councillors) are trying to approve obscene pay rises whilst they cry that the city and state is running poor! How can this be fair and even legal when they are making budget cuts left, right and centre? Please address this Issue!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
59	29/08/2013	Question1. No. I suggest a base salary range, for years of service and experience compared with exactly where they sit in the government (eg Minister or local MP only), travel is paid by the government anyway and an additional payment is not needed, allowances should be submitted through the travel approval system like other public servants. Having said this it is reasonable to consider on top of the base salary a smaller electorate allowance to take into account remote areas and additional costs of regional items and servicing regional areas when working in the electorate. The Miscellaneous allowance should be abolished it is just cushioning the salary. If they are serious about saving money this could save quite a bit. 2.The expenses should cover regional servicing and proof of work completed and receipts for out of pocket should be provided and paid on a monthly basis. 3.Zones should be set up for the regional areas and amounts for those zones should apply. The MP offices should be audited on their reimbursements the same as the department's are. 4.MP's provide a great service to the community and work very long hours this should be taken into account when considering a base salary, also if they are a Minister or not, so I am suggesting a sliding scale determined by their experience and whether they are a minister in cabinet or not. 5. To be fair and make it in line with expectations of the public and competitive with other larger company remunerations. If the public service as a whole is not expected to be given pay rises or to take cuts and re-adjust their salary scales then leading by example and not issuing rises until agreements are finalised would be sensitive and supporting of others. Also pay rises must be in line with what is expected to be accepted by the public service eg 2.2% compared to anywhere from 30% on is not fair or equitable.
60	29/08/2013	In my opinion it is unconscionable that politicians seek to impose an inflation limited ceiling on the pay rises of others but are accorded excessive rises in remuneration themselves. If there was a "productivity trade-off" then there may be some justification for supplementary increases in their salaries. However there has been no demonstration of any productivity from any of the Houses of Parliament in our country for many years. Therefore I oppose and increase at all in the salary package for politicians.
61	29/08/2013	I wish to respectfully submit to the Tribunal my view that the proposed remuneration increase for Qld State MP's is both inappropriate and unnecessary. In a climate where Queenslanders are constantly being told by this current Gvmt that times are tough and the budget cannot bear a payrise for public sector workers or investment in public policy initiatives or public health, a 42% payrise for already well remunerated MP's appears to be nothing short of greedy. How can this Gvmt demonstrate that a 42% payrise for State MP's is in the public interest? To serve as a State MP is a privilege. Existing remuneration for current State MP's is already generous considering the allowances and income most MP's receive, for example the Parliamentary Committees of legislative review are stacked with LNP MP's and each one has already received an allowance of $10,000 plus for doing so. On top of existing salary for MP's that is a significant allowance. If this State Gvmt wishes to preach austerity and frugality to the electorate, perhaps it should apply these same principles to its own members and in its own actions. The alternative is to demonstrate a lack of concern for acting in the public interest and in all likelihood to go down in history as one of the most nepotistic, unrepresentative and greedy Gvmts of recent memory. The purpose of a Gvmt is to serve the public good, deliver services to the people who pay their taxes for these services and to ensure law &amp; order. Not to feather the nests of greedy State MP's.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
62	29/08/2013	It is with shame that that I can say that i have voted for Campbell Newman. When there are people in Queensland having a very difficult financial period in there lives. I am not disputing the fact that we all want more money but to do it as such a bad time. Shame on you for being so greedy Campbell Newman , you ow the people of Queensland a apology. Should Tony Abbot lose the election you Campbell Newman will be the one held accountable no one else.
63	29/08/2013	What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? MP's must be able to relate to the people they represent. When MP's receive salaries that can be measured in multiples of those received by people in their communities, the ability of the MP to stay in touch with the issues facing individuals and families is greatly diminished. Moreover, the position is more likely to attract people who want the position, not to further the cause of their communities but to line their own pockets. The salary should not be much over what is deemed the average Australian salary, with allowances covering the additional expenses incurred throughout the term of office.
64	29/08/2013	In these very trying and tough economic times the average citizen of Queensland is finding making ends meet on an "average" wage very difficult. The pollies should feel the pinch as well. They are already overpaid through salaries and "allowances etc..." and should be leading the way with a pay and conditions cut, not a rise.
65	29/08/2013	Politicians at all levels should have their pay rises tied to an index that averages the pay rises of all public servants. They should not be singled out for any special treatment, or get any more of a percentage payrise than the average nurse or teacher.
66	29/08/2013	Politicians are public servants and should be paid according to the Public Service pay scales. They deserve no more remuneration than others working in the public service. Perhaps if politicians were paid along the lines of other workers we would get a better calibre of politician who would be interested in improving the state for all and not vested interests. There should be no retrospective payments to account for the time wages were frozen. Community expectations need to be upheld when it comes to politicians pay. They can not get a (in some cases) 46% pay rise while offering other public servants next to nothing. Thank you for the opportunity to have my opinion heard on this matter
67	29/08/2013	Historically, there has been a link between teachers' pay and MPs' pay. I see no reason why this should NOT continue. I suggest that the base salary of an MP should be pegged at $137,149 until State High school Principals reach this level and that MP and Principal salaries be linked from that time on. If MPs are awarded a salary rise, then Principals should receive the same rise and this should flow on to all teachers at all levels below Principal. Each MP should have at least one office [more in sprawling electorates] fully fitted to an agreed common standard across the state supplied by the Government without any payment by the member. Each member should be supplied by the state with a vehicle, 4WD in some areas, with the member being required to pay for fuel and then being reimbursed regularly on production of a logbook for fuel, used on official business. If necessary, a light plane may be supplied by the state for use on official business only, at the state's expense. All other allowances should be paid in the form of reimbursement of money spent by the member in different categories, with proof

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		[receipts, etc.] up to a stated limit. The amount expended by each member should be publicly available, perhaps on the Parliamentary website.
68	29/08/2013	NO way do I support any pay rises for the politicians mayors councillors at all. This is ludicrous and unwarranted. NO to any payrise for any politician in Australia.
69	29/08/2013	Confidential
70	29/08/2013	I humbly submit that, in a time when all citizens of Qld are being called upon to show restraint in matters fiscal, our political leaders ought, nay, must show the form of leadership in this matter they have shown in areas where expenditure has been greatly reduced to rescue our great state from penury. I further submit that, rather than a pay-rise, our leaders must show the ultimate in leadership and take a 5% pay-cut to establish beyond doubt, their sincerity in this matter.
71	29/08/2013	I am paid below average wages I struggle with week to week rising expenses it would be nice to have extra pay so that I may enjoy my weekends whilst I am still alive it would be nice to have extra money to take my grandchildren somewhere nice even to go shopping and buy something other than select brands or look for the cheapest in all my shopping most of us hard working australians that keep australia ticking dont live our lives we just exist for the rich to become richer tell me please where is the fairness in this life
72	29/08/2013	There should be equity in the determination of appropriate remuneration for ALL public servants. I vehemently disagree with the extent of this pay rise. The politicians should be offered the same CPI driven pay rise that the rest of the public servants have had to survive with. I am a public servant and have recently had to take on the workload of another staff member whose position was made redundant (I would have thought that a position's redundancy would indicate that the work is no longer required however this is not the case). This redundancy has greatly increased my workload, fiscal and HR responsibilities as well as broadening the operational and strategic scope of the position. There has been no review of the remuneration for my position despite the growth in the role. The politicians role has not even changed so how can the payrise be justified in all good conscience. It is clear that this government does not make decisions about remuneration in isolation to other factors including the state of Qld's economy- as I and many other frontline public servants have experienced. As such, and given the rhetoric espoused by Mr Newman and the parliament regarding the state of the economy, it would be unethical, inequitable, and politically damaging to provide the payrise/ remuneration that is mooted in the tribunal discussion paper to these public servants. We have finite public funds and if these funds are diverted in such a drastic way to the politicians, then other services will suffer- frontline services. Services that save Queenslanders lives, educate our children and maintain our infrastructure.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
73	29/08/2013	I submit that whilst Queenslanders have had to suffer cuts to services, and given the jobs losses this Govt has effected there is no justification to raise MP pay levels other than a maximum of maybe 2% which is more in line with the public payrises. How can a Govt that likens QLDs economy's to that of Spains even consider raising pay levels for MPs at all? The only message being sent out to the public if more than a nominal pay rise is agreed to is that this Government obviously wishes to feather its own nest (outrageous also that funds are being utilized to revamp QLD Public Service offices whilst at the same time terminating public servant jobs). Almost every person I know has been personally impacted by the cuts to jobs and services in QLD - it is outrageous that such a payrise is even being considered AT ALL - once again, it is sending a message that these MPs are hoping to feather their own nests.
74	29/08/2013	Politician pay rises should be identical to the pay rises of public servant. Politicians are elected servants to the public. No one should become a politician for the pay- it should only be to serve the public in which case they should have the same pay rise offers as public servants who gain their employment though a merit based process.
75	29/08/2013	Public servants are struggling to get a few % pay rise how on earth can the politicians justify a 40% pay rise??? This should have been resolved before the election? I believe that if the politicians take a huge pay rise there will deservedly be an up roar... and i for one will be supporting this.
76	29/08/2013	MP salaries should consist of a direct salary and allowances for conducting official duties. The salary should be just that - it is the "wage" of the MP and should not be used for official duties. The allowances should reflect the need for expenditure for official duties and should be fully accounted for - similar to a budget allowance for a public sector program.  The same rules and accountability for allowance expenditure which apply to the public sector should apply to MPs allowances.  MPs direct salary should be linked to and calculated in the same way as for the core public sector. MPs salary should be pegged to the same level as SO3 director positions. Higher level positions such as Ministers and Premier should be pegged to the same level as the SES. E.g. Premier should receive the same amount as DG of Department of Premier and Cabinet. Ministers should receive the same pay as the DGs of the Department which supports their portfolio. Parliamentary secretaries should receive the equivalent of an Executive Director in the Department of their relevant portfolio. Chair's of committees should receive the the same as the lowest level SES officer.  MPs should only receive a payrise when the the core public sector receive a payrise.
77	29/08/2013	Queensland MPs are already well remunerated in relationship to their roles and other people in similar positions in other jurisdictions. Any future rises in their remuneration should be limited to that awarded to the Queensland core public servants.  If they argue that they cannot afford to pay the core public servants any increase, then similarly they cannot afford to pay themselves any more.
78	29/08/2013	The Queensland politicians should share the austerity requirement they have imposed on public servants. In regard to their remuneration, a rise should be no greater than the 2.4 percent granted to police, and should come with equivalent trade off of other conditions.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
79	29/08/2013	As a hard working Queenslander, I am dismayed and disgusted that Mr Newman refuses to offer a fair payrise to public sector worker. It shows his contempt for those who work for him! Please consider this hypocrisy and give politicians the same as what is being offered to us!
80	29/08/2013	I believe that the timing of MP payrises should coincide with that of their relative public servants (ie either State or Federal) and should also be scheduled just prior to elections wherever possible. The criteria for assessing the rate of increase should be the same criteria used for their respective staff (ie public servants). Whether CPI or performance based. MP's should never be allowed to influence the outcome of their own payrise review and should NEVER be eligible for a payrise greater than given to their public servants.
81	29/08/2013	Question 1: In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of an MP? Please explain your answer. Yes, I believe that MP's are entitled to direct salary (including superannuation, ONLY if they do not get paid an annual salary upon leaving the role. If they get an annual salary, they should not be entitled to superannuation). If they get the superannuation (and not the wage upon leaving the government) I do not believe the superannuation should exceed that already given in the QLD Government, being 12.75% if workers contribute 5% of their pay. The MP is no better or more or less equal that any public service employee, and therefore should only be entitled to the same level of superannuation. In regards to wages, the base salary as listed in the Discussion Paper of $137,149 is sufficient. I also agree that this wage should increase in line with other government employees. The proposed pay rise suggested by the current MP is outrageous and an absolute offence to workers in the public service (and private) who are flat out even getting the basic 2.5% which does not even cover the cost of increasing cost's of living. MP's only be entitled to the maximum payrise as given to other government employees e.g. 2.5% or 3.5% which is what it most often is. As for expense allowances, I do not think a 'lump sum' should be given as part of the salary. It is highly possible that the expense allowance could actually exceed what the MP actually spends a year, which means they are pocketing tax payers dollars. As a government employee, I have various expenses related to my role which I do not get any compensation for, despite them being work related. I also do not get any 'expense allowance' attached to my wage. On the odd occasion, I can claim but that is in exception circumstances. As such, I feel MP's should not be given an actual allowance as part of their salary, but rather the money should be tied up in a 'fund', and if an MP is to make a work related expense, then they can submit a form and receipt (like the rest of the population) and then be reimbursed. That will then ensure that no MP is pocketing money. Question 2: If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. As stated above, I do not believe MPs should be given the allowance upfront, but rather the money sits in a 'fund' which they are

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		able to claim against only once they have made the expense. I believe all work-related expenses should be claimable. This could include things such as dinner, purchases of stationery, attending functions, paying for professional development etc. Things that I do not believe should be covered is taking family or friends to dinner or functions, purchase of work clothing or attending entertainment venues such as movies as these are all things that the general working population must pay for out of their own pockets. Question 3: How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? As previously stated, the expenses allowance should not be paid to MPs as part of their wage, or even as a lump sum. Rather, the money should sit in a 'fund' and when an MP makes a work-related purchase, they can submit their form and receipt to make a claim to receive the money back. By doing it this way, this will ensure that MPs keep control of their expenditure, and can only claim items that are legitimately work related. It will also ensure that MPs do not pocket any of the allowance that is taxpayers money. It seems that in the current system, the MPs are given the money as part of their salary, but they may actually spend less than the given expense allowance but still get to keep the money which is not fair or equal when there are people working in the public and private sector who are barely even compensated for their legitimate expenses. Question 4: What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? I think a base salary of $137,149 is reasonable. At the most for a base salary, I think $145,000. The benchmark should be how much the MP is able to deliver on their promises and commitments pre-election. Another benchmark should also be how present there are in their areas of responsibility. Another benchmark is their involvement in volunteer and community organisations. Lastly, MPs should remain relatively out of trouble – things like a speeding fine are nothing in the scheme of things, but anything such as fraud or inappropriate dealings should be looked unfavourably. In regards to factors, I think that something that should guide the payrise should simply be what other government employees get. It is a disgrace that in recent times, many government workers have lost their jobs (including myself), and the government is screaming and crying they are poor and in debt. Yet, somehow, the MPs can justify giving themselves a massive payrise (and to continue paying MPs excessive amounts who are no longer working), despite the thousands of government workers who have lost jobs and now have no form of income to even survive. It is utterly appalling that the QLD Government would do such a thing. Further to this, the payrise given to government employees as well as those in the private sector is not even enough to cover the cost of living increases, such as car registration, car insurance, home and contents insurance, health insurance, fuel, food and electricity for

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		example. The MPs often claim they are working to reduce the cost of living, yet each year everything increases significantly – the cost of increases to all the previously mentioned far exceeds the 2.5% or 3.5% government workers or those in private industry get. So, how can the MPs justify giving themselves a significant payrise when the average worker is struggling to even make ends meet. As for previously serving MP's, consideration needs to be given to make it law that MPs do not get both a superannuation and an annual salary. They should not be entitled to both. Why are they entitled to an ongoing wage plus superannuation? No other worker is entitled to continue being paid after they leave as well as get access to superannuation. This is an excessive cost on the tax payer, and an area where significant savings could be achieved for the QLD Government. Rather, they should just be entitled to superannuation like everyone else in Australia and QLD – if that is all the average Australian gets, then that should be all the MPs get. They are no more special than any other Australian. Question 5: Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? All as stated above: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Expenses not to be given as part of the wage/salary, but rather MP's have to make a claim for them. This will therefore ensure they do not benefit/make money off the tax payer if they spend less than the given annual allowance. By keeping the money in a 'fund', MP's can simply submit a receipt and seek reimbursement.</li> <li>• Payrises for MP's to be given in line with what government employee's get, which is usually 2.5-3.5%. MP's work for the government, just like government employee's do and therefore should not be entitled to huge payrises when government workers are not.</li> <li>• Previously-serving MP's should not continue to be paid a salary upon leaving. Rather, they should just be entitled to their superannuation. They should absolutely not be entitled to receive both a annual salary and superannuation as this is a significant cost on the taxpayer.</li> </ul>
82	29/08/2013	Make them linked to public servants pay rises, we get 2.2% they get 2.2% and vice a versa, they get 10% we get 10%, that sounds reasonable. Mr Newmann takes our pay and conditions so they can reduce their pay and conditions, that's only fair.
83	29/08/2013	I am a member of the save our [personal information] we have asked that the area be kept as an education facility. The LNP insist on selling it to become a cow/cane paddock. The amount that the pay rise is stated to be would be enough to refurbish this college for future generations of training in NQ and the wider area. Please think further than their hip pocket and be a statesman and look to the good of hundreds of other Queenslanders.
84	29/08/2013	they would do better giving the pensioners a rise so that we can live a better life but all they do is take it off us and put it in there own pockets we are people as well we need to be able to live a better life and not be killed off by them

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
85	29/08/2013	I believe current remuneration levels are generous compared with other public service jobs involving similar responsibility and time. For example, the highest pay rate for the most senior Medical Officer (without right of private practice) in Qld Health is $215,000. I feel a pay freeze for the term of the current parliament is appropriate, with a further review in the year following the next election.
86	29/08/2013	I do not believe state politicians deserve a pay rise. They are already very well remunerated.
87	29/08/2013	Politicians are elected public servants. Their pay rises should be in line with public sector rises.
88	29/08/2013	I would like to register my protest at the outrageous pay increases that are proposed for our state and local politicians. We are all told how hard the finances are for Queensland at present and there is a down turn, current pay increases are around 2% in most other areas. Politicians pay increases should be just like the rest of the workforce. After All they are not the privileged few. Are They????
89	29/08/2013	Remuneration of Queensland MP's should be directly linked to the remuneration schedule for all public servants, in particular Executive staff. Any future payrise % given to Executive Staff should be also given to MP's and should be able to be reviewed by the existing remuneration review board/tribunal/process - NOT a new board/tribunal/process.
90	29/08/2013	its [inappropriate content] disgusting. lining their own pockets instead of using it to help the country
91	29/08/2013	In regards to Remuneration for Queensland MPs and former MPs. I feel it is unfair to pay back pay remuneration to MP's when the rest of Queensland folk are asked to tighten their belts. I believe that MPs should be entitled to remuneration in the future at a very modest rate which is linked to their performance and achievements in their electorate. I do not agree that past MPs should be paid any remuneration what so ever. Queenslanders are constantly being told the state is broke by Campbell Newman. If this money is available to Queensland it should be paid towards debt reduction. I am registering a NO to remuneration for MPs and past MPs. Thank you for your consideration of my submission.
92	29/08/2013	Pay rises should not be at a level higher than the current wage negotiations with Qld public servants. To seek and/or accept anything above that is morally reprehensible. Additionally, perks enjoyed by politicians should be the same as for public servants after all they are leaders.
93	29/08/2013	As politicians decide pay rises and conditions for public servants, they too should be tied to that system. They should only get the same percentage as public servants, along with the same conditions and perks. Enough is enough. The country is fed up with the greed of these people.
94	29/08/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? I do consider it reasonable that an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances. Most workers are able to claim work-related expenses, either directly from their workplace, or through the taxation system. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Limited travel, eg to attend relevant conferences, meetings, on-site observations, etc. The standard work-related expenses that are

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		claimable by all workers. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? Substitute for salary? Do you mean that expenses should not be considered as a "salary package" option? Then yes, politicians should be remunerated for REASONABLE expenses, but should not consider this as a salary package. Expenditure should be highly monitored and require strong justification, just as work-related expenses are for all workers. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant? I don't feel qualified to comment on this questions. 5. Is there anything else? Labour's decision to not take up the available payrise was admirable in the face of the huge state and personal expenses incurred by natural disasters that were occurring in the region at the time, plus the struggling global economy. It was a decision of the government at that time. Any proposed payrise, should not be backdated, but should be considered at the time of the proposal. Past decisions may be overturned, but not backdated, and payrises should be within a reasonable margin, as per other work place agreements.
95	29/08/2013	I believe that politicians pay rises should be line with and the same as public servants, because politicians are temporary public servants.
96	29/08/2013	In my view politician's pay should be indexed alongside the basic wage so that a rise in the basic wage would trigger a rise in politician's pay and not otherwise. The hope behind this of course is that politicians might remain aware of the level of the basic wage and the need to ensure it is appropriately and annually indexed. Thank you
97	29/08/2013	It is particularly galling as a taxpayer to hear Governments cry poor and then justify their own pay rises. They then insult us by pretending that there is nothing that can be done about it. While I have no doubt that politicians work hard (most of them) the perception is that they have their snouts well and truly buried in the trough. Any pay rises should be considered in the light of what pay rises or cuts have been made for public servants, nurses and other government employees. If they have to fight for a pay rise, then so should politicians.
98	29/08/2013	I believe the QLD Government politician pay rise should be aligned with the public service pay rise. For example with the QLD Government offering public servants approximately 2% the QLD government politicians should be limited to the same pay rise.
99	29/08/2013	Politicians remuneration should increase no more or less then other members of the public service which is currently less then 3% per annum. Queenslanders irrespective of political affiliations were appalled that state politicians were entitled to large increases in remuneration while the rest of us had to accept a 2 to 3% increase. Its a matter of fairness for all citizens of this state.
100	29/08/2013	Other public servants have been denied pay increases of over 2.2% as the State economy can not afford it. There jobs are just as important as a politician. How can the state economy support the pay rise on offer to the politicians? Should they be under the same reviews as other departments. It doesn't matter how important your job is - if there isn't the money you can't have the pay rise.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
101	29/08/2013	Submission to the Remuneration Tribunal 1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. I do not think the grossly inflated salary and allowances combination Queensland MP's receive currently is either fair or just in the current financial and social climate. A Queensland MP's role is to serve the people of their electorate in public office. They chose to go into Politics and serve the state as a senior public servant, voted into this position to serve not to profit. The sort of allowances and pay increases they are currently receiving are far beyond the current CPI residents of their electorate receive and are grossly inflated in comparison to other countries public servants in office. Premier An annual base salary of $137,149  "Allowance to Members" $77,922  "Miscellaneous Allowance" of $32,355  "Additional salary" $143,499  "Expense of Office Allowance" $19,288  Total: $410,213 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. Expenses should be related to the work being carried out by the MP and should be capped at a reasonable and justifiable amount in line with current CPI in Queensland. I agree with allowances for a range of Travel Allowances and other minor entitlements, such as home telephone refunds if they are capped at a reasonable and fair amount given their work load and size of electorate. The Electorate Allowance ranging from $39,263 to per year depending on the size of their electorate is also acceptable but again the amount and range of dollar amount they can claim needs to be policed and justified to the Queensland tax payer. A "Miscellaneous Allowance" of $32,355 per year on top of their already high salary is not justifiable when the state is cutting jobs, expenses and services from its public sector to save money. How can the state allow claims up to this amount per MP? I am extremely against and would hope the tribunal has the strength and power to abolish the additional salary that a MP can claim if they hold office in a formal role, such as the Premier, Treasurer, other ministerial portfolio, Leader of the Opposition, Speaker, Whip, or Committee Member. It is a gross misrepresentation of the "public servant" in these roles to accept additional salary such

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		as $8,217 per year (for a Committee Member position) up to $143,499 per year (for the Premier). Also “Additional salary” that some formal office roles are entitled to such as “Expense of Office Allowance” ranging between $4,350 and $19,288 per year. These additional salaries should be abolished and a base salary agreed to which encompasses a pay increase per year in line with the current CPI that is fair and reasonable comparable to the public servants EB8. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? The tribunal should have greater power to police and assess all claims on their allowances. There needs strong legal guidelines and limits in place to regulate their spending and claims. There needs to be legal and social ramifications for false claims and loss of their MP position. Public Servants are paid by the tax payer’s wages and all public servants and especially Politian’s should be working for the people and the state not substituting their salary with unjustifiable claims. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? Positions held (Accountability and responsibility)  Time in Office  State’s financial position  Size of Electorate  Current CPI  Results driven  Current unemployment rate  Comparable to inflation and cost of living in state  Qualifications  Experience  Hours worked 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Financially, morally and socially how can the Queensland MP’s justify such exuberant allowances such as “Additional Salary” and “Expense of Office Allowance” when they are cutting jobs in the public sector and saying they are trying to save money for the state to get back our AAA rating but they are receiving massive pay increases and allowances? This money should be redirected into the Government Departments to bring better services and infrastructure to Queenslanders. Queensland residents deserve value for money from their senior public servants and better state owned and run services.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
102	29/08/2013	The Politicians have far too much salary and perks totally out of step with the general population and their totally out of step with the general population's superannuation let alone the older generation who paid their Taxes and most didn't draw on the welfare system and don't have any superannuation at all. I believe it has been an obscene grab for cash by people who are being paid to and are supposed to be looking after our welfare. I have lost all respect for our government and believe that they are just robbing our public purse blind. Please I dare you to inject some fairness and integrity into our government, don't just be a rubber stamp for the corrupt and lawless elements of our government and legal system.
103	29/08/2013	Firstly former MPs should not be entitled to any remuneration increase whatsoever. Secondly, current and future MPs remuneration increases should mirror increases granted to the Queensland Public Service as they are all employed by the Queensland public.
104	29/08/2013	Ultimately, MP's are public servants and subsequently, constituents have high expectations for job performance and service to their local community. Therefore, earnings and expenditure should be allocated in a transparent and fair manner, in accordance with the current economical climate and community expectations. I would expect MP's pay to be in line with directors of government departments, in addition to expense allowances as indicated below. MP's should receive a fair wage in accordance with the time and effort they apply to their job, which they must account for, to receive their earnings (e.g. attendance in parliament and at constituency events). MP's should be given a vehicle for the duration of their term, office expenditure and a travel allowance. All politicians should receive a basic allowance dependant upon the size of the electorate, for campaigning, with no external 'backers' or personal funds to be 'contributed', to ensure transparency in decisions when/if elected, and that all aspirants are on a level playing field. However, fringe benefit taxes should apply and MP's should claim all additional expenses on tax as must the remainder of Australian citizens. MP's families should not be travelling or otherwise be receiving advantage from taxpayer's money or MP's expense accounts - if family members accompany MP's for Government travel they should pay their own way. They should only travel in government vehicles in accompaniment of the MP, and should not drive said vehicles. In relation to superannuation, perhaps a solitary tax-free bonus, depending on the length of service, should be paid into a MP's superannuation fund rather than a continuous payment/pension which should still attract capable members whilst still better than that received by everyday Australians.
105	29/08/2013	This has the LNP all over it. no pay rise for these people they just till they have a productivity report done on them. And not by them or Rupert Merdock.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
106	29/08/2013	State Government politicians should only receive the same pay rise as all other public servants plus travel allowance. All other allowance for expenses should be submitted to a financial controlling department for approval (as set out in policies and legislation), processing and finally payment. Politicians should not self manage allowances as this could lead to a perception of inappropriate spending regardless of documentation provided. Once a politician is no longer in office, remuneration should be 50% of last wage received (wage only; no allowances) for a maximum of 5 years. If a politician is removed for (proven) illegal or unethical behavior there is to be no remuneration. Remember: citizens enter public life to contribute to the benefit of the community as a whole, not to make money. if they wish to make money; stay in the private sector.
107	29/08/2013	Any politicians payrise at the very most should be linked (as a percentage) to the smallest payrise of any of the public servants, such as teachers, nurses, cleaners, police and the firies. This should also include benefits like travel, allowances and super. Pensions should also be reviewed inline with what other public servants receive. If cleaners, teachers and nurses don't receive a special pension, so shouldn't the politicians.
108	29/08/2013	Confidential
109	29/08/2013	My submission is simple. It is truly unconscionable that the QLD MP's think they deserve a pay increase at the same time that austerity measures are being enacted through the state. Until the state can afford it (ie until they can start refunding other programs or enacting new ones to combat social issues) politicians pay should not be raised. Being a politician is about serving the people and trying to improve society for the betterment of all, not lining your own pockets. The current salary is already enough to live on. I would go so far as to say that a slight cut of 5% would not be out of step with the austerity measures currently being implemented. But I have a suspicion this will be seen as too far/over reaching. I would be satisfied with a moratorium on all MP salary increases until the current climate of funding cuts has ended. Thank you for your time,
110	29/08/2013	Politicians do worse good work than ever, so they should be recieving a pay CUT not a rise.
111	29/08/2013	I am disgusted by the pay rise the Queensland State politicians will be receiving. When so many people are being made redundant, including vital health workers like nurses, it feels like they are laughing at the public and making a mockery of hardworking Queenslanders. If the state is in such bad debt, lower the salaries of politicians, don't increase them!! And don't put the public's health at risk by getting rid of experienced nurses.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
112	29/08/2013	It is me sincere believe that politicians do NOT deserve a rise. They are overpaid and under achieve in what they do. If telling lies and misleading the public was a job description then they would qualify hands down. It's disgusting how they raid the public purse as though its their right to just take what they want with no accountability to the public. They all consistently abuse their positions of trust selling public assets without consultation with their employer. They are after all PUBLIC SERVANTS SWORN TO UPHOLD AND DISCHARGE THEIR DUTIES FOR THE BETTERMENT OF THE PEOPLE THEY SERVE.... This seems to be forgotten by the greedy way they change things to suit themselves. When they STUFF UP and waste OUR money they take an OBSCENE PENSION and leave the state in debt! I say NO to the rise, NO to their obscene perks and pensions. BUT YES TO MORE ACCOUNTABILITY for OUR money and take back money from Bligh $150,000 per year pension to pay off the debt she left.
113	29/08/2013	The audacity to remove so many people from employment then give yourselves more money. shame on you.
114	29/08/2013	1/2/3. I would prefer to see politician's expense allowances be handled in a similar way to other public servants. That is, to prevent allowances being used as a substitute for salary, expenses would be reimbursed on presentation of receipts. Large and regular expenses such as running an electoral office could be paid and managed centrally (e.g. an MP would be entitled to a suitable office and admin staff, paid by govt as public servants rather than by the MP themselves). Phone / computer / internet expenses could also be handled in the same way as for senior public servants - i.e. supplied and funded directly rather than as allowances. Travel expenses should be reimbursed on presentation of receipts, but within guidelines to reduce costs (e.g. scheduled flights rather than charter flights). 4. To simplify the system, it might be better to define a few levels of payments for MPs - e.g. just MP, committee member, minister, premier, and set standard increases for these. Salary rates of senior public servants would provide a useful benchmark. Executive pay rates would not provide a suitable point of comparison for salary. 5. Increases in salary should be linked to increases in public servants salaries - if most public servants are receiving annual increases of 3%, then this should also apply to politicians. Arguing over public servant increases to then increase politicians' salaries by exorbitant rates is hypocritical in the extreme.
115	29/08/2013	You have got to be joking, if u think any politician deserves a pay rise.Crying poor and sacking people one day, and then get ridiculously inflated pay rises the next is a joke and an insult to the people they are supposed to be working for. Any politician that thinks they deserve it should be instantly dismissed from there job, so they can see what it feels like with the shoe on the other foot. All pay rises should be decided by the people of that state, not some council that we have no control over just because there's some legislation that says they get one when someone else does. Should it possibly be performance based, So they have to prove they deserve it? So I obviously vote no payrise now or until such time a fair system can be created

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
116	29/08/2013	Considerations for politician remuneration, 1. A politicians role I believe is very easy to define they are supposed to be a representatives of the people who make up there electorate, as such asking for any sort of pay rise when the people that they represent are being told to tighten belts and make do with less is not really keeping in tune with this serving the people, I believe politicians pay should be set by the people they represent or by an average of the wage of the people in there electorates after all how are out representative supposed to understand the pressures being faced by the people in there electorate when they do not share in the same burdens. An effective Remuneration policy would be a base salary and then maybe a bonus at the end of the term dependent on how well the electorate or state is doing. My reasoning is that this will mean that the Politicians pay is based on achievements and takes in to account the financial situation of both the State and the area that they represent. 2. The politician should be paid the same allowances and at the same level and have to show the same level of Diligence as a high level Public servant, they should also have to adhere to the same rules and regulations. Since in Effect a public Servant is what these people are and are supposed to be. 3. Answered as above the MP should be subjected to the same level of scrutiny and transparency as a high level public servant. Any expenditure should be examined by an independent body to ensure that it aligns with the MP role and areas of Responsibility. 4. The financial situation of the state should be taken in to account and if the state government is using this as a reason to cut jobs and not give pay rises to others, they should in turn not be given a pay rise. Maybe a good rule of thumb would be to look at the pay rises that the government are willing to offer there public servants and mirror them, hence if in negotiation the government is offering a 2 percent pay rise to there Doctors nurses and police then the maximum that the MP's should be given is 2 percent, anymore would be a slap in the face to the electorate and to the people that they represent 5. Members of Parliament are already paid very well for what they do and the wage rise that they were trying to push through is a long way ahead of what the public servants and any other member of the public could hope for,
117	29/08/2013	Confidential

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
118	29/08/2013	Since Mr Newman got the power to run the Queensland Government, a lot of public service employees have been sacked and the adverse impact has subsequently imposed onto those sacked people and their families. We can see the secondary highest jobless rate in Australia has been "awarded" to Queensland. The premier claims that sacking public service employees is for achieving savings in the government operation cost and making more services/works outsourced to the private market. However his claim is not consistent with his behaviour. Now he approved a new government office building to be constructed to accommodate the ministers, so it seems the Liberal government is using the money saved by sacking people to build a costly office for himself and his ministers. More and more Queenslanders are losing job in both public and private sectors. Lots of friends/colleagues of mine have been made redundant since mid last year. The avenue to promotion in the government departments is almost blocked and salary rise seems like a dream only. When ordinary Queenslanders are suffering in such tough situation, people have nothing but anger over the proposed polly pay rise. As elected representatives, they are concerned about their own benefits rather than what they can do to improve Queenslanders' life. They simply don't deserve such a high salary/allowance.
119	29/08/2013	Any salary increase should be tied to CPI increases.
120	29/08/2013	I have never in my life seen such a cynical and hypocritical proposal as this. If MPs pay is to be linked to anything it should be the public servants (PS) that serve them as well as the public. Who do the pollyes go to when they don't know what they are doing? The public servants; and in doing so distract these PS from their core responsibility, serving the public. It must be remembered that the PS has had massive staff cuts (~17%) yet are expected to do the same work. Despite this most PS are still waiting for their miniscule pay rise. The only fair option is for the pollyes to link their salaries to the PS that they 'oversee'. I am still waiting for the 17% reduction in politicians! No issue in all my time in the PS has galled me to this extent. What is going on is so patently unfair!
121	29/08/2013	I strongly oppose any foreseeable politicians pay-rise given the 2012 public service sackings; a general sentiment of mistrust for the LNP in response to their broken campaign promises; Campbell Newman apology and announcement after his Vietnam trip that the decision by his party during his absence, was wrong and would be reversed. It is an adamant NO to any short-medium term pay rise from me.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
122	29/08/2013	Whilst I appreciate the role of an MP if someone is interested in performing the duties then the income is irrelevant. People in various roles commit to their work place and work under conditions to that role. MP's under the current structure are paid in excess. I believe their needs to be a base salary, vehicle for travel, phone, laptop and then claim the rest on tax if it's required for your role. No super remuneration beyond the standard 12.5% that everybody gets and then they contribute some of their salary as we all have too. I think it's incredibly disgusting that you serve a term and then you get remunerated for life. If they take up a position to hold a portfolio, then again some standard base..just to support the extra travel, nothing like you have stated in the report - very little whilst acknowledging some of the extra time. Also I do not believe they should receive any further funds to support their next campaign, how is that fair, some people put themselves up for election on a $60 000 salary supporting family, why do they get a head start. Their head start is they should be measured on how they have performed in the previous term. It needs to be an equal playing ground. We do not have an infinite bucket of money and less money needs to go to the MP's, if the pay rise is to go ahead then I think we have seen all I need to see in this country of the inequality that exist. Laws and work place reforms that have occurred have been extreme, why aren't the politicians falling under the same scrutiny they are willing to manage out state under. Also to add to this the closures of programs that had proof of success to go into the very deep pockets of politicians. As you mentioned in the reports there is no qualification required, most community are extremely disappointed in any of the major parties and their performance. I will be completely disgusted if the outcome is for the pay rise.
123	29/08/2013	Politicians pay rises should be in line with the rest of the community. Perhaps the wage rise could be an average of the rises given to Police, teachers &amp; nurses or other Government employees. Politicians should also have KPI's attached to their performance like maintenance of services, no new taxes or charges &amp; any increases within the CPI.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
124	29/08/2013	Politicians should no expect a distinct and separate system of remuneration to any other profession. There is nothing intrinsically unique about our system of government that demands their pay scale exceeds that of other public servants. Politicians are fond of using the argument that society needs to pay to attract the best talent, but when it comes time for them to negotiate the wages of teachers, nurses and ambulance drivers - this argument is conveniently forgotten. Additionally, it is very clear to everyone that successive governments are unable to balance their budgets, avoid scandal, or prevent their members from using their political powers to benefit associates in the public sector. So they are certainly not providing us with the selfless and stellar service we deserve. In conclusion, their pay scale and increases should be tied to those of our most essential service providers such as the aforementioned nurses and teachers.
125	29/08/2013	How about money for the homeless instead of lollies pay rise
126	29/08/2013	It is my believe that QLD State Politicians should have their wage rises set to the CPI just like the Pensioners and other Public Service Workers... after all Politicians are Public Servants.. their are voted in to Serve the Public. Other Public Service Workers like Police Officers, Ambulance Officers Fire Fighters, Nurses, Teachers, are asked to accept pay rises of 2 to 3% in keeping with the CPI and one should remember that many of these professionals (Police, Ambulance Fire Fighters, Nurses and Teachers), are working in dangerous positions, often risking their lives within their workplace, whereas Politicians do not work in situations where they are at risk, and if Politicians find themselves in a risky situation, they call on the Police or other Public Servants to protect them. Why then, should QLD Politicians be awarded a pay rise of 42% I ask that the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal consider this when reviewing wage rises for ALL Public Servants. And keep the CPI in mind when reviewing the wage increase for QLD Politicians.
127	29/08/2013	It should be tied to the CPI like other public servants. Untie it from Federal MP wage increases. Option to make it performance based as suggested to our teachers.
128	29/08/2013	Remuneration of members and former members of the Queensland Legislative Assembly: These wages need to be brought inline with other QLD public servants..Pay levels like these are obscene in todays economy. These members have to show productivity gains like all other workers before a pay rise can evn be looked at. If it is within your power to stop these rises then do it. Thankyou

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
129	29/08/2013	I was deeply disturbed by the scale of the proposed pay rise to our state government members. As both a percentage and amount of money relative to inflationary rises there was simply no comparison between the pay rise scales of the government members and those of other public servants. Our elected state members are public servants who represent our state at all levels and are the face of the hard work done by the hard working public servants through out Queensland. I agree that the positions of importance that positions such as elected member and premier etc. deserves a well remunerated salary the increase in pay rise should be in line with all other state employed public servant. The line that is legislated and cant be changed is just a furphy. State government while important is not as important as federal government and the pay scales do not need to be so closely aligned. All of the pay rises of all state politicians should be closely aligned with inflationary increase, this is a pay rise that is more than most other employees receive. I am an employee in small business and do not receive annual pay rises in the order of 2-3%. If a politician is on say $250000 then a 3% increase is a pay rise of $7500 a not inconsiderable sum of money, significantly more than the average Queenslanders will receive. The government are our representatives employed by us the state taxpayers and we should have a say in their pay scales.
130	29/08/2013	I think it is completely inappropriate that a payrise is provided to a group of politicians after cutting close to 20,000 jobs, closing essential services and attempting to close schools in high growth areas.
131	29/08/2013	I can't comment on base salary. I would suggest however that pay rises be linked to the average qld state public service pay rise. This should be indicative of how the govt feels the state is performing and makes it independent of any one body.
132	29/08/2013	I do not believe that Queensland MPs deserve a payrise. This is socially unjust, especially as it comes in the wake of mass sackings of 14,000 public servants. As a taxpayer, I do not approve of giving a payrise to politicians who have done and continue to do much damage to dedicated public servants, their families, and their futures. If the State budget is in crisis, as is claimed, then why put further pressure on it with massive payraises to politicians? How can one justify such action when 14,000 public servants have lost their livelihoods due to State Government decisions? Australia, a decent and fair country, deserves much more than this from their politicians. Brutality and moral bankruptcy are not virtues to be rewarded with a payrise, I believe.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
133	29/08/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. Answer: I believe that an appropriate remuneration structure should relate to the job itself. I believe that any politician should receive a base wage of $80,000 a year which is adequate for someone to live with a family, particularly if their spouse is working as well. The only expenses they receive should be if they use their own possessions in the course of their business, i.e. cars. They should only receive the standard 9% superannuation which is gradually increasing to 12%, not the exorbitant about they receive now. The prime minister should only be on $150,000 a year wage because they live in the Lodge – so no rent, rates etc we pay for it all. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. If they use their own car, then they should be remunerated for the expense of running that car for fuel and wear and tear and maintenance etc. I do not believe that they should have travel expenses, when the government pays for them to fly and stay in hotels, what are they being remunerated for, the inconvenience of doing their job??? The only expenses they should claim should be car expenses if they use their own car and that's it. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? Well the tribunal needs to look at it like a business. In a business, you cut away the areas that are not performing. You need to look at the bottom line, are we in the red or the black? We need politicians to account for their spending, each time they put in an expense form, just like you do when you work for a business. The tribunal would need to oversee the expense forms and if anything looks dodgy, follow it up! 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? Factors should be the person's background, their skills, their experience in that type of role. Then remuneration would be the standard $80K and then that's it! 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Yes cut all the unnecessary expenses rorte. This is what upsets every day Australians because we work hard for our money, have to jump through hoops to even get a bank loan and be scrutinized within an inch of our lives and we have to pay for these politicians to do their "work". The reason they got into politics I should assume is that they wanted to be a voice for the people. Well they forget that once they can see how much money they can make. It's disgraceful! The other thing that really annoys me is when it's election time, I see some silly politician out on the side of the road waving at the cars driving. What does that prove???? Nothing, how about you walk up and down the streets and you meet the people, or hold a community event where you can talk to the people. What does waving do, other than tempt people to run you over!!!!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
134	29/08/2013	Since the election of the Newman Govt, we have seen mass sackings from the public service, erosion of public servants' industrial conditions, closure of essential frontline services that meet the needs of Qlders (especially the most disadvantaged and vulnerable) and moves by some employers in the NGO sector to erode workers conditions. We have also seen the wastage of public monies - rent paid on empty offices, plans made for grandiose office improvements for politicians etc. Now is definitely not the time for politicians to be voting themselves pay rises. Some austerity by politicians is required.
135	29/08/2013	Give them only 2 or 3% pay increase inline with the workforces EB agreements each year for 4 years. Or give them the same increase as persons receiving benefits.
136	29/08/2013	The public don't get a $20.000 or $50.000 pay rise all we can get is $2.00 and maybe $10.00 pay Rise and then we loose it all in taxes anyway so y should Politicians be aloud to get such a big rise when the Gov is tell us to tighten our belts and people are loosing there jobs ?.
137	29/08/2013	Confidential
138	29/08/2013	Politician pay rates, 29-8-13 I believe a fair days pay for a fair days work (productive work) We must have a say in the limit of the Salary rates. A non-government committee; Board of Directors made up of representatives from the voting population (eg. Doctor, Teacher, Builder, Politician, Farmer, Shop Assistant etc.), must set pay rates and the pay rates would be determined by the knowledge and experience required and the hours worked. No allowances; for example, travel is part of the job and the allowance is already included in the salary. When the job stops or a politician is voted out, the pay stops.
139	29/08/2013	Queensland politicians must not receive this ridiculous payrise. We can't afford it. Services to those truly needing help are being cut at unprecedented rates. So how can the government POSSIBLY justify this pay rise? I'm on a disability pension. I have friends working for quite low wages who could really do with some of this mone. But the fact is, Campbell Newman is saying his government can't afford to pay for basic services, so how can they (that is WE) afford to give money to people already earning above the average wage? WE CANNOT, AND WE DESERVE BETTER! Please take this submission into consideration &amp; don't discriminate against the low income earners of Queensland.
140	29/08/2013	The decision to institute this pay rise to politicians borders on being morally reprehensible. Politicians must remember that the welfare of the people is of the utmost importance. This pay rise amounts to politicians lining their pockets at the expense of the welfare of the people. More so, as people are struggling. Politicians must act in a manner that is seen to be just and fair.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
141	29/08/2013	As the rest of the public service will only be receiving - by submission from the government - 2.2% from the public purse the politicians should receive the same amount of 2.2% from the public purse. As with public servants they are also employed by the public and therefore fall under the same pay agreement that they state all public servants must get. They are not the only public servants who work very long days to make sure everything runs smoothly but unlike the rest of the public servants, politicians receive extra benefits including a super fund that way outperforms all other public servants and are able to access as soon as they leave the public service unlike everyone else. I am a public servant and work for education Queensland. I work in a school and have not had a pay rise for 2 years and now the federal government is putting me into the low income worker category. I have never been classed as a low income worker before. $42000 is now a lot of money to receive for a 12 month period and a 2.2% wage increase will not make anything much better. Thanking you for taking the time to read this.
142	29/08/2013	If the Politicians were given the same percentage that they give to the Public Servants then this would be looked at in a better light than the current system.
143	29/08/2013	I firmly believe that politicians are overpaid and find it abhorrent that they have pay increases as regularly and as high as they do. Especially when vital services such as nurses, teachers, police, firefighters and ambos/paramedics are paid so little in relation to the job they do and that they need to strike to get a pittance of increase which does not even match cost of living. Politicians like the jobs mentioned above must be accountable. If they have not successfully done their job they should be sacked, as in any employment. I put forward that politicians are placed on the same wage as teachers/ nurses/ police and are made as accountable in their duty. That they receive pay increases at the same rate and through the same process of negotiation as these professions do. Further and in relation to perks of the job...Nurses get penalty rates for shifts, teachers receive non face-to-face teaching time in the school holidays for planning, marking and professional development (etc) so it should be for politicians BASIC perks not all those extras. By doing this you will have politicians who want to serve because they are passionate, not in it for the money, and who are earning their money not robbing the system and bleeding us dry.
144	29/08/2013	My submission is about the politicians pay rise which in this economic climate is arrogant, uncaring and deplorable. Why should these politicians who have sacked so many people, be encouraged in this sort of thing - they absolutely do not deserve it. As a country we are over governed as it is.
145	29/08/2013	Any one with any sense can see this is not fair. If the Queensland government say people have to lose their jobs to save money. But the politicians wont take a pay cut but must have an increase in their wage. For heavens sake show you are not part of this greed.
146	29/08/2013	All politician pay rises should be in alignment with pay rises for public servants. So if politicians receive 2% pay rise then so does the public servants that work for them. Also the back pay for the pay rise be the same for politicians as it is for public servants.
147	29/08/2013	It seems only fair that politicians should receive the same pay rise as the average public servant. In this case between 0 and 2%. The State Government after all is maintaining an austerity policy on the alleged state of the Queensland economy that they should also be required to share the pain.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
148	29/08/2013	I am of the firm belief that Queensland Politician's emoluments should be directly linked to those of the Queensland Public Service. Whether this is by a fixed amount above a Director-General or by a percentage is a question the tribunal should determine. personally, I would prefer a fixed amount to stop the gap widening each time there is a pay increase. In a similar fashion, electorate and travel allowances should be linked to those of the public service, and further, based on realistic costs. This would keep things fair and equitable.
149	29/08/2013	I think that consideration of MP and Premiers pay rates needs to take into account the appalling manner in which this govt is treating public servants by trying to cut conditions in their enterprise bargaining and offering them smaller than inflation pay rises. If public servants are getting low pay rises sho should MPs and the premier
150	29/08/2013	No pay rise beyond the cpi until government corpulence stops and the tax payers past and present are put ahead of all else.
151	29/08/2013	Politicians should realise they do not have to go through a selection and interview process like the rest of us so their pay rises should be no more than what they are willing to offer public servants and the general workers.
152	29/08/2013	Regarding the issue of MP remuneration and a possible significant pay rise, I find it highly offensive that our state MPs are paid very closely to their federal counterparts. Any pay rise during a period where our state is in deep financial debt should be completely forbidden. In light of 15000 state employees losing their jobs, it goes against what the state is trying to achieve in returning the budget to surplus or to the very least, manageable debt levels. Until such time as the state government can prove to be financially responsible and no longer reliant on borrowing more and more money, no pay rise for our already well paid MPs should occur. Once achieving this financial stability, any future pay rises should only be in line with CPI and capped at a maximum 4% per year. These are reasonable pay rises that any other government department, state or federal, would be lucky to negotiate through their on enterprise agreements.
153	29/08/2013	This proposed pay increase for these self serving LNP government is not warranted or justifiable ! The austerity they are applying to this state is unethical ! For them too accept it really shows their priorities ,! Shame on them !
154	29/08/2013	The Newman LNP Government has sacked 14,000 public servants in the name of austerity. Additionally, they have changed legislation to deny Qld Public Servants their conditions and continue to deny our previously negotiated increments because basically the State cannot afford it.  Therefore I see no reason why deserve a 42% pay increase. Furthermore, I would suggest that politicians pay increases should match those of public servants to ensure a fair and equitable distribution.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
155	29/08/2013	MPs should be paid a base salary that is tied to the base rate of core public servants, with increases to MPs being of the same size as those granted to workers in the public sector. Additionally, the base level salary should be based on training and experience, so an MP with a tertiary qualification would get more than a former shelf stacker from Coles, and one who had studied a relevant area would get more again. There would have to be additional remuneration for those who took on Ministries as well. MPs could also get an increment based on the number of years they had spent serving, so a first time MP get less than a second term MP, a first time Minister gets less than an experienced Minister and so on. They should also get work related allowances, but not in the manner it is currently managed. Expenses should be provided for actual expenditure, similar to the way the public service works. Simply handing an MP a lump sum based on something like the size of electorate is not good value for money for tax payers. Allowances would be for travel, accommodation, vehicle expenses, meal allowances while away from home and perhaps even dry cleaning, but all as actuals, with accompanying receipts. Setting the level of the base salary is harder, but I think the base for a brand new MP with no additional responsibilities of $137k is reasonable. For Ministers their base rate should be matched to the salary of the DG of the Dept they are leading. For a brand new MP to join a single committee and sit there doing very little while they learn how to do their job and at the same time take home a minimum of $221k including expenses is not a fair and reasonable level of pay. Also for MPs to vote themselves a pay rise of 48%, saying they can't help it because the legislation says they must is disgusting. The current government has, and continues to, overturn legislated entitlements of public servants, while begrudging them a very modest pay rise.
156	29/08/2013	Payrise for politicians?! Not when the average family is barely unable to keep food on the table for our children!! Open your eyes up and get them off yourselves. No payrise is reasonable in this economy while families are struggling to keep their heads above water.
157	29/08/2013	The pay of elected representatives should be increased in line with the pay of public servants. It is not as if public servants are poorly paid! There should be shared sacrifice and shared gain. We are either all in this together for the good of the people of Queensland, sharing the good times and bad times or it is dog-eat-dog. If social inequality continues to increase in Australia we will pay the price in rising crime and social dislocation. We are looking for politicians to show some leadership in this regard.
158	29/08/2013	every worker is entitled to wage increases. the increase should be at least in line with inflation as a minimum or in line with the agreed minimum wage as a maximum.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
159	29/08/2013	I believe that MP's wages need to be bench-marked against a specific & measurable set of publicly stated goals with specified timelines. [ Based on their policies & platform.] They should start on a base wage & depending on how successfully or otherwise they achieve their set goals & objectives they can be remunerated. Given that many have no real qualification or prior experience [ nor aptitude to run a state or country if the truth is known] their base wage needs to be reduced from where it currently is to perhaps a $10, 000 amount over the average wage. MPs with prior experience or tertiary qualification in relevant & appropriate areas could start on a higher wage suitable to their professional qualification. This would bring the system more appropriately into line with community standards & ensure better outcomes for the people of this state. If they performed really well this independent & publicly transparent process would also help the public see who was worth returning at the next election.
160	29/08/2013	The government has already made many necessary positions redundant and reduced contract teacher positions, resulting in excessive pressure on the public service delivery such as education and health. If this state is under financial duress it stands to reason that we do not increase politicians pay as we are all expected to make sacrifices for the good of the nation. I as a fully qualified teacher Ambon a wage of 60,000 dollars struggling to pay the bills.
161	29/08/2013	I would sincerely request that any wage increases be governed by the the Consumer Price Index and therefore reflect the economic environment of the time. I would also like to see that to allow MP's to collect the appropriate wage for their full time employment as MPs that their pecuniary interests be publicly notified. Also establish a ruling that an MP cannot perform any additional or former employment position [including unpaid Directorships] in any capacity. I would also submit that if this Act reflects on the wages of elected Municipal offices that the ability for Mayors to unilaterally adjust their personal department budgets be highly scrutinised and governed by a third independent body as well.
162	29/08/2013	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. I believe that an appropriate remuneration structure should include a combination of direct salary and some expense allowances. These should be in line with the remuneration structure for other public servants.</li> <li>2. I believe that expenses should include travel expenses which should be limited to economy class and meal expenses only when travelling away from home. Similar to expenses paid to other public servants</li> <li>3. Allowances should only be used to cover the expenses of running an office and paying office staff there should be accurate record keeping to verify these expenses</li> <li>4. The role of an MP is an important one and direct salary should reflect this, again I believe that the public service award would be an appropriate benchmark.</li> <li>5. MPs salaries rates should be performance based and salary increases should be applied when MPs perform exemplary work for their electorate and or portfolio.</li> </ol>
163	29/08/2013	The wage increase is atrocious for QLD current and former ministers. It is a disgusting request by these ministers in general but even worse now when we are still in the throws of a GFC and the repercussions being felt with many QIDers having lost their jobs or suffering hardship over the past few years. The cost of living is enormous and normal workers are lucky to get at CPI payrise let alone this extreme level. If you do not see that is completely unfair, unjust and unethical then you are telling QLDers that they are valueless and the ministers jobs are of more worth when compared to other workers, especially people saving lives. REJECT THIS PROPOSAL OF RENUMERATION FOR THE MINISTERS THEY SHOULD HANG THEIR HEADS IN SHAME ESPECIALLY OUR PREMIER, IT IS DISGUSTING TO REWARD YOURSELF AT THE EXPENSE OF THOSE WHO ARE SUFFERING.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
164	29/08/2013	I believe that, at a time when Governments, at all levels across Australia, are responding to Enterprise Bargaining Agreements with low level offers with respect to salary increases, because of the limited nature of the financial resources available to those Governments, it seems inappropriate that elected representatives, who make up those Governments, should irresponsibly benefit from salary increases that are out of step with those of their constituent employees. It would seem to me that the previous Government acted outside the legislation in limiting pay rises for our elected representatives, during its last term. However, it would seem that the principle, that the Government pursued, still stands. At times of financial restraint, the salary increases of our elected representatives should be limited to a range commensurate with the rest of the communities, which they serve, and in particular the salary increases of the majority of Public Servants. With regard to the requirements of the existing legislation that links MPs' salaries to external factors, this Government has demonstrated that it is capable of enacting legislation quickly to over-ride EBA and Public Service guidelines, to enable it to gain the outcomes that it wishes. Accordingly, it should be possible for the Government to enact legislation quickly to prevent the remuneration legislation, as it stands, from being enforced. I understand that the value of an MP's carrying out the MP's role, functions and responsibilities has not increased sufficiently, post-election, to necessitate such an increase in remuneration, as is being proposed. To sum up, difficult times require financial restraint, and the requirements of legislation can be over-ridden by swiftly putting in place alternate legislation to achieve the financial restraint required by the present difficult financial times.
165	29/08/2013	My wife who works for qld education said today ,state government halted all negotiations on wage increases for them but polliies continue to engross themselves by removing conditions that the rest of workers must be judged, if the state cannot afford to be fair for all. I have worked for 40 years in the construction industry and have never ever found paying our bill so hard, don't smoke or drink and no wild habits and find an unfair and unnecessary increase as an insult
166	29/08/2013	Politicians' payrises should be aligned with the percentage increases of the public servants. If the public servants are granted a 2.2% increase as part of their Enterprise Bargaining Agreement then that's what the politicians should also receive. An increase of more than the percentage granted to the Government's employees cannot be justified in any terms.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
167	29/08/2013	Pay for politicians should be benchmarked to pay in OECD countries of similar wealth, loosely linked to the number of constituents represented and or the monetary size of the portfolio. It is offensive what Australian politicians earn compared to say an English, US or German politician for example. Raises should be proportional to other public servants without under that table rises eg retirement benefits.
168	29/08/2013	In regards to the pay increases of politicians and elected officials it is blatantly clear that the amount of increase is unjust, unwarranted and an insult to the people of Queensland . How any regulation authority can allow such increases whilst the government at the same time is slashing public sector jobs and blocking basic pay increases which are in line with inflation is ridiculous and down right negligent. Those involved should have their job taken away
169	29/08/2013	Governments spruik of equity in the workplace and ask people to take cuts to their terms of employment and lose Accrued days off because the government can not afford it and then limit 2.5% pay rises to nursing and hospital staff. They obviously class themselves better than anyone else and with all the other perks of the job they place themselves at a higher value than everyone and give themselves a pay rise higher than the people they serve. Stop the spin and be accountable.
170	29/08/2013	Former MPs are just that, former ... don't deserve anything further than what they left the job with Current MPs ... work no where near as hard as public servants yet have persistently worked to strip away public servants employment rights and withhold a fair pay rise ... MPs deserve no more than what the public servants are getting ... at the moment = zip / nada / zero / zilch.
171	29/08/2013	Same as public servants
172	29/08/2013	Confidential
173	29/08/2013	We as a state and a nation believe in a fair days pay for a fair days work, currently our Politicians, whether Federal, State or Local members, believe in taking the public for a ride, not only restricting their pay rise, but also by believing they are better and more deserving then us by trying to give themselves a outrages pay rise of 42%. They currently inform us that we are currently running a deficit of billions of dollars, and they have to cut spending to make savings, while with the other hand giving themselves a 42% pay rise. We let make it compulsory that they only way Politicians obtain their pay rise is after a referendum is put to the voters, who decide whether they are worth the pay rise, and we as a country also decide the percentage they deserve, based on their performance. Currently I believe that there is currently no Politician that deserves to be paid a wage at all, with their current record. There is just a lot of school yard bullying within the Parliament now a days, they need to shut up and look at how to improve the

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		country and steer us in the right direction. They are suppose to be working for the voters and the country, so in fact we are their employers, so we should have the right to say whether they deserve the rise, and not themselves being the only ones that state what they are entitled to. We can not give ourselves the percentage for our own pay rise that we believe we deserve, so why should they, I do not even believe that a tribunal should even be allowed to decide, it should be the Public voice and the public voice only.
174	29/08/2013	I think this whole issue is very, very simple. If the government decided Qld couldn't afford thousands of public servants and infrastructure projects (and we the public wouldn't really know because I don't think we can trust the figures trotted out by either side)then how in the world can they justify giving themselves(who earn a whole lot per year more than all the public servants you just sacked) a pay rise? It shows them for the pigs they are with their snouts in the trough with absolutely no real concern for everyday Queenslanders. And liars. If we can afford to give them a payrise then Qld is very obviously NOT going broke. they promoted restraint and reduceing expenditure. I plead with the tribunal to REDUCE their wage! And freeze it for three years. How much will that save? And the closer they are to living like those on the average wage, the more likely they are to make decisions that really benefit the middle 70% of Queenslanders because they will have a realistic perspective rather than a privileged one. This is a core matter of how our democracy should be goverened, not an enterprise bargaining argument.
175	29/08/2013	When ordinary people who have worked hard and paid their taxes can not enjoy retirement because of an inadequate pension, how can any government justify a pay rise to persons who are already over paid like politicians?
176	30/08/2013	As we are in tough times this is disgusting that one section of government can take such a high pay rise. Stop now
177	30/08/2013	Confidential
178	30/08/2013	I believe politicians pay rises should be in line with the percentage rate of all Public Servants and no more. Recently the QLD politicians tried to give themselves a vastly larger pay rise than other public servants. They want productivity rises etc for other public servants then they should have to adhere to the same. Just because they receive a vastly higher remuneration does not mean they should receive a vastly higher percentage of pay rise. Again they should be in line with every other public servant. If public servants get 2.5% then that is exactly what politicians should get.
179	30/08/2013	Stop the Politicians from haveing a pay rise they get paid enough now and all the super they get would keep a pensioner for years
180	30/08/2013	STOP THE POLLIES PAY RISE, I DIDN'T GET A 47% PAYRISE LAST TIME WHICH WAS 2 YEAR AGO
181	30/08/2013	I disagree with Pollies getting a pay rise, especially at 47%. they tell us the state is broke and we need to fire Public Servents, Nurses, Fireman and yet they can find teh money to give themselves this enourmous pay rise, Don't understand their thinking
182	30/08/2013	Preamble: There is a popular misconception that most Politicians are underworked and overpaid. Clearly this is not the case. At a backbencher level $130k might sound a lot compared to the average wage, but being a Member of Parliament is NOT an average job. As a former Member I can tell you that most Members work 60-80 hours per week, are out almost every night of the week and weekends, plus constant travelling and Parliamentary sittings. When this is coupled with a constantly hostile work environment, where members are abused and harangued by the general public and the media over issues that are usually beyond their control in the Electorate, and then they head off to Parliament where they are abused, taunted, and subjected to personal attacks and unparalleled bullying (which would not be tolerated in any other

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		workplace) Clearly you cannot compare this with any “NORMAL” job. Remuneration: Ultimately it is for the tribunal to decide what is an appropriate level of recompense. One only has to juxtapose the remuneration of say the Health Minister, with the Director General of Health, to see the disparity of income. Ministers have to put up with everything I have described in my preamble X 2, and often for a fraction of what their D.G’s are paid. Many M.P.’s have given up significant professional careers where they where paid far in excess of their current pay rate for nowhere near the public scrutiny and pressure. Unless decent remuneration is paid for this extremely difficult job, it will become increasingly difficult to attract quality M.P’s. Former members: As the defined benefit pension scheme was discontinued a number of years ago, there remains a finite and reducing number of people who are being paid under this system, and I would urge tribunal members not to de-couple our wage rises from the current defined benefit which is a percentage of backbenchers wages. I believe that to make these changes retrospective would be a denial of natural justice, as that was the basis of which we went into Parliament. (Later members also new what they were signing up for.) Consider my personal situation. [personal information] Consider the situation of former members who are older than sixty five, and are disqualified from any age pension, because of their current situation, and also if they died their spouses income would be halved again, and when they subsequently die there will be nothing left to their family. If their spouses remarry they lose the lot. As previously stated this is a diminishing cohort and in the interests of natural justice, should not be subject to retrospectivity. Thank you for your consideration of these points. Please forgive the informality of me emailing this submission [personal information]. I am happy for you to publish any part of this submission as long as nothing is published that could lead to the disclosure of my identity or [personal information]. If you need to contact me regarding this submission please email me at [personal information]
183	30/08/2013	I work in the aged care sector doing In Home Care. I am paid $18/hr. To be able to do my job I use my own personal vehicle which I am compensated for (by my employer)at the rate of $0.75/km. I work in a region from [personal information]. $0.75/Km does not cover my vehicle expenses. Our politicians are paid more than enough to cover all of their expenses. I do not believe any politician in this country let alone state should be receiving a pay rise or increase in allowances when our economy is in such a mess &amp; people like myself &amp; our pensioners are struggling to pay the bills &amp; put food on the table &amp; the public services that our taxes pay for a not functioning properly or efficiently. Could you please ask all these politicians when do I get more than $18/hr for showering, dressing, cooking,

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		cleaning, laundry, transport & ensuring that medications are taken at the right time for our elderly? I earn $30,000/year in my job? The politicians need to stop worrying about a pay rise for themselves and give a liveable pay rise the lower income earners to help stimulate the economy.(The more we earn the more we spend) Also by giving a pay rise to the lower income earners the flow on effects of cost cutting would be amazing. An immediate area would be a reduction in Mental Health issues that are caused by stress. Less "stressed people" means lower attempted suicide rates, depression,& other stress related illness such as strokes. This flow effect would then start reducing the cost of healthcare as there would not be such a high demand in the Mental Health & Cardiac sector. This is just one immediate idea of possible Government cost cutting methods. Isn't it time our money was spent more wisely? remind these politicians who pay their wages.
184	30/08/2013	The LNP got voted into Queensland under false pretences and promises all of which have not been upheld. For them to give themselves such a huge payrise when they are not even earning the money they get before the pay rise is a real con to the taxpayer. The pay rise should be cancelled and they wage they were receiving deducted until they do their jobs of serving the people of Queensland.Newman should be had up for FRAUD because that is how he got the power making promises he never intended to keep. Its especially shameful, how they can show their faces in public has me beat, its probably why you don;t hear from the Queensland LNP much any more, they are lying very quiet, when the workers can not even get a 2% pay rise because they can't afford it....People are sick of the lies and BS.
185	30/08/2013	Politicians' pay increases should be linked to the pay increases that all public servants receive. What makes politicians so special that they should receive approximately 10% pay increase per annum? Nothing! CPI pay increases ought be the maximum.
186	30/08/2013	A politician's pay rise should be the same as a public servant's pay rise, after all, they are here to serve the public not themselves. When police, teachers, nurses, fire fighters etc, are being asked to accept small percentage increases it is OBSCENE that politicians put themselves above these hard-working public servants.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
187	30/08/2013	A pay rise of this size (at any time, let alone in the current economic conditions) is nothing short of obscene. I submit that it be repealed and a fairer pay rise, more in keeping with current community conditions and standards, be imposed in its place. If a 2 per cent pay rise is good enough for the overwhelming majority of our public servants, then it is good enough for our elected public servants also. On the issue of future pay rises for our elected representatives, putting pay into the hands of an "independent" tribunal is a guarantee of more obscene pay rises in the future. The tribunal won't be independent in the true sense of the word. Our elected representatives will set the terms and reference points that the tribunal will use when setting pay. A decision will be made and our elected representatives will say "it's not our decision, we stand by the decision of the independent umpire", etc. It is a guarantee of even more greed in future. I would sooner have elected representatives have complete power to make their own pay and to take full responsibility for their pay rises. Have them completely involved in the process. Have them stand by the decision, to "own" the decision fully, and go the people and make their case. If decisions about politician pay are to be taken out of their hands then the best, fairest thing to do would be to tie their pay rises to that of all the other public servants. I can see no good reason why this wouldn't bring about a fair, reasonable outcome, not only for politicians but for the majority of public servants. Thank you for considering my submission.
188	30/08/2013	Public servants need to be brought into line with private enterprise. Whilst there should be a base pay any other entitlements which are significant should be removed from the next election. The only entitlement which could remain would be travel based on own car use. The tax payer cannot afford to pay these unnecessary entitlements particular if the Government doesn't perform. KPI's should be introduced as an incentive alined to private enterprise &amp; any increase is subject to meeting the KPI's in that financial year.
189	30/08/2013	Why should the Queensland politicians recieve a pay rise when so many Queensland public servants have lost their jobs and the ones that are left have not received a pay rise for 2 years.
190	30/08/2013	When you look at this from a company perspective, how can Qld politicians ethically accept such pay increases when Qld, essentially the company they run is failing. I compare this with my situation, the company I work for is struggling to stay viable, which resulted in us missing out on meaningful pay review increases and bonuses for the second year. Those are the facts of life, if you keep dipping into the bucket at this rate it will only get worse.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
191	30/08/2013	Absolutely outrageous that the LNP Queensland government can suggest a 40% pay rise after cutting at least 14,000 jobs (in reality more lie 20,000)and complaining about Labor's "so called mismanagement" of finances in relation to deficit.The LNP government are on a steep learning curve in relation to financial management and governance (including costings associated with disaster recovery and infrastructure rehabilitation). I am appalled and disgusted that Campbell Newman and Jeff Seeney have shown such poor leadership through the arrogance and complete disregard for those Qld government employees who are suffering through job losses. I will never ever contemplate a vote for the LNP after this debacle.
192	30/08/2013	I do not see why politicians need any pay rise. They are telling the rest of us we live in austere times and we cannot have pay rises, even though the cost of living for all of us has gone up to the same extent, so why should they be special? They already receive allowances for many things that the rest of us do not. They knew the income level when they signed up. They should not be able to vote themselves massive pay rises while the rest of the population have to struggle. This country has among the highest percentage of politicians in the world. They are a massive burden on the country and are paid very large amounts relative to what others earn. They also get other advantages like massive Superannuation that the rest of us do not. Please stop these politicians from this 'get rich quick' scheme.
193	30/08/2013	Politicians receive far too much pay and allowances now for the work that they do. The new rises in pay which they were to receive was obscene. No person needs that amount of money to live. There are far too many politicians in Australia (Local Councils, State Politicians and Federal) No wonder the Country is going downhill, all pigs in a trough. Pensioners, unemployed, single parents etc all have to manage on a pittance. I am sorry but it seems that people now are just getting into politics for the money they can make and not for the good of the Country. They do not deserve any pay rise. When politicians want a pay rise, put the vote to the general public and see how much of a pay rise WE will grant them. Nil, nothing, zero. Put the money instead into Hospitals, schools etc.
194	30/08/2013	I recommend that a body be set up to review the income of the poorest in our society. I wouls put non self funded pensioners, those on new start allowance, and disability payments in that category. State Parliamentarians remuneration should then be linked to the decision of this body. If the poor get a pay rise then so do the parliamentarians. If they don't then the parliamentarians don't either. Also parliamentarians remuneration neds to be looked at in total includeing all their allowances and priviliges. a cash value should be put on non monetary benefits such as transport etc and the total remuneration should have a cap of no more than a multiple to be decided of the national average wage.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
195	30/08/2013	Politicians do require specific remuneration arrangements, but being cognisant that it is taxpayer money - the public purse is paying. My view is: Align the base aggregate with public service award, and pay rise for that are aligned. eg Public servants get 2.5% so to Politicians receive 2.5% to the base aggregate only. The allowances are only increased with CPI per year - currently at .4% Allowances are standardised across all public service and what is used is open to public review. Travel allowances are kept at what the public would call reasonable (not what the politicians believe is reasonable)..daily flights (costing taxpayers per excess 100K a month) to normal work is not reasonable. It would be cheaper to rent a 1br Unit in the city during the week. The electoral allowance should go to an approved electoral account - not personal accounts, where it can be used for electoral expenses and transparent to the electorate. I think the public would be more accepting of the politicians remuneration if it were more open to transparency(and unacceptable use of allowances was appropriately dealt with) rather than the hype on the news! My views
196	30/08/2013	Private company employees don't receive any income or benefits once they are not working in their position so why should MP's? MP's earn more than they deserve as it is and should go and get another job when they leave as the rest of us do.
197	30/08/2013	I was recently retrenched from my job of 23 years --against my will, and despite all my efforts. This was supposed to be a cost cutting idea. How can you now award yourselves huge pay rises, so far way above that offered for the rest of the Qld public service? There is something awfully wrong with this picture, in my view.
198	30/08/2013	Given the degree of cynicism and apathy towards politics current in the populace, I believe change to the current remuneration levels is overdue. Politicians have a demanding and onerous job...but so do many others in the community. They enjoy many perks and allowances. I believe their remuneration should be pegged at a generous percentage above the current "average" wage,( whatever that is, presently ). Candidates should be drawn to the position by desire to serve their country and improve the general lot of the community. I DO NOT hold with the commonly quoted view that "if you pay "peanuts"(?!), you get monkeys".Recent history has brought that viewpoint sharply into question. There needs to be a lot more emphasis put on the pre-fix,"The Honourable.....".
199	30/08/2013	I understand that politicians may work hard, some much more than others. Some not much at all. When remuneration is being taken into account we need it to consider the actual time that politicians are at work and actively working for their constituents. They need also to be considered against the remuneration that they might receive in a Private Company (and highlight this) so as the general public can see they are getting good value for money. At present I think the Premier's Income seems to be a bit inflated considering what we see being done, or maybe there are too many out there who are underpaid.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
200	30/08/2013	Submission on the issue of the remuneration of Queensland MPs and former MPs. [personal information] As requested, I will address the questions as posed in the Discussion Paper. The decision to become an MP is a personal one, and there is no reason why any person should be treated differently as an MP of Queensland to a Cleaner, Teacher, Doctor, Company Director, Garbage Collector, or Unemployed person. To treat an MP and their remuneration any differently only goes to support the notion that they are above or better than those people for whom they were elected to serve. 1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. Salary of salary and Expenses should be reimbursed up to a pre-determined level, as would be the case for the significant majority of wage and salary earners in Queensland. It is not appropriate to combine the two, as the Discussion paper outlines, expenses vary depending on the size, location and demographic of the individual electorate. There is no real reason to treat an MP of the Queensland Parliament different to the citizens of Queensland. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. Expenses allowances are appropriate, up to a predetermined level, which the tribunal should set. Postage costs to communicate with electors, travelling, meals whilst away from your region and other items are currently reimbursed would be considered acceptable. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? As any salary or wage earner is required to do by their employer, all expenses should be reimbursed through a central body where records of all expenses are required to be kept and produced. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? MP's are elected to serve their community, and as such should be in touch with a wide variety of constituents, including those less fortunate than others. MP Salary has been set, determined and adjusted for years, so given the current salary, all increases should be tied, and set in accordance with either the percentage increase in the Old Aged Pension, or the percentage increase of the national minimum wage.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? MP's often receive intangible benefits during and especially after their terms of office, which are the result of their selection and election by the voting public. In many cases, those in higher office receive ongoing benefits, and exceptional superannuation benefits, not afforded to the average wage/salary earner. MP's are elected to serve their constituents, and as such should view their role as an honour and not a cash grab at the expense of taxpayers. I also disagree that MP's should view their role in relation to their political party, as their political party did not elect them – but the citizens of their seat in Queensland elected them. A political party is purely a way of organising likeminded citizens to project a common agenda – one which rarely serves the ideals of 100% of citizens.
201	30/08/2013	In considering the role of a Queensland MP I do believe an appropriate remuneration structure should be a direct salary with SOME expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP. I do believe however that the current remuneration levels are excessive and are not commensurate with the value that most MP's are adding to our nation. The expense allowances should cover the reasonable transport and accommodation costs that are directly associated with their activities as a MP. I do NOT accept that MP's should think that they should stay in the very best hotels and travel top class. MP's are supposed to be working for and representing the people and ultimately it's the working population that pay their wages through the taxes they pay. The Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of MP's by having stricter more 'austere' standards for expenses. It should not be so easy for MP's to just 'add it to the tab' so to speak. There needs to be greater accountability on the MP's to show that their expenses are reasonable. I believe MP's need to show more accountability for the work they do so their direct salary is COMMENSURATE with their performance. MP's should be able to show where they have directly improved or made positive change to the communities they are representing. They should be required to prove that they are carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities. Teachers for example are expected to show their performance has met or exceeded the educational requirements. Therefore MP's should be required to prove their worth. The Tribunal should also take into consideration the blatant mis-use and abuse of expense allowances and privileges by MP's in the past.
202	30/08/2013	Surely a Government that requires all of its workers to "consider the governments financial position before receiving a pay rise" cannot morally give themselves a pay rise when times are as tough as they are claiming when withholding staff payrises! This is assuming that this government has any morals! Maybe all Queensland government ministers pay should go up the same percentage as they are awarding their workers with the same loss of conditions they are forcing us to accept also. My current pay offer is actually going to be a pay cut if accepted(forced upon us by the IRC) Any Minister who thinks they deserve a pay rise while ripping off their staff in the name of AUSTERITY should be embarrassed to show their face in public if not scared for their life. NO POLITICIAN PAY RISE!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
203	30/08/2013	Thank you for your invitation to provide a submission in regard to the Tribunal's review of the remuneration of Members and former Members of the Legislative Assembly of Queensland. As a result of my long term political involvement at both organisational and parliamentary levels I do have strong and deep rooted views in those matters. I well recall as far back as the retirement of Sir Robert Menzies the ongoing controversy in regard to parliamentary Members remuneration - driven always by the media in one form or another. Try as government may to isolate itself from direct involvement in setting the remuneration of all Members, government and non-government, there has always been criticism of the government when independent recommendations are accepted and decisions made. As I recollect it the last effort by government to achieve such isolation, and one with which I had some involvement, was at a time when the recommendations of State-based independent adjudicators still failed to alleviate media-driven public disquiet and criticism. The solution adopted by the Queensland government at that time was to relate the remuneration for Members of the Legislative Assembly to that of Members of the House of Representatives: again determined independently but without any possibility of the Queensland government being accused of interfering in the process. In adopting that course it was believed that any criticism of the level of remuneration could not be directed at the Queensland government. The establishment of your Tribunal would seem to indicate that belief, and hope, was excessively optimistic! However I remain of the opinion that such method of review is both fair and relevant in a State such as Queensland. On election to the parliament I believe a Member enters a form of Employment Contract with remuneration, including travel or other benefits, as defined under the Member's Entitlements Handbook at that time. In my opinion any reduction of that remuneration during the term of that Parliament would be a breach of the "employment contract". If a decision is taken to change Members' remuneration, and that of former Members, it should be signalled before an election for the following Parliament so that Members and potential Members are aware of the terms of their "employment contract" if re-elected or elected. Potential candidates for election should have that knowledge so that they may determine whether or not to offer themselves for election. The degree to which remuneration plays a part in that decision making process would obviously vary from candidate to candidate but in some respect it must be a consideration. In my own case I was aware of the remuneration, including entitlements, for Members and former Members and had an expectation that these formed part of my "employment contract" with the people of Queensland through the parliament.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		As a former Member, in so far as cash remuneration was concerned, I chose to access my superannuation entitlement [personal information]. However if I had chosen the latter I would believe it would be a breach of contract for any government to amend the basis for that payment. In the [personal information] since I became a former Member I have only once availed myself of my travel entitlements; but I consider those entitlements are just that and any moderation of them would be a breach of the contract entered into with me at the commencement of the [personal information]. Details of former Members who do avail themselves of those entitlements are a matter of public record. No doubt some make more use of them than others and that has always been the case; but I believe that all present former Members should remain entitled to the benefits existing at the time of their election irrespective of whether or not they take advantage of the entitlement. May I add that, although I would hope a decision to seek to serve in the parliament is based on many considerations as well as salary and entitlements, the fact remains that remuneration for those who are responsible for carrying out the duties of a Member of the Parliament should be such as to ensure those Members are not disadvantaged salary-wise in comparison to other fields of endeavour.
204	30/08/2013	I can't understand why politicians can force cuts to public services and public servants whilst allowing increases to their own remunerations. The first politician to say "We will lead by example and cut the number of politicians and our remunerations and benefits, then we will make the equivalent cuts to public servants and services" is the politician who deserves my vote. Until then, none of them deserve my vote, or anyone else's vote. It is immoral of politicians to make cuts to public services without making cuts to their own services and entitlements.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
205	30/08/2013	I submit the following with regards Remuneration of QLD MP's being conducted by the Tribunal. I Submit that: Publicly elected Queensland Public Servants have their Salary and Wage remuneration increases determined by averaging the increases awarded to non publicly elected Queensland Public Servants covered by collective bargaining arrangements. The collectively bargained Agreements to be used to establish the increase percentage shall be the last collectively bargained agreements as at 30 June of the year in which THE Salary and Wage increase for publicly elected Queensland Public Servants is entitled for appraisal. The period for which the increase will apply To publicly elected Queensland State Public Servants shall be determined by the average of the periods covered by the collectively bargained agreements of non publicly elected Queensland Public servants used to determine the current Salary and Wage percentage increase. I also submit that the tribunal should after review set the initial Salary and Wage benchmarks for Publicly elected Queensland Public Servants. and This review shall also include the revision of any allowances, benefits or remuneration, other than Salary and Wage,paid in relation to being a publicly elected Queensland Public Servant to determine any appropriate variations. This revision of allowances, benefits or remuneration, other than Salary and Wage,paid in relation to being a publicly elected Queensland Public Servant shall reoccur at every second Salary and Wage review for publicly elected Queensland Public Servants. I also submit that in relation to Superanuation and ceasation of being a publicly elected Queensland Public Servant that all Publicly elected and non publicly elected Queensland Public Servants come under the same Superannuation rules and guidelines. I further submit that all remunerations paid to publicly elected Queensland Public Servants already take into account the importance of the office held.
206	30/08/2013	My wife says they dont deserve a pay rise any greater that the average for the rest of QLD. I agree with that..
207	30/08/2013	Please stop the pollies from being so greedy with our nations wealth! Don't take the mickey out of the people who support you. We all need jobs and as such, a right to live comfortably! My mum is on an Aged Pension after working all her life and paying taxes, for everyones comfort, what are you giving her? Get it right please, we're losing faith in you!
208	30/08/2013	Politicians pay rises should be linked to the core public service. After all, politicians serve the public just like core public servants.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
209	30/08/2013	We have the highest paid politicians in the world, and it was done by fiscal creep. Whilst we, the ones doing the real work, were getting one and a quarter percent wage increases since the eighties, politicians were getting whatever they wanted as their increase. Sometimes it was as high as twenty five percent per annum. I feel that we now need to give them a fifty percent decrease, at least, to bring them back into line with what workers have been "given" for the last three decades.
210	30/08/2013	Confidential
211	30/08/2013	Politicians are elected individuals that are given the job of "doing the best FOR THE PEOPLE". If I as a public servant got a pay cut and did not get the CPI nor should any governmental official. NO WAY SHOULD THEY RECEIVE ONE MORE DOLLAR THAN ANY OTHER PUBLIC SERVANT'S INDEXED PAYRISE. If it is good enough for the professional service industry of teachers, nurses, firies, ambos than it is good enough for all including all government paid officials.
212	31/08/2013	Politicians pay needs to be retained to CPI increases only. The current pay rate is sufficient remuneration for the roles politicians undertake. The additional salary sacrificing and benefits they receive within the parliamentary building (meals etc) should all be taken into account when assessing their total salary package.
213	31/08/2013	an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and minimal expense allowances. All other expenses should be claimed through the tax system (tax return) just like wage and salary earners for example, claiming uniforms or specific clothing to perform, fuel and vehicles should be salary sacrificed. Just giving an money as an allowance is a psuedo salary. There should be an expense allowance but it should only be for emergency use where the need to benefit the community constituents in dire situations is necessary. It should not be for paying to go to a restaurant to entertain anyone by paying for food, alcohol and other drinks or activities. The Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP by creating a special section in the tax system for their expenses. Just like any other tax payer it needs to be a suitable deductible amount and scrutinized by the tax department. An important benchmark in determining the pay of a politician is linking it to productivity. They need to have an accountability process where their performance is measured against outcomes, that is performance pay. Their pay can be linked to how well the economy is going and the factors that affect it, for example , the level of unemployment, whether or not they have keep within the budget, etc. Finding the true value of the job that is done by a politician is paramount. The pay of teachers, nurses, police officers, etc. is locked in at 2-3% per year based around agreed productivity and performance, why can't politician's pay follow the same process. Society does not see how they can make claims for pay increases that are more than the yearly average wage. Surely using that money to employ more people would be of more value. The value placed on what they do and the far reaching affects of their decisions is out of sync with their pay. They are paid far too much for what they really do.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
214	31/08/2013	I must be in the minority – I actually think politicians should get a pay rise (pay peanuts, they say you get monkeys. With a better salary hopefully we can attract better candidates for elections rather than the nim nats we get at the moment. If they all took the pay rise – only 2 (premier and deputy premier) would be paid more than a Magistrate ($317,000 p/a) and only one would be paid more than a District Court Judge (that is the premier) but he is paid less than a Supreme court Judge. So those who are elected into power to make the laws and take the responsibility get paid less than those who interpret them and have no responsibility to the community – doesn't seem fair to me. A final point is that it is easy to point the finger at Pollies and say they do not deserve to be paid more. I know of a back bencher who ran for office 3 times before successfully winning a spot and is left with a massive debt as a result which will need to be paid off over many years – probably longer than he will be in office. So he is not making money out of this venture – even with a big pay rise – why he does it is beyond me.
215	31/08/2013	In response to the Discussion Paper, I submit that current salary packages for MPs are unnecessarily complex and unreasonably generous. Base salaries are, in many instances, grossly inflated by up-front and hidden benefits, regardless of the extent to which these are genuinely earned. MPs salary packages are out of line with salaries, wages, pensions and allowances enjoyed by the majority of their constituents. At the same time, parity with salaries of MPs at national (and possibly international) levels should be taken into account. As the gap between wealth and poverty widens in this and other 'first world' states, it is essential that ALL incomes derived from the public purse are subject to regular review, and adjustment when warranted. In Australia, at present, a single pensioner is paid $21,000 plus relatively meagre allowances. I submit that for MPs to be paid between 10 and 20 times that amount is utterly obscene and indefensible. History is littered with examples of the inevitable consequences of such inequity. Australia has, to date, prided itself among nations on being a just and equitable society; the land of 'a fair go'; of 'a fair day's pay for a fair day's work'. Sadly, it is fast becoming an international joke; a land of 'everyone for themselves'; of 'whatever you can get away with goes'. In order to be taken seriously, our elected representatives must lead by example. How can we expect developing countries to heed our advice on any topic, from climate change to social justice, when our politicians and others in positions of privilege demonstrate unmitigated greed and self-interest? I humbly beseech members of the Tribunal to return a modicum of decency and equity to the distribution of our common wealth. [personal information]- Concerned Constituent

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
216	31/08/2013	Politicians should get the same pay rise as Qld public servants ie 2.2 percent. Both serve the people of Queensland. I see no reason to align their pay to federal politicians and give them this outrageous Increase
217	31/08/2013	Considering that they have at least half the year off they are grossly over paid. In the real world people have an annual performance review. Why not pollies. If that review happened before a panel of voters it would be no surprise if they would ever get a payrise.They get a raft of allowances and entitlements. Superannuation must be dragged down to the national standard a la 9%. Why do they get to make the rules which don't apply to them.
218	31/08/2013	I wish to provide the following submission with respect to the Tribunal's consideration of a possible increase in the salaries and allowances paid to MPs. In particular, the following comments are provided in response to questions 4 and 5 of the Tribunal's discussion paper. Queensland's financial and budgetary situation Since its election in March 2012 the Government's constant message to the people of Queensland has been that the State is facing a severe financial crisis. In an address to the Queensland Media Press Club on 8 May 2013, for instance, the Premier stated, "There is a reality, frankly, that people need to get used to and we have been saying over and over and over again, just how much trouble the state of Queensland's finances are in and sadly it pains me to say today that still, some people don't understand, and I use the word carefully and soberly, how desperate our situation is."<sup>1</sup> Over the last 12 months the Government has made wide ranging cuts to services and programs and has terminated the jobs of thousands of Queenslanders on the basis that they could no longer be afforded. Also, in late 2012 the Government introduced legislation to amend the Industrial Relations Act 1999 to require the independent Queensland Industrial Relations Commission to give consideration to prevailing economic conditions and the State's financial position when determining public sector wages and employment conditions. If the State's financial situation is as dire as what the Government claims it to be, then as a matter of policy it is essential that the Tribunal should similarly consider prevailing economic conditions and the State's financial position when determining MPs' salaries and allowances. That the Tribunal is able to do so was confirmed by the Premier in his Introductory Speech to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Bill 2013 about it providing the Tribunal with "broad methods of inquiry" and the Attorney-General with his assurance during the parliamentary debate on the Bill regarding the "pretty broad" powers of the Tribunal to inquire into and inform itself of anything in the way it considers under clause 28 (now section 28 of the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Act 2013 [QIRT Act]).<sup>2</sup> Using this standard any increase to MPs' salaries and allowances should be consistent with the quantum currently proposed for the general public sector. On this point I also note that the Premier has reportedly undertaken previously that there would be no pay increases for MPs until the public service pay rise issue was resolved.<sup>3</sup>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Community expectations Again in line with section 28 of the QIRT Act, as a matter of general Tribunal policy any increase to MPs' salaries and allowances should be consistent with community expectations. When the Government announced last July that MPs were going to be awarded a 42% pay increase it sparked a major public furor. After all, the Government had spent the previous 12 months telling the community that the State was facing a desperate financial situation which it said justified cutting important programs and services and terminating the jobs of thousands of public servants. Judging by the extent of the public's concerns about this issue – which have been vindicated by the Government's subsequent actions in response – it is fair to say that the 42% pay increase proposal did not align with community views and expectations. Indeed, the scale and intensity of the public's dissatisfaction with the proposal was strongly indicative of an underlying sense of inequity, disconnect and inconsistency in terms of what the vast majority of MPs seemed to be prepared to accept for themselves and what they expected other Queenslanders to accept.<sup>4</sup> If sacrifices are necessary, which is the Government's oft stated position, then the community would expect MPs to lead the way. In summary, with respect to any proposal to increase MPs' salaries and allowances regard needs to be given to prevailing economic conditions and the State's financial position – on numerous occasions including up to the present the Government has stated that Queensland is facing a precarious financial situation. As well, any increase to MPs' salaries and allowances needs to be in line with community expectations for what is reasonable in the circumstances – back in July when the Government announced its intention to increase MPs' salaries by 42% a public outcry ensued for reasons including the proposal's inconsistency with the extraordinary sacrifices that the Government had been expecting many other Queenslanders to make. In accordance with section 28 of the QIRT Act, the Tribunal needs to consider such factors in its deliberations regarding any increase to MPs' salaries and allowances, now and into the future. I trust the above comments are helpful to the Tribunal in its deliberations. 1 Source: &lt;http://www.brisbanetimes.com.au/queensland/premiers-speech-to-the-queensland-media-press-club-20130507-2j5sw.html?rand=1367920507786&gt;  2 Premier's Introductory Speech, Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Bill 2013, Queensland Parliamentary Hansard 6 August 2013, p. 2291; Attorney-General's response to an amendment moved by the Opposition to clause 30 of the Bill, Queensland Parliamentary Hansard 8 August 2013, p. 2552  3 Source: &lt;http://www.couriermail.com.au/news/queensland/queenslands-89-mps-could-be-in-line-for-big-pay-rise-after-government-in-breach-over-not-paying-them-enough/story-e6freoof-1226650476479&gt;  4 It is noted that a small number of MPs, mainly from the non-Government side, openly expressed strong reservations and reluctance about the proposal and its appropriateness given the Government's program of wide ranging cuts to public sector services and jobs.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
219	31/08/2013	Submission: Remuneration for Queensland politicians Submitted via website 31 August 2013 My primary concerns rest with the hypocrisy of a Queensland government that is prepared to fast track its own salary increase while at the same time using its power through legislation and the courts to delay for more than a year a fair cost of living adjustment for public sector employees. This smacks of self-interest and reinforces a perception the Queensland government does not value its public sector workforce. My desired outcomes from this remuneration review are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• a principle is put in place that public sector employees and politicians are treated in an equivalent manner regarding remuneration adjustments</li> <li>• the need for fair, regular cost of living remuneration increases is accepted for both public sector employees and politicians</li> <li>• these increases are awarded in a timely manner, with no long gaps creating financial stress</li> <li>• in the current situation there is appropriate backdating of a fair, equivalent cost of living adjustment for both public sector employees and politicians and this should be put in place as soon as possible.</li> </ul> In terms of the specific questions in section 3 of the Tribunal's discussion paper:  For Questions 1-3: My view is that politicians should be paid a salary that is completely separated from any expense allowance and there should be no way that a politician can personally retain any part of the expense allowance as a salary subsidy.  Each politician should be allocated a separate annual operating budget which they are not permitted to overspend. At the end of each financial year all expenditure is audited against clear guidelines for allowable expenditure items. Any unspent funds are returned to consolidated revenue. Any unpermitted expenditure must be covered personally by the politician. Q4 Benchmarks: The salary levels previous to the recent outrageous pay rise were more than generous and should be the benchmark. Any increases should be annual and based on CPI.
220	31/08/2013	This may seem too simple but simplicity is the key. As mentioned in the discussion paper the remuneration must reflect present and modern day environment and I like to discuss what may not only encourage other types of people to enter politics but introduce a family friendly environment into the job. I believe a MP can do a 9 to 5 type job. I believe they can work in an office or home office and stay within their electorate and attend parliament; committees and maybe departments while in their own electorate. The technology (NBN) is there - just need to be innovative - public servants are asked not to travel but videoconference for example. So in saying this allowances SHOULD be kept to the minimum. Everything done in an office - all tied in state leased buildings - even a home office can be state leased - fixed term and conditions. Using technology such as skype eliminates the need to travel to Brisbane for parliament. Telephone expenses can be tied in State owned mobile phones - phone calls then can be tracked. Murdoch had no problems doing this. Computers need to be rigged so their use can be tracked. State leased cars can be used with log books and work diaries for out of office appt's both counter signed by members of public (or JP) who are happy to be held accountable - this ensures transparency. Allowances only paid out if able to track the purpose to a MP responsibility witnessed by a member of public (or JP) as above mentioned. Wage increases inline with CPI. Back benches get the base salary (happy with $138,000) and extra responsibility should go up in 3% increments. Holding max of 3 positions or being paid a max of 9% otherwise that MP will not

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		be able to do a 9 to 5 type job. Being tired, exhausted, overworked is NOT in the best public interest. We don't expect our state doctors or long haul drivers working long hours - we shouldn't expect our MP's to either. Thank you for this opportunity
221	31/08/2013	I do not agree with the current Payrise for Queensland politicians. All other Queenslanders have been told to pull in their belts and can't even get a 2.2 percent rise. I believe the polities should be getting the same percentage they give the public service. They get lots of extras free travel overseas and in Australia good superannuation for the rest of their live. The average person is having all their benefits taken away including salary sacrificing. There are 2 rules here one for the polities and one for the rest of us. As fair as the extra money they get for their electorate they should be audited to check how they spend it and made accountable. Should have specific guidelines on how it is to be spent.
222	31/08/2013	Politicians as public servants should get the same pay rise % as public servants across the board. The proposed raise is ridiculous and does not reflect reality.
223	31/08/2013	Politicians' pay should be linked to the median wage of their public, rather than that of other politicians. Linking their pay to the median would encourage growth to be evenly distributed, and there is no evidence to support the assertion that having higher wages improves the quality of politician. Rather, having a less impressive salary and rewards package would encourage people to join purely to benefit their state, rather than their bank balance. Wages should be indexed to cost of living increases across the public service sector (2.6% per annum, according to NATSEM), thereby depriving unions of their main axe to grind. a "miscellaneous allowance" that exactly equals the total yearly wage of someone on the minimum wage is an affront to those working for minimum wage. There should be no additional salaries for formal roles, taking on the mantle of Premier or portfolio minister should be seen as a solemn duty, not an opportunity to double one's pay. Travel costs should come from a Member's wages, rather than an additional account. These should be granted the same tax status as work-related travel expenses of non-politicians. I can see no reason former Members should be granted allowances
224	31/08/2013	Politicians should not expect a pay increase of any more than the CPI, everyone else has to fight just to get the CPI pay rise. Politicians should also have the 42% pay increase that was granted by the Newman government removed. Politicians need to have an independent tribunal made up of ordinary workers to gauge politicians pay increases of the CPI only. Politicians should only get a pay rise if and when they deserve it this means keeping inflation down and improving the: economy, jobs, health etc. Politicians earn more money than most other people in this country they are greedy and need to be kept honest.
225	31/08/2013	I do not believe there should be a pay rise than just the yearly pay rise to keep up with CPI. And they should be subject to some types of performance review to see how they have improved living standards for residents!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
226	1/09/2013	I wish to submit my opposition to the proposed increase in politician wages in the Qld Government. The rate proposed is well over any CPI increase and is in direct opposition to the policies of the government of the day to reduce government spending at any cost. There has been a substantial culling of intellectual property through the reduction in the government workforce leaving the state vulnerable. The money spent on politician wages would better serve upskilling existing staff and business principles development.
227	1/09/2013	I propose that the salaries of public servants and politicians be linked directly. If public servants get a pay rise, say 2%, that is exactly how much the politicians can get as well. This way we would avoid long and hard battles between public service unions and governments about pay rises. Of course, we would first need to have a public discussion and an agreement about the ratio between salaries for each position. Another suggestion is that politicians' salaries be connected proportionately with the state/federal economy. If the economy is doing well and we have more funds in the budget, their salary should be better and vice versa.
228	1/09/2013	This is an absurd amount of money just for a pay rise and to think of all those public servants who lost their jobs and just this pay rise alone could pay for someone to have their job back and here we are trying to get a mere 2.2%.
229	1/09/2013	As public servants parliamentarians should have any pay increases linked to other state public service employees. Eg linked to not Federal MPs or judges but the average pay increase awarded to the Qld public servants, ie teachers/nurses/paramedics/police. Thanks
230	1/09/2013	Confidential

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
231	1/09/2013	Parliamentary Salary Review I wish to formally object to any increase to Queensland Politicians pay rise to bring them into line within 5% their federal counterparts. Queensland has 20% of the Australian population. The LNP Government came to power in 2012 &amp; implemented an austerity program based on the “need” to bring Queensland’s budget back into a surplus. They have been in power for just over 12 months &amp; during that time we have been constantly harangued about the economical state that the previous government had left our state in, a state of “emergency”. Upon their installation into government the LNP was advised that the moratorium was in place &amp; the matter needed to be addressed as a matter of legal necessity. At that time it placed it on a back-burner, until such a point that it was just summarily paid. As a part of the LNP austerity measures for the state, the state is now aiming to implement all pay rises for public servants, teachers, etc be performance based. If their performance is excellent, their salary is raised accordingly. As such I believe that the same system should be implemented for Queensland politicians, no matter their party persuasion. I am a Gold Coast constituent &amp; based on my own experiences I do not believe that there are any MP’s worthy of a pay rise, they are yet to do or implement anything that benefits the Gold Coast nor Queensland. The decision to enter political life is not an easy one, but it should not be financially rewarded when the performance is lacking. A review of all Queensland MP’s would result in poor to average performance ratings I believe. 14,000+ public servants have had their positions made redundant (polite terms) – any fiscal savings resultant should not be handed over to members of the Parliament. There can be no justification for that.
232	1/09/2013	I really don't understand why Members of Parliament keep getting wage rises. I live on half of what they get for their Electorate Allowance, I don't think that is fair as I'm not the only one. Myself and a lot of other people would love to get just part of their rise in pay. After Mr. Newmann sacks all those worker and now he wants more money he has got now as he has sacked so many people. Mr. Newmann I don't think you will get back as the Premier. Help the needy. Please don't give them anymore money as they don't deserve it. Is there any way that we can stop paying for the member of parliament that don't even work anymore, they just use all our money to travel around the world. It's not fair and Their are just greedy.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
233	1/09/2013	I don't believe politician's should have a stipulated amount of money for an 'allowance' because it is too easy for that system to be abused and taxpayer monies end up being wasted. I believe remuneration should be a set amount equivalent to a wage; this wage would be expected to adequately cover the cost of living for MP's and their immediate family - as is the case for every other Aussie family. MPs should have free access to a vehicle and a staffed office i.e. MPs should be provided with adequate resources to fulfill their role. However, politicians should have to validate the need for any other expenses (air-travel & catering expenses), and such expenses should initially be paid for by the MP and reimbursed after the event - like most other Aussie workers are expected to do. I expect MP wages to be in line with the remuneration experiences of the majority of other Australian workers e.g. if $2000/wk is currently deemed to be a 'high' wage for the average Australian, then that amount should set some limit on the amount paid to politicians. In determining MP wages, I would also like to see some reference to the basic Australian wage e.g. MP wages should be capped at no more than 5 times 'the basic wage' because, if MP's find that level of funding to be inadequate, then they would also gain some insight into how Aussie workers on 1/5 of their wage would likewise be struggling to make ends meet. I expect MP remuneration to have some identifiable connection to standard wages for average Australians.
234	1/09/2013	If a 2.2% pay rise as offered by the current Queensland Govt is good enough for one section of public servants, then it should be good enough for elected politicians who are, after all, just temporary public servants themselves. Also, as the current Queensland Govt chose to legally overturn previously agreed work conditions with its employees, it should be easy enough for them to do the same thing again when it relates to the present legislative position re their own salaries.
235	2/09/2013	I am appalled that this State Government was/is even thinking about giving themselves a huge payrise! How hypocritical! In the last 12 months they have sacked so many public servants and approved 2.2% pay increases for public servants, but think it is OK to reward themselves with huge pay increases. I have no respect for this State Government whatsoever as a result of this! Do the right thing and support only a 2.2% pay increase for all State Politicians.
236	2/09/2013	Using the MP Remuneration Discussion Paper question numbers:  1. Yes, to a point, as long as these can be properly policed. Any who abuse this system should have their allowances removed or reduced. 2. Travel, phone, and any other quantifiable allowances. The Miscellaneous allowance should be abolished as it is too easily abused. 3. As above, and the presentation of ALL receipts. 4. Their experience, qualifications, and amount of effort in assisting the community. Perhaps a community feedback evaluation of their work might be helpful in this regard? Too many just sit back and do the minimum required to maintain their position. 5. Not at this stage as I do not have enough detailed information or time to comment.
237	2/09/2013	It would be hypocritical to award a pay increase above what is being offered to other public servants. you at the present are trying to take away from paramedics a loading when they aren't able to have a meal break. this clause is in there so that management make sure they get a break. you told lies when senior ministers said they couldn't stop it. the only reason it was stopped was because of peoples outrage.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
238	2/09/2013	In my opinion, the Tribunal should have certain guidelines that it must follow during its deliberations prior to reaching its decision. These guidelines should include that the Tribunal must consider recent decisions relating to pay increases that have been granted to any of the following - public servants in Queensland, any recent increase to the minimum pay scale within Australia, any increase to the pension within Australia, any increase to the DFRB relating to ex-servicemen of Australia. The pay scales of prominent leaders around the world eg PM of Great Britain, PM of New Zealand, President of the United States of America etc. The number of voters here in electorates in Queensland compared to the voters in the above mentioned countries should also be included in the calculation. Any decision recommending paying anyone here in Queensland more than what the President of the United States earns will be rightly received with well deserved ridicule. We don't have to follow trends in other States and we don't have to set trends for them to follow. In my opinion, the heads of the various departments in Queensland are paid too much and don't get me started on University vice-chancellors. With the extremely generous superannuation schemes for public servants and politicians, the taxpayers are being unfairly taxed to provide a select band with benefits far beyond the grasp of those forced to pay them. I also have concern as to whether those making the decisions of remuneration tribunals make overly generous decisions as somehow they benefit from the final decision as well. Thank you
239	2/09/2013	Please limit the politicians' pay rise to the same limits they've placed on Queensland public servants- 2.35%.
240	2/09/2013	I do not support pay rise for Qld elected representatives. The current Qld government has made it very clear throughout his term that budget tightening is required and has made widespread cuts to essential community and health services on this basis. It is not justifiable to then allow pay rises for those in power. Politicians were aware of pay levels when they run for government and should not have an advantage over citizens by not having to comply with cuts and budget tightening.
241	2/09/2013	Confidential
242	2/09/2013	I wish to advise the Tribunal that I would like to see our remunerations and entitlements remain as is

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
243	2/09/2013	I request the Tribunal be mindful of community expectations when making it's determination. It is expected that the notion of 'relative worth' be applied to this decision. The CEO of the Bank of Queensland does not receive the same remuneration as the CEO of the Commonwealth Bank, nor does the CEO of a medium sized mining company receive the same remuneration as the CEO of BHP. The peers against whom Queensland state MPs must be evaluated are MPs in NSW and Victoria. A NSW MP represents 50,000 electors, a Victorian MP represents 40,000 and a Queensland MP represents 30,000. The NSW budget is $62b, the Victorian budget is $50b and the Queensland budget is $40b. The current base salary for a NSW MP is $144,000 and a Victorian MP is $141,000. The Tribunal should also be mindful of the flow-on effect to local government councillors. The community would anticipate the Tribunal maintain relativity.
244	2/09/2013	One would hope that the tribunal will be mindful of the levels of remuneration in other states based on the representative base and the ridiculous wages currently paid to Local Councillors. All wages and salaries should be relative to some baseline representing responsibilities and accountability. At present there appears to be no such linkage.
245	2/09/2013	TO THINK THAT 1 PERSON CAN BE PAID OVER $45 AN HOUR OF EVERY HOUR IN A YEAR IS WELL OUTSIDE THE NORMS OF SOCIETY. IF WE ARE TO MAINTAIN A TRANSPARENT DEMOCRACY POLITCIANS WAGES SHOULD BE NO MORE THAN 75% ABOVE THE AVERAGE WAGE. AT NO STAGE DOES IT STATE THAT TO BECOME A POLITICIAN IS TO BE ENTITLED TO MORE THAN SOCIETIES NORMS. THEY ARE TO BE ELECTED FROM THE GENERAL POPULATION AND REMUNERATED AT THE SAME AS THE GENERAL PUBLIC.
246	2/09/2013	Queensland MPs, it is recommended be remunerated on the same scale and timing as state public servants. MPs should also demonstrate why they deserve any further pay increases and go through bargaining agreements to trade off their entitlements for consideration for future pay rises. MPs should be leading the way in showing how to make cost savings to Qld taxpayers by reducing regular increased pay rises. Qld cannot afford these pay rises. Could the tribunal reveal how the state can afford the MP

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		pay rises if they are not aligned with state public servants. MPs and former MPs cost the taxpayers millions of dollars each year, and seek the tribunal to consider the affordability in making frequent pay rises to MPs. I recommend in keeping with restraint on public servant pay rises, that the tribunal supports aligning future state MPs pay increases and on the same scale with state public servants.
247	2/09/2013	Politicians pay rises should follow public servants pay rises, we are being asked to accept 2.2% with less conditions than previously, this is what politicians should be offered.
248	2/09/2013	I believe that the pay rise for parliamentarians should be no more than the rise given to public servants. The previously proposed pay hike (for Qld MPs) was disgusting, and this tribunal should take into account the community expectation that politicians should lead by example when it comes to salary provided. It should also be noted that the electorates of State Parliamentarians are significantly smaller than their federal counterparts, additionally State Parliamentarians are placed under significantly less scrutiny than federal Parliamentarians with both smaller electorates and smaller media markets holding them to account.
249	3/09/2013	It's indefensible that politicians are getting enormous pay increases while thousands of workers are either losing their jobs or at best receiving cost of living pay rises. In addition, politicians receive substantial benefits and allowances. They are supported by their party in so many ways. There's no need to pay them the equivalent to that received by the leader of a small country. Their weak excuses that it's not down to them and they 'have to' take the increases just don't have any credibility. Laws are changed every day to further their aims, they can certainly change the law regarding pay increases if they want to. Their pay increases should be set to cost of living like the rest of us and their benefits and allowances should be greatly decreased.
250	3/09/2013	Thank you for giving me the opportunity to present a submission to the Independent Remuneration Tribunal. I will take this opportunity to make a submission in two parts, the one dealing with Former members such as I and the second dealing with suggestions for the remuneration of Future Members of the Queensland Legislative Assembly. Part One. When I resigned from the Parliament in [personal information], I received the following entitlements as part of my retirement package. [personal information] I received a Gold Railways of Australia pass. This entitled my wife and me to travel first class by rail on any Australian Railway in the country. There were no limitations on the number of journeys taken or destinations. The Pass covered sleeper accommodation where that was appropriate. It did not include meals or refreshments all of which were the responsibility of the traveller. I consider that I should continue to receive such travel in spite of the fact that many rail lines and passenger services have been privatized by various Governments. Secondly, because of my service I received an annual business class air pass for my wife and me to any destination in Australia, New Zealand or Papua New Guinea. This too I believe should remain for those such as I who have qualified for the pass. Thirdly, I received a [personal information]. The scheme into which I joined, allowed me to take not the whole entitlement but to leave in the Fund an amount that was called, I think, a 'spouse's' fund. On my death my spouse is to receive a fortnightly sum equivalent to 62.5% of that of the salary of a Private Member. What has happened to that portion of my original Superannuation Fund is unknown to me. [personal information] Fourthly, I still can have use of the Parliamentary Library for research purposes.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		I regard these conditions as my retirement package and do not believe that any subsequent Government should be able to change any of them. Part Two. The remuneration given to a Member of Parliament is often trivialized by the media and the work undertaken by a conscientious Member is grossly underrated. To attempt to strike a fair salary is quite difficult. The salary should be high enough to attract the most talented of candidates but should not be so high as to attract only those who see it as an easy way to making an easy living. Nor should the salary be such as to encourage a person to make a life-time career of being an MP. I have the view that there should be a finite number of terms that a Member should serve before being deemed ineligible to seek re-election. I know that that is contrary to the Westminster system but I believe that our Parliaments would serve the community better if there were not MP's who stayed on and on. There must be an element of community service in every Member of Parliament and that cannot be quantified. From my experience as a Member of a rather large electorate, there are no set hours that a Member works. To properly service an electorate the Member must operate an Office, travel extensively within the Electorate, read widely, participate as fully as is possible in the life of the Electorate, be prepared to study carefully all pieces of Legislation that come before the Parliament and be prepared to travel widely to seek out new and competing ideas. There are no set hours or periods of recreational leave and neither ought there be . Therefore the remuneration must reflect that. I cannot with my resources, offer a monetary figure to suggest. As my background was Education, the field into which I returned on my resignation from the Parliament, I would look at the salary of the Principal of the large Secondary School as a yardstick and suggest that a private member should receive a salary somewhere in the vicinity $20 000 above that of the Principal. That is purely an arbitrary suggestion as I have no other yardstick on which to base a suggestion. There is probably a Public Service Classification, similar to that of an Assistant Under Secretary that would also suffice as a standard. The Member has placed upon him/her an enormous financial burden from the many groups within the Electorate. The demands on an MP of a small metropolitan electorate are miniscule compared with those who represent the large widespread rural electorates. Whereas the City MP has usually few primary and secondary schools, few sporting organisations, community groups all calling for financial support, the rural MP has all those multiplied in each small town and centre throughout the electorate. If one compares the demands on the time of an MP representing, say a small electorate such as Ashgrove for example with an MP representing Gregory, Warrego or Cook, one quickly comes to the conclusion that the people of the larger electorates have much less chance of actually seeing their Member than those of the small compact electorate. As a result, whilst the salary of each MP must be the same, there must be an adequate allowance paid to the Member of a large far flung Electorate to adequately recompense for the extra demand made on him/her to enable that electorate to be serviced properly. This can be achieved as has been the practice in the past of giving an allowance based on square kilometres or could be achieved by providing extra secretarial services and offices. As the most common means of travel in the vast areas of Queensland is air travel, adequate allowance must be given for the provision of charter air services. However if a Member only flies to the various towns, those living away from those towns still miss out and so an adequate vehicle allowance must be considered as the roads on which the MP has to travel are seldom paved and a vehicle can become worn out in a very short time.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		I am aware that the current Parliamentary Superannuation Scheme is more generous than that of when I retired and that there is no spouse component. The life of an MP is very hard on the MP's family and I believe it only fair that there should be some component recognizing the sacrifice that families make when one of their members is an MP. As a Member of Parliament is a Law Maker, recognition must be given to the high responsibility embodied in that undertaking. As a Lawmaker, an MP must be made aware of the various nuances of the way Legislation is framed and be fully aware of the need for scrutiny of the Subordinate Legislation that sets the Legislation into force. Therefore the professional assistance that is provided for each Private Member must be of the highest standard. At present Private Members are given an office, equipment, a Secretary and another officer. That other officer should, in my view, be a person skilled in the legislative process and be a skilled researcher so that the MP can receive a measure of independent advice on the various pieces of Legislation coming before the Parliament. For our system, especially in Queensland that is unicameral, to be really democratic, expert, independent advice must be made available to each MP. Whilst the employment of staff for an MP's Office must always be the Member's responsibility, the Tribunal may consider setting out minimum qualification for the positions. In my experience, while it was always my intention to have my office open 9 – 5 five days a week, my Secretary was often called upon to be present much earlier and remain much later to accommodate the vagaries of the Office. At no time in the almost 15 years of my term was the Office closed except for Public Holidays. Temporary staff covered for my permanent Secretary during her Annual Vacation. Summary: In arriving at a fair remuneration for Members of Parliament, the Tribunal must have a clear view of the responsibilities of Private Members so that they can conscientiously serve their Electorates. The salary must be such as to attract worthwhile, experienced people and the support given must be of a very high standard. That standard should be protected by the Clerk of the Parliament's Office so that an MP is not pressured to take some 'Party Hack' in as a sinecure. The superannuation scheme should reflect the temporary nature of an MP as there are not many other jobs where the incumbent has to seek re-employment by public election every three years. I would be happy to meet with you should you believe that I can be of any further assistance to the work of the Tribunal. P.S. A signed hard copy will be forwarded by mail.
251	3/09/2013	If politician want us to take seriously that we need to tighten our belts, pay more tax etc, then they need to show that there is not one rule for them and another for us. Therefore, any pay rise they receive, should be the same as anyone else in society. For instance, my annual pay rise for the next 3 years is 2.5%. When the politicians accept this kind of pay rise, then we may be able to start respecting them and believing a little bit (tiny bit) of what they are saying. The present situation of our leaders reminds me of "Animal Farm", They are a living example of that great book, every day!!!!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
252	3/09/2013	In this current economic climate does it not make sense that our elected representatives lead by example. As a 38 year career Queensland public servant I am seeking only a 2 per cent pay rise for myself. I'm not against paying our elected representatives. but only in line with community expectations. I'd rather increase the remuneration of our emergency services people such as fire & rescue, ambos and police. I believe we would get better "bang for our buck". Give the MPs only 2 per cent like the rest of the public service.
253	3/09/2013	How can it be justified that one person be paid over $400,000 a year.. But nurses, etc are losing their jobs. Some people are just too greedy. That would pay more then 8 people, and they would live very comfortably!
254	3/09/2013	it is wrong
255	3/09/2013	It is unfair , unjust and not warranted by the premier and other politicains. any government which cuts 14000 jobs in its firts term can` t justify such a excessivepay increase. its inconceivable they would even think they should. disgusting abuse of power. the world and especuially Queenslanders are watching and won` t forget.
256	3/09/2013	I find it outrageous that Campbell Newman has sacked thousands of hardworking Queenslanders and still expects to keep his 42 per cent pay rise!  Campbell Newman opened up public submissions about the pollie pay rise right in the middle of the federal election – he hoped nobody would notice.  What's even more outrageous is that, while he's taking home 42 per cent more, he's refusing to budge from his measly 2.2 per cent offer for Ambulance Officers.  If Campbell Newman believes MP's past and present deserve a pay rise, it should only be as much as he insists other government workers accept.
257	3/09/2013	I am absolutely not happy that PM Mr. Newman wants to keep his 42% pay rise! I have to work shifts as many others in the public sector and we got offered a 2.2% increase on the one side, on the other side the acceptance of this offer would also mean that we would lose a lot of other entitlements. At the end of the day, this is not fair at all and PM Mr. Newman should consider and think about his actions in regards to this matter!
258	3/09/2013	I am a single parent who works very hard in education, to hopefully make a difference to our future generation, but I only earn about $33,000 per year. This is much less than the proposed pay increase that MP's are hoping to award themselves. It is disgusting and insulting to the people who basically gave them a job in the first place. shame on you!!
259	3/09/2013	No politician should receive the proposed payrise when the rest of Queensland workers are being treated with such disdain by this government. 2% for us - 2% for you Mr Newman.
260	3/09/2013	How can the politicians justify such a jarhead pay rise when other queenslanders are doing it tough. The premier is cutting jobs left right and centre, nursing staff, paramedics and fire officer are being told to accept a pay rise beneath the inflation rate, whilst politicians are accepting a $40k a year pay rise. Which us backdated! This is disgusting and a insult to all Queenslanders

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
261	3/09/2013	Why should Campbell Newman give himself a pay rise when he is putting thousands of people of work. I could be out of a job this time next year and don't know how I am going to be able to pay my bills.I am a school cleaner, in my early 60's and don't know where else I will get a job at my age. My daughter is having great trouble being able to finish uni so that she can get a decent job because her payments have been stopped. Campbell Newman is only worried about himself and doesn't have a clue how the other half lives.
262	3/09/2013	With the huge amount of money that you are giving yourselves for no apparent reason except GREED. Why dont you and band of theives give the money to the homeless and to aged care which has seen homes closed down and homeless increase under your tyreny.Be fair Mr Newman
263	3/09/2013	The payrise should be the same as all other govt employees not 42%
264	3/09/2013	No big pay rises for politicians, keep them inline with the ret of the public service employees
265	3/09/2013	Pay rise for politicians should be refused, low income workers & pensioners have not received n increase so why should politicians. Cost of living pressures are not being addressed by those in government.
266	3/09/2013	Campbell Newman has sacked thousands of hardworking Queenslanders. Now he wants to keep his 42 per cent pay rise? He wants to be paid more than Barack Obama?  That's $400,000 a year!  I want to say Newman he just isn't worth it!!!  Campbell Newman opened up public submissions about the pollie pay rise right in the middle of the federal election.  He hoped nobody would notice?  While he's taking home 42 per cent more, he's refusing to budge from his measly 2.2 per cent offer for ambulance officers.  IF, and it's a big IF, Campbell Newman deserves a pay rise it should only be as much as he insists other government workers accept!
267	3/09/2013	IF, Campbell Newman deserves a pay rise it should only be as much as he insists other government workers accept.
268	3/09/2013	Why should any of the pollititions get any pay rise they dag over 14,000 people only give a minamul pay rise of 2.2 percent to paramedics and other government workers so why should they get so much little Nepolien Newman is not worth more than what the president of the U S A what a joke he was a joke as a mayor and he is even more so now he and the other pollies don't deserve any more than what they are receiving now they were elected to look after the people of Queensland not [inappropriate content] the state and ignore the people they were elect by the people for the people don't give them anymore !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
269	3/09/2013	It is only appropriate and equitable that any pay increase considered for Queensland MP's be in line with what is offered to other employees of the Queensland Government (Public Servants, Police Officers, Ambulance Officers, Nurses, Doctors and Fire Fighters, etc.). The same criteria and considerations that are applied to the remainder of Queensland Government employees for determining remuneration must be applied to equally to Queensland MP's for the purpose of determining any fair wage increase.
270	3/09/2013	I never know from one year to the next if my job is safe because our state has so many financial issues. With so many people in crisis how can you possibly agree to such a ridiculous amount of $$$$ for yourself when you make so many people unemployed. Its criminal.
271	3/09/2013	I have no objection to a fare pay rise but 40 odd % is ludicrous. When emergency service personnel are getting less than 3% and they are putting there lives on the line every time they go to work, no politician does that. Teachers and educators who look after our most precious position are in the same boat. Politicians get real and stop using loop holes to feather your own nest.
272	3/09/2013	Mr Newman and his parliamentary members can have their exorbitant pay rise when he affords the same % pay rise to ALL government employees.  How disparaging to offer emergency services 2.2% and to trade all entitlements, then award yourself 48%+ for sacking hard working Queenslanders! What a disgrace.  This man is too scared to even front emergency service workers yet when he finds himself in trouble he will be the first to call. Thankfully the emergency service personnel have more integrity than our Premier and will come to his aid.
273	3/09/2013	You want to lower our wages, and give more to yourselves????  I'm a Paramedic and work my butt off each day saving peoples lives. I do shift work, am sleep deprived, expected to up-skill without any monetary offering, continually go without a meals and miss out on important family events for the sake of my community -- don't insult us with your huge bonuses and take it away from the rest of us.
274	3/09/2013	Government workers in healthcare are loosing their jobs in qld and hospitals are taking massive cuts resulting in suboptimal care for our patients- the poorest of poor who already struggle to get the healthcare they need. Instead of this money helping to save the lives of people in our community it is going to the pay packets of MPs. This money should be used to fund healthcare staff and improve care for the sick in our community. We struggle to cut back evey dollar only to see it go to increasing a politicians already inflated salary. This is a disgrace!
275	3/09/2013	no politician is worth $400,000 a year
276	3/09/2013	I don't believe that MP should get the pay raise at all, this money could be better used in out health, education which is letting down children with learning needs that don't fit in the brackets, police, medical service , fire department . Also help cost cut power, water which families are finding hard to pay.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
277	3/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>* We need more Police.</li> <li>* We need the good paramedics we have to receive penalty rates because they deserve them.</li> <li>* We need more money to be budgeted for health.</li> <li>* We need Members of Parliament to be reviewed before they receive increases ... just like everyone else in the workforce.</li> </ul>
278	3/09/2013	I absolutely oppose Campbell Newmans 42% politicians pay rise and think its a disgrace that he thinks it is fair and reasonable in the face of his job cuts and pathetic "pay rise" offered to emergency service workers.
279	3/09/2013	Totally unfair that the Campbell Newman state government can be allowed to award themselves with such a massive 42% pay rise . SHAME ON YOU NEWMAN , SHAME !
280	3/09/2013	The pay rise you have been given is many times the rate of inflation and the cost of living and seems grossly unfair to me when you object to sections of the working community such as Ambulance personnel asking for 2% approx'. What happened to a fair go for all? [personal information] School Cleaner
281	3/09/2013	You're not worth it Campbell- you do nothing for QLD! How's about you lose your pay rise and give more to those who actually do something- like paramedics!!!
282	3/09/2013	As a teacher aide, I fought hard to "earn" a massive payrise which increases my weekly by $20. A chunk of my hard-earned pay also goes towards my taxes, which Mr Newman seems to think he should receive as a pay increase. If the workers in the state are only worth and additional 2-3% to keep pace with inflation, then our politicians should also only be receiving the same increase - and they would still get a bigger chunk of the pie than the workers.
283	3/09/2013	No pay rise for polities
284	3/09/2013	Campbell Newman has sacked thousands of hardworking Queenslanders. Now he wants to keep his 42 per cent pay rise? He wants to be paid more than Barack Obama? While he's taking home 42 per cent more, he's refusing to budge from his measly 2.2 per cent offer for ambulance officers. IF, and it's a big IF, Campbell Newman deserves a pay rise it should only be as much as he insists other government workers accept.
285	3/09/2013	In my humble opinion politicians are paid more than enough for the work, in inverted " ,they put their hands up for. I am not interested in how they justify their call for more pay, let them take lessons in how to manage the wages they currently get and start to live simply like so many other working people in Queensland. The more they take out of our taxes and rates the less there is to spend on essentials like road maintenance, footpath maintenance and hiring appropriate staff to select suitable trees for our footpaths instead of unsuitable species with destructive roots, and several other negative aspects to their being planted on narrow suburban footpaths. As to our State politicians, again I believe they are paid a good wage for the work they do and have not shown to me by their words or deeds that they deserve a wage rise. Do you know I have stopped using public transport because I get overcharged every time I use the train? Why not offer senior citizens free off peak travel and see if you can swing any votes to your" plight".

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
286	3/09/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. The appropriate remuneration structure and package should be the same as it generally is for other public servants. That is, a base salary plus allowances. However, the allowances that seem to be given to politicians are excessive. For example "A Miscellaneous Allowance" of $32,355 a year is ridiculous. What is the possible justification of that? Considering this miscellaneous allowance in the context of my remuneration package. I get a base salary of less than an MP and I also get an allowance because I spent tens of thousands of dollars of my own money to get a masters degree in Health Science. My allowance for this, $3500 a year. In the recent EB negotiations, the Queensland Government has indicated that they will take this allowance away from me. So if I lose my allowance (that I paid approximately $20,000 of my own money to get), then equally, the MP's should not receive their "Miscellaneous Allowance". 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. Firstly, the allowances that should be allowed, should be spelled out specifically, not given a title of "Miscellaneous". The acceptable allowances should include, items related to performing work as an MP. However, I believe that there are some serious breaches of this with our MP's. Example: Travel Allowance and Accommodation – Travel and accommodation allowances should not be paid as an allowance. If I am to perform a presentation in Cairns, I have to apply to my line manager and seek travel funding to attend. When I receive funding, I am given the cheapest flights available that get me to that function on time. I do not get business class tickets for flights that cost so much more than economy tickets. I equally don't get a deluxe suite at the Hilton. I get a room at a hotel that is on the Queensland Governments approved hotel lists. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		By spelling out what each allowance is for and by having it only be spent on what it is designed for. The electoral allowance should be only spent on items related to working in your specific electorate. This could be governed by the issuing of a credit/debit card so that spending can be tracked and the MP held accountable. 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? Firstly, bench marking State MP's against federal MP's is not appropriate. The first point for benchmarking should be other states with in Australia. However, some sensible reasoning needs to be applied here. It is not appropriate for state politicians to be increasing their salaries in the presence of severe cost cutting measures for the state simply to have their salary reflect those of interstate politicians. I guarantee that if our state politicians are given the significant pay rise that they have been reported to receive, then they will lose the next election heavily. Benchmark the pay rise against outcomes. If the Queensland Government can deliver a surplus budget, return the state's credit rating and maintain strong economic growth, then they should consider a pay rise, for a job well done. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? Please consider that the current remuneration package (including allowances), is sufficient for them to live off very comfortably. I currently deliver bread, that is donated by my local bakery, to people in my electorate that can't afford bread because they have either lost their job or just don't get paid enough for the amazing work that they do. How can the Queensland Government think that, in the presence of this type of desperation of people and families of Queensland, it is appropriate to give themselves such an enormous pay rise. It is simply unethical.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
287	3/09/2013	Mr Newman, we as a Queenslander, expect that we are all held accountable to the same rule. The dire need that all people employed in Queensland were to tighten their belts to reduce our deficit and debt. As a group, we have embraced this theology and accepted minimal wage increase, below three percent. This is also behind the cost of living increase. It is totally unacceptable the the leader of our Queensland State give himself a 42% wage increase. It is criminal and all Queenslander should be able to object. No! do not increase you wage, only by 2.2% as you have demanded from the working class.
288	3/09/2013	Mr Neumann if you want a 50% pay rise you can! If I can have a 50% pay rise! you are no better than I am and so far all you have done is sack a lot of mums and dads that have family's and mortgages that are now struggling. How about putting yourself in there places. Oh that's it you don't care about anybody but yourself. God I hope one day you end up on the dole then you will know how it feels to be [inappropriate content].
289	3/09/2013	You should be ashamed of yourself thinking you deserve this kind of pay increase. Just remember one thing: "you are stealing from the poor". With all the unemployed, homeless and pensioners living on nothing, you think this is fair? how do you sleep at night. Maybe you should be considering sharing a large part of your outrageous income with them!!
290	3/09/2013	You are not worth a pay rise of 42% Campbell!!! And you are only offering other QLD Govt employees 2.2%, do you really think you are worth 39.8% more!! What a joke you and your cabinet are, greedy selfish people with no touch with reality, shame on you!!
291	3/09/2013	The QLD economy has slowed since the LNP gained office. They have put 12000 people out of work. Many others have also lost jobs, job security, paid hours in a trickle down effect on other industries. To my way of thinking this has been appalling economic mismanagement and does not warrant a pay increase. In addition to this, the sly deals, the jobs for the boys/girls and their children has brought the QLD government into the greatest disrepute since the pre-Fitzgerald days. During this whole period this government has failed to take responsibility for their greed, trickery and mismanagement. At every turn they have blamed the previous government. so no lets not award them a pay increase. In terms of governance, ethics and morality they are in a state of negative productivity and as such are totally undeserving of the positive endorsement as represented by a pay increase. If in fact this state is in the dire economic situation which Mr Newman has claimed, we cannot afford to allow this pay increase. So where he is limiting front line employees to a 2% pay increase because that is all that can be afforded then that is the maximum increase which should be payable to politicians but only where they can demonstrate an increase in productivity or in their case a positive and effective governance - for all Queenslanders - not just their own close friends and family members.
292	3/09/2013	Politicians should have pay rises capped by the wages policy they apply to their workforce - like the 2.2% offer on the table for paramedics.
293	3/09/2013	I do not believe any politician or state employee is worth a 42% pay increase - stick to the 2% - 3% pay increase all other levels of state employees are paid.
294	3/09/2013	No to any state politician getting a pay rise - you have sacked workers - the state can not afford you.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
295	3/09/2013	I am a Liberal supporter who is regretting placing you in a position of power. I understand the benefits of privatization, but a double edge sword, cuts both ways. Your ruthless approach is not what I voted for. It is hurting far too many "PEOPLE". Then comes your obscene pay increase, while at the same time you expect everyone else to work for less. Shame on you, shame on me.
296	3/09/2013	It is morally reprehensible for the state politicians to receive such a huge payrise while the current government has made extremely harsh cuts in the public sector. I work at a school and those cuts have caused hardship to many of the support staff and made it harder for us to help the students. These politicians are already on a very comfortable salary and it will not affect their standard of living. Many government employees cannot say the same for themselves after their hours and even position of employment have been cut by these same politicians.
297	3/09/2013	You aren't worth an extra cent and they aren't in circulation . Get real wake up and smell the roses.
298	3/09/2013	No Campbell Newman doesn't deserve a 42 pay rise .No way
299	3/09/2013	If he wants a pay rise than he needs to make sure all other public servants get the same % increase as well.
300	3/09/2013	If he wants a pay rise than he needs to make sure all other public servants get the same % increase as well.
301	3/09/2013	What makes you think your worth so much. I certainly hope you are removing your entitlements. If you really represent the people of the state then surely you should lead by example, instead of taking from the people for yourself.
302	3/09/2013	If he wants a pay rise than he needs to make sure all other public servants get the same % increase as well.
303	3/09/2013	If he wants a pay rise than he needs to make sure all other public servants get the same % increase as well.
304	3/09/2013	It is very apparent that most Queenslanders are not in favour of paying obscene levels of pay to their elected representatives. Their pay should be similar to that of people who perform similar duties within the community, like ministers of religion, social workers, council workers, union delegates and public servants. Additional payments should be based on reimbursement for costs associated with their parliamentary duties, and limited by reasonable maximums as decided by the tribunal. Travel costs should be only paid for dedicated parliamentary travel at the least cost of available options, including rail. Superannuation should be same as community standards currently 9%. After they retire or are unelected, all payments and perks should cease immediately, as is the case with all other normal workers.
305	3/09/2013	I will keep my submission short, I feel that the questions in the discussion paper fail to realise the deep feeling in the community about this issue.  Firstly I believe that the payrise of a politician should be tied to any movement in the basic wage. Alternatively it could be tied to the CPI applied to the pension. The third option is to the minimum wage increase negotiated for any government Department. The payrise should be limited to one of these.  I am concerned at the reduction in electorate allowances that has occurred. The recent obscene payrises should be revoked. Electorate allowances are the means by which members communicate with their constituents. Reduction of the electorate allowance reduces the ability of a member to service their community. This is unacceptable. I recommend a reversal of the recent payrises and a reinstatement of electorate allowances.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
306	3/09/2013	My job with Telstra was sent to India, how about we send Campbells job overseas, they couldn't do any worse than what he's doing now. And for the pay rise, it's a BIG NO from me.
307	3/09/2013	We all work hard for our money but Mr Newmans pay rise is twice as much I get in a year. I work hard for my $22.00 an hour without any perks plus I put more of my own time just I can do my job better. His pay rise would pay for two teacher aides in the school that I work at, where are given more and more jobs and less hours to do it in. How about a fair go for everyone.
308	3/09/2013	If you are to earn $400 000 a year then there should be no entitlements for remuneration. .
309	3/09/2013	I think he should give his pay raise to the Ambulance members who deserve it more than him as their job is more dangerous than his
310	3/09/2013	No way does Newman deserve the pay rise not eve 2'.2
311	3/09/2013	Campbell Newman is not worth $400.000 a year. What about thinking of the low income earners and giving them a decent pay rise instead of feathering his own pocket. People are just surviving, I bet he is living the high life. I would like to see him survive on $35,000.00 a year
312	3/09/2013	Hi, I've just had a skim through the members entitlement handbook and several other PDFs.  Frankly I'm amazed that so much money is thrown at our politicians, it's practically a kid in a candy store budget with a large variance between the min and max for allowances.  The Allowance to members should be capped at $40k per year and the Miscellaneous Allowance should be reduced to $15k per year.  Travel Allowances should be made available on a case by case basis with a reasonable cap applied to avoid unnecessary waste of tax payer funds.  I also do not believe that state ministers of any level should receive a total salary and allowances greater than $180k per year.  I would rather see a tighter and more fiscally responsible government than an increase in pay and allowances. Especially when the money could be better spent on health.  So in conclusion I do not support a pay increase for Queensland MPs.
313	3/09/2013	Any decision made re State Parliament Salaries has the flow on effect on Local Government. I suggest when deciding on Salaries, the PEOPLE responsible for PAYING the wages should have a SAY into the amount and not a small select tribunal. Do any of the select tribunal employ staff? Also Unions play a part but the BOSSES come first. May I suggest a Dairy Farmer, Vegetable Grower and a Small Business Owner be part of the Salary Tribunal. Also, is it possible to change the Federal Law that has resulted in causing Queenslanders great concerns especially as our financial situation is not healthy? Look forward to your reply. Thanking

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		you,
314	3/09/2013	As a tax paying citizen I feel very strongly about the MP application of remuneration. As an employee my wage is decided upon by my employer and as per my EBA every three years and usually goes up according to the CPA app. 3% if I am lucky. Essentially the citizens of this country via their tax pay the wage of the MPs so we deserve a say on what they should receive or at least an independent board not of the governments choosing should, maybe the Governor General could choose it. But considering all the cutback and the state of the QLD economy it is a complete and utter joke even to the most uninterested citizen that Campbell Newman would even consider a pay rise of even the lowest amounts let alone one to that exorbitant level- it is a slap in the face to the people of QLD and just speaks to me of greed. If you wish to use any of this material please only quote first names. Thankyou
315	3/09/2013	Index the state politicians salary to the emergency service workers of Queensland.  If 2.2% is what the state government is offering the Ambulance officers in the current bargaining period, this should also be the rise the premier receives.
316	3/09/2013	I do not agree with your 42% pay rise especially as your government department just removed all my long service leave as a casual on a hidden clause somewhere within the industrial relations act without any mediation or consultation. Oh you also asked for the time used on long service leave to the cost of $6000 even though your own department okayed the leave. No Mr Campbell I do not agree with feathering your own nest while you take from me
317	3/09/2013	Mr Newman, you have been given a democratic mandate to cut costs & implement economic rationalism & this should be applied equitably to all payments relative to the CPI & productivity assessments, thus politicians have no justification or right to such an inequitable pay rise. Do the morally & ethically responsible thing & reject this excessive 42% pay rise. Of those Queenslanders that pay your salary, most cannot earn such an amount of $400,000 in a decade.
318	3/09/2013	Mr. Newman you were a little Hitler in the Armed Forces, nothing has changed your still so fare up yourself it is beyond belief. You remind me of the Frank Sinatra song "Ill do it my way. "I would not vote for you if they gave me $1,000 dollars
319	3/09/2013	Campbell is not worth it. Nor is his side of government.
320	3/09/2013	Please set a personal example of fiscal responsibility and limit politicians pay increase to the amount that our life saving ambulance officers will receive.
321	3/09/2013	While the rest of the state are tightening their belts the politicians should lead by example and accept a 2.5% increase in line with other government employees. It appears that politicians are out for all they can get rather than governing the state and leading by example and I strongly oppose this wage increase.
322	3/09/2013	You have no heart mate..
323	3/09/2013	I submit that politicians pay increase should be in line with the CPI.
324	3/09/2013	Cambell Newman does not deserve a pay rise! The only use of him would be a speed hump, fortunately for him I would never do that. He has done so much damage to schools and hospitals let alone the damage to Universities in Queensland! Shame he lied about all of his promises! Wish I had the opportunity this weekend to vote against him!
325	3/09/2013	I oppose the 42%pay rise for politicians. No one's position justifies this increase, especially when other frontline workers get little or

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		no pay rise, and you sack 12,000 workers.YOU ARE NOT WORTH IT!!!!!!
326	3/09/2013	Confidential
327	3/09/2013	I submit that the politicians pay rise be no more than anyone else in the community. At the present 2% seems to be the going rate and as far as I'm concerned this should be all these people receive. If Queensland is as broke as we are to believe then either they take this amount or they are all just liars and don't deserve any rise at all.
328	3/09/2013	Mr. Newman, I know that you believe that you are working harder than any other person in Queensland, BUT you and your colleagues are not. There are many people from many walks of life performing many and varied jobs who are all working hard and working long hours. I believe that any pay rises that politicians receive should be on par with the rest of the work force. FAIR is FAIR What is good for the goose is good for the gander.  Politicians should be leading by example .. The current example is rather poor.
329	3/09/2013	As A paramedic I find it hard to believe that Mr Newman and his parliamentary colleagues are getting a huge pay increase and I am expected to take a pay cut. I work shift work and deal with death, despair, and abuse. Come on road with me for a month, will I be happy to exchange places and pay with you. Still enough said, I voted for you last time - I WILL NOT FORGET.
330	3/09/2013	This pay rise is far too much for the lies backflips that the current politicians do. Take a look at your worth and compare it to other industrialised countries. Maybe we could save a fortune and sack all state politicians and have 1 government Australia population 25 million 3 tiers of government UK 75 million 2 tiers of government who's kidding us here what a saving we would make Like you said Newman when you chopped into the public sector shut up and take it
331	3/09/2013	What makes you think you can cut thousand of jobs in Queensland public sector and thousands of dollars in funding but then turn around and give yourself such a huge pay rise. I got a 2.5% pay rise this year. That is about as much as you deserve if any. You are destroying our state and have no morals!!!
332	3/09/2013	Mr Newman, do you realise and can you easily live with the fact that the increase to MPs and former MPs is more than I actually earn in a year. I am a single mature woman and have a mortgage to pay as well as rates and other financial commitments the same as you, but I have to do it by struggling week after week to make ends meet. Personally I would feel an absolute heel if I were you. I trusted you to look after me, I work hard and part of my taxes go towards your wages. YOU HAVE LET ME DOWN BIG TIME. I FEEL TOTALLY BETRAYED AND DISGUSTED.
333	3/09/2013	I do not believe, that in the current financial climate (as is often referred to by the Qld State Government) that 42% pay rise for an MP's is fair or just.
334	3/09/2013	I believe that politicians are entitled to no more than other government employee's and should be on a similar rate. The excess money should be filtered back in to the hospital system.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
335	3/09/2013	MP are just glorified Council workers who have won a popularity contest and only make decisions on what will benefit them and not Queensland. They should be paid the same amount as other public servants.
336	3/09/2013	There is no way to justify that you deserve such a massive pay rise.You are not worth as much as the President of America.For all the damage you have done to Queensland you really deserve a pay cut or to be removed from office.We never voted you in but we will vote you out!
337	3/09/2013	Queensland members of parliament do not deserve the mooted 42% payrise especially while they squabble with Queensland health professionals over basic EB negotiations. I voted for Reg Gully at the last elections but I will not be voting LNP next state election if they authorise the pay increase. Very greedy guys.
338	3/09/2013	I find it incredibly poor form for politicians to be seeking such a large scale pay increase at a time when governments generally advise employees that 2.5% increase is all that can be afforded during such times of fiscal stress. This is not leadership that resembles any variety of integrity.
339	3/09/2013	Confidential
340	3/09/2013	It seems that if Qld is in the financial difficulty that the current state government says it is, then we all have to pull in our belts. Government leaders need to lead by example to have the respect of its electors. This means that MPs should have a salary increase comparable to what it is offering the state public sector/servants.
341	3/09/2013	Link politicians pay to the percentage increase in the average weekly earnings for working Australians as published by the Burueau of Statistics. Do this annually. No need for a Tribunal and people should not complain as this would seem fair and reasonable.
342	3/09/2013	All politicians wages increases should be the same as public servants - approx. 2%
343	3/09/2013	To take a 42% pay increase at a time when the Government has caused the jobs of thousands of people by claiming that Queensland is broke financially,shows that Campbell Newman and the other Politicians of all political Parties are only interested in lining their own wallets. If the people of Queensland have to "bit the bullet" to raise the money to to reduce the States debt, then Politician's can play their part, as this would reduce the debt by over $5.000.000.00.
344	3/09/2013	Campbell Newman has committed to reduce costing and I have been informed he wants to have 42 per cent pay rise  Campbell Newman opened up public submissions about the politicians pay rise  As a hard working employee in the private sector I don't believe this is right considering  he's taking home 42 per cent more, this should not be allowed and I oppose his submission If....  Campbell Newman deserves a pay rise it should only be as much as he insists other government workers accept.  Thank You

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
345	3/09/2013	i wouldnt trust you as far as i could threw you ,why dont you try living on low income trying to make ends meet you dont care who you put out of work because you dont have to worry were the next dollar is coming from . everyone needs there jobs i would like you to live on a single unemployment payment and see how far it goes and who knows you may realize how hard it is and the pensioner how hard it is for them if i dont have a job well i cant afford to live were i live now .cant afford a car to pay rego, insurance, petrol ,pay for funeral plans you dont have to think of any of this as you get big money. i think get of your ass and see how the low income people live .
346	3/09/2013	Mr Newman has slashed millions from budgets, forcing departments to do more with less. All sectors have been effected. 14000 cut from the public sector. Teacher positions have been cut, and class sizes have increased in schools. Health has lost nurses, and surgery categories have been fudged to cover up the mess. Paramedics, fire fighters, public servants and others have been forced into arbitration, afraid of losing existing entitlements. Staff specialist and consultant doctors are set to lose up to 33% of their salary if the private proactive allowance is scrapped as has been promised... if every other aspect of the public service is being offered 2.5% or less, Mr Newman and other MPs can certainly expect no more. Given all the cuts, and threatened reductions in pay and conditions, perhaps a decrease is in order. If we are to live in a democratic society, maybe a democratic approach to politicians salary would give the impression of equity and transparency, rather than self-interested, nepotistic, corrupt dodgy-dealing that we experience now.
347	3/09/2013	If you were serious about improving the QLD economy, you would forgo a pay increase in 2013. I'm having to work harder than ever before because my work place is not re-hiring, due to the slowed economy and company but backs.
348	3/09/2013	The government is there to serve the people that put them in place, not themselves. Emergency services are loosing experienced staff which affects the standard of patient care. Pay them what they are worth.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
349	4/09/2013	Hidden Entitlements ----- Section 5.3 of the Member's Entitlements Handbook states that former MPs and their spouses who have satisfied certain conditions are entitled to free annual flights (even first class over 3 hrs) and unlimited free rail travel in Qld and Australia for the rest of their lives ! This is outrageous ! Qld Taxpayers should not pay these costs for people who are not even doing the job any more ! In the interests of fairness in representing the Australian people, this needs to be abolished immediately. If you take this lifelong benefit into account when looking at the total salary package then they are earning thousands and thousands of dollars more than what their actual salary states. This 'hidden' unquantifiable benefit is very underhanded. Pay Rises ----- MPs are often making decisions regarding the payrises of public servants. Often their argument is "Qld can't afford it" or "we need to save money". If what they say is true, then MPs also cannot afford payrises. MPs payrises must be linked to the payrises of public servants. For example, if public servants get a 3% payrise, then so do the MPs. It is disgusting when MPs deny public servant payrises on the grounds of "Qld Debt", "reducing costs" etc and then are awarded a payrise themselves !

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
350	4/09/2013	1) MP's are currently paid a salary and allowances, but times have changed and I believe that it is time it changed for politicians. They should get a salary and no more. They are paid more than anyone else in the community with no set job, no certification or justification or benchmarks. 2) No more allowances. Everyone else must meet their expenses from their salary and so should politicians. 3) Don't believe in allowances for politicians. 4) As it would be hard to find benchmarks for politicians, one way would be to link their wage to the GDP of a country or State. That way they could never be paid obscenely more than the country can afford. 5) The LNP came into power talking up Qld's debt, and subsequently sacked many public servants reduced health budgets and closed the futures for many Queenslanders', at the same time, the first thing they did on being elected was accept a pay rise, the current obscene amount being their second in increase in 2 years. As they accepted their increase, they were in court stopping an interim payment for existing public servants. All the current public servant EBA's have been limited to as little as 2.35%..with the government citing debt etc.....so why is there one rule for everyone else and another for politicians?
351	4/09/2013	The pollie pay rise is ludicrous and should not be a 42% pay rise, pay freezes has happened all over qhealth without backpay
352	4/09/2013	Mr Newman, I don't believe it to be fair that you think it's ok to keep the pay rise and yet allow others to lose their jobs all in the name of funding cuts and revenue raising. This is a false economy. Putting myself and others like me out of work for the sake of saving money is not right, nor is it fair. I am a respected member of the community and a proud family man, how can I hold my head high if I have no job.
353	4/09/2013	Mr Newman, I say a very loud no to the large payrise you and your fellow politions are awarding yourself. At the hands of you and your government you have slashed and burnt many jobs, ruined folks supers, cost people their homes and their futures yet you wish to accept a payrise well above anybody else in the public sector. How is this fair. I believe a leader should lead by example not set one set of rules for all of us and one for politians. And please dont hide behind the excuse this is labors doing. Be man enough to take blame. What happened in the past is simply that, the past. You fight hammer and tong to stop everyday folk like ambos extra from gettin a 2.2% payrise yet what does yours equal to??? I go to work everyday worries sick for what my future holds as a school cleaner. Eighteen years I have been a proud cleaner and member of my schools community. How would you feel if everyday you went to work with the threat of loosing your job over your head. Trust me its no way to live. Taking away my job at my cuurent age of 50 will loose me my home. There will be no retirement for me at 58 let alone my super being the amount it should of been with 8yrs to go. With my husband we bought 5acre patch of paradise. Built our home from scratch and plan to live out our lifes there but at the flick of a pen you could take that all away. And you want people to support your payrise. You are kidding right? Not a chance.
354	4/09/2013	Pollies deserve 2.2% just like they are giving evryone else. This is an obsene amount of money they are getting and it just makes a joke of our system!!!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
355	4/09/2013	1. Yes I do believe that a combination of direct salary (incl. superannuation) and some expense allowances should be the structure, however I think that the dramatic pay increase that is being suggested is an insult to Queenslanders who have had little or no pay increase in years as the economy is poor and also to the people who are now unemployed due to budget cuts etc. 2. I believe that there should be a set amount of expense allowances, they need to be clarified and defined as to their purpose, and the benefit to the community that is being travelled to needs to be stated. 3. There needs to be a base amount of expenses allowed (a standard package) of what is considered reasonable business travel, business class flights, 3 star accommodation. With a reasonable meal allowance. Naturally there needs to be an entertainment allowance but this would need to be transparent. 3. Expenses need to be transparent, base package to be minimum of travel expenses (accomm, flights, transfers, meals) entertainment and gifts need to be on top of this package and must be accounted for. 4. Territory covered, how many travelling days are needed, if emergency travel is needed it must be transparent. 5. CPI and unemployment rates need to be the guideline to wage increases. It is unjust that huge job cuts are made whilst politicians hold out their hand for dramatic pay increases
356	4/09/2013	Campbell Newman, You should be ashamed to take that massive payrise when there are other Queenslanders who are doing it extremely tough. After sacking thousands of your fellow Queenslanders do you really think your worth the payrise. You are arrogant and cocky and you are now hated by the people who put you into government. Your job has a time limit too Campbell Newman!
357	4/09/2013	How dare you believe your own worth is to those amounts.. Who do you think you are?? You belittle other people's credibilities and job worth's and took jobs which means income which means worth unnecessarily away from huge numbers of people- giving them a job worth of a big fat 0 and you believe you deserve and are worth $400000 + per year????? Get off the merry-go-round and start living in reality with true respect for human beings...
358	4/09/2013	I cant believe that this person thinks he is worth as much as the President of the USA. How can MPs sleep at night knowing that they are [inappropriate content] the average work while accepting such a huge pay rise themselves.
359	4/09/2013	If, and a very big IF, you deserves a pay rise it should only be as much as you insists other government workers have to accept.  Paying yourself $400,000 a year! Is un Australian and totally unfair
360	4/09/2013	Would like to show my disgust in the Newman government with the 42% pay rise. Why would you increase your pay when the current incompetent government are sacking 14000 plus public service people. I'm appalled by this government and should be investigared by CMC

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
361	4/09/2013	Campbell Newman doesn't deserve a pay rise because he has done nothing but cause heartache for some people rh ones he sacked. Why should he live in luxury when there are those who are srtuggling on the lousy wage that they get. Maybe politicians should try and live on some of the wages that the low income earners get they wouldn't survive or know how to.
362	4/09/2013	I would like to propose that base salary of all MP's is linked to the public sector award. Once the original levels are set, any future pay rises are linked to that of the public sector.  This removes all of the politics by both political parties and the unions in future.  I do not object to a reasonable increase to the current base pay.  By linking base salaries to the public sector award, the tribnal then only needs to rule on allowences in furture
363	4/09/2013	I am not in favor of the pay rise for members of State Parliament being higher that the present pay offer to public servants.The present rproposed rise for state members od Parliament is an insult to the people of Queensland during times of cut backs.
364	4/09/2013	There's no way any politicians in this country deserve any pay rises. Look at the facts: Cost of living - Dramatic rise. Normal people Pay rises - Pathetic. What do politicians actually do to deserve to get paid at all, other than lie to the people and line their own pockets. You should all be ashamed to get take any payments at all!
365	4/09/2013	Campbell Newman should have the same pay rise that is offered to other public servants if that is 2.2% then it should be the same for politicians. the 42% he wants for himself is betraying the very people he is supposed to serve.
366	4/09/2013	In my humble opinion, people who choose to work in public service should be paid a fair and decent wage and accordingly on qualifications, skill and experience.  However the 42% pay increase sought by Mr. Newman far exceeds what is considered fair and reasonable. When employees are fighting for cost of living pay increases of 2- 3% they do not expect their Premier to be seeking absurdly differential treatment.  I invite you to consider whether the 42% remuneration sought by Mr. Newman is in the best interest of all Queenslanders.
367	4/09/2013	You're just not worth it...
368	4/09/2013	Campbell newman should take a pay cut how dare he!
369	4/09/2013	Politicians should only receive 2% pay rise
370	4/09/2013	Campbell Newman does not deserve a pay rise of 42% ..... I am not sure anyone deserves such a jump in pay ..... if anything it should only be as much as he insists other government workers accept such as the measly 2.2 per cent offer for our hard working ambulance officers, who day and night are out in the community seeing sometimes the most horrific things imaginable, I just don't see how 42% is justified for Campbell Newman.
371	4/09/2013	Campbell Newman should get the 2% wage rise he gives all other government workers and no more.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
372	4/09/2013	It is simply not fair that the MPs get a payrise when they won't raise the wages of others.
373	4/09/2013	Im a hard working allied health worker and cant even get a 3% payrise , and am having various allowances for education and training taken away , why you cant see how wrong it is to take a 42% payrise , yet your doing this to hard working front line health workers is stunning to say the least!
374	4/09/2013	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The remuneration should be results driven. At the moment it does not matter whether you are a good representative of the people represented or a bad one. As in all jobs the rewards needs to be result driven. Expense allownaces should be realistic keeping in mind what is allowed under taxation guidelines.</li> <li>2. Expenses should be those directly related to the performing of the job that they were elected to do and a budget should be prepared and submitted for approval as is done by all private and government business operations.</li> <li>3. Budget preparation will solve most of these issues at the moment the current model is open to outright abuse and strict guidelines need to be in place because human nature is to take advantage.</li> <li>4. Remuneration should be on a performance scale where top class members are rewarded for the effort that they put in to the job. Everyone should start on the base rate and then performance criteria could be set and a members constituents could be polled to gauge individual member performance. All business today is results driven with rewards given commensurate to the results achieved.</li> <li>5. I have always said that the life of a politician is unbelievable. If you were elected and did nothing for 3 years other than show up to Parliament then there is nothing that can be done. There is no accountability other than at election time. Rules are broken and money is misused but the perpetrators are allowed to repay the money over and over and get off the hook by just claiming that a mistake was made. This shows that the guidelines are not there and the ones that are in place are not enforced.</li> </ol>
375	4/09/2013	I do not agree that pay of MP should increase - especially not by 42% as has been reported. The men and women in parliament are already receiving a ridiculous paycheck while hard working Queensland families struggle on a quarter or a third of this income. I am a full time, diploma qualified child care worker and I earn less a year than the 'Miscellaneous allowance' granted yearly. This is disgusting that a reasonable pay rise has even refused to paramedics yet this ridiculous pay rise for parliament members and the MP is even being discussed, let alone considered. Lets show some common sense.
376	4/09/2013	It is disgusting that a politician will receive a 42% pay rise when public sector jobs are being axed and we continue to be told that we are in an economic crisis. a 42% pay rise is simply a slap in the face for ordinary Queenslanders. You just decided for me how I will vote in the next state election if the pay rise is accepted.
377	4/09/2013	I strongly disagree with the remuneration of Queensland MPs and former MPs. They should not receive this money when they are unwilling to offer other public sector workers fair and just pay rises. Sack public servants to find the money for our pay rises, seems to be plan by the Liberal Party.
378	4/09/2013	There is no valid reason for Mr Campbell to receive a pay rise when he is asking everyone else to cut their budgets and help relieve the state debt. Lead by example is what should be happening to gain the respect and support of the public.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
379	4/09/2013	Mr Newman is not worth $400,000. Why should a premier be paid more than the American president. Why should a premier be paid over 4 x the amount a Paramedic gets for putting their lives at risk and having to have the responsibility of people's lives in their hands day in day out. I think it is ludicrous the amount all politicians get paid what do they actually do all day to warrant such pay.
380	4/09/2013	After reading the Remuneration Tribunal discussion paper and recommended further reading, I wish to make my opinion known. I agree with the way the MP remuneration package currently works. I agree with MPs receiving a direct salary and also having some expense allowances, as the more duties a MP performs the more expenses they are likely to incur and therefore should be reimbursed. Reading the scale of allowances currently offered seems fair and reasonable in its current format. I would prefer that the Independent Remuneration Tribunal ensure allowances are used to meet expenses and not regarded as a substitute for salary. In view of the current economic climate and the fact that the government has cut jobs and offered low pay increases to government employees, I think that MP should only be offered the average of government employees' increases. E.g. if Teachers received 2.7% increase and Ambulance workers are offered 2.2%, MPs would receive a 2.45% salary increase. Instead of Queensland government MP's salary increases being linked to Federal increases. Queensland government MP's salaries should be linked to increases the government of the day pays its workers. I believe pay rises and job losses to base employees would be easier to accept if the general public could see MPs accepting the same.
381	4/09/2013	I do not support the pay rise to the Premier.
382	4/09/2013	With the figures given, that with an increase in remuneration the Premier would be receiving approximately $400,000 p.a. This would put his income at approximately 7 times the average weekly income as stated by the Australian Bureau of Statistics. Instead of putting politicians above corruption, it has put them above the issues that Queenslanders struggle with, the everyday living expenses. The Government is out of touch with the majority of Queenslanders. Their electorate do not see them unless it is a publicity event, and receive very little assistance/advice when it is asked of them. Decisions are made that increase the earning and profits of politicians yet make it harder for the average Queenslanders to live. An example is the recent discussion on the Solar Feedback Tariff. The impression given by the media was that only the wealthy had solar and were ripping off the rest of Queensland, yet the truth is far from that and a lot of very low income earners had sacrificed to install solar and were about to be penalised for sacrificing. No the current MP holds little to no value for the majority of their community, as the MP is no longer there to serve the community and the best interests of Queensland, but has turned things around so the community and Queensland are there to serve the interests of the MP.
383	4/09/2013	The Newman government, through changes to the IR system have required the QIRC to consider the fiscal circumstances of the state in determining wage increases. I believe that should be a guiding principle in awarding MP pay increases also. Similarly, the Newman government has sought to limit pay increases for paramedics and other hardworking public servants to 2.2 percent. The tribunal will struggle to find that the value of an MP has increased 40 per cent while the value of a paramedic has not increased in real terms at all. Therefore, the tribunal should overturn the Seeney 42% raise, and replace it with a 2.2 per cent increase for the next three years.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
384	4/09/2013	Any pay increases for MP's in this economic climate is rude and abhorrent especially as many workers in Queensland, as well the rest of the country have lost or will lose their jobs in the near future due to financial unsustainability. Why should Campbell Newman receive a pay rise when he himself has placed hard working Australians in financial crises in the dole cues? There is going to be a revolution in this country against the hypocrisies among MP's and their remuneration packages because the people can already see the great divide between the have and the have nots. Campbell Newman is supposed to serve the people of this great State and respect the office that the title of Premier holds, not take from the people and bring a vile reputation before the office. Newman is not a Statesman and he knows it. It is very obvious he is out to feather his own nest as is quite disgraceful the way he treats people. We see his behaviour and attitude all the time in the media, so smug, dismissive and uncaring towards those with less than himself. One day when he is not the Premier and he is just like everyone else, where is he going to live? Leaving a trail of destruction in your own backyard is hardly honourable. If Campbell Newman receives a pay rise as suggested he will be provoking the Queensland public into shame upon the ideals of what the title of Premier holds, "Making a difference for OTHERS" not for oneself! Campbell Newman's behaviour is disgusting, and the people at random I speak with never own up in his support. I believe the people of Queensland are very ashamed that a character like Campbell Newman should represent the good people of Queensland. Do us all a favour and resign because the office of Premier should be held by a man or woman with the highest integrity and not be drawn down by some mafia style societal capitulation.
385	4/09/2013	Politicians should be paid the same % increase as they give to the public service. After all politicians are public servants. I think it highly hypocritical of a Government to seek a massive pay rise in the face of court intervention to try and limit pay rises for Ambulance officers (people who actually do something for the community). Until they reinstate all of the services they have slashed under the guise of fixing the economy, Politicians in Qld do not deserve a massive pay rise. They already are paid enough!!
386	4/09/2013	START living in the real world Greedy man!
387	4/09/2013	I do not believe the politicians are entitled to any remuneration. Until they reinstate all sacked public servants, community workers, all health services that were cut under the current state government then a pay rise by a taxpayer and voter as myself is not acceptable. If they can find money to give themselves a pay rise then they have the money to repair the damage from the horrific cuts they have done health services and the people that work in them.
388	4/09/2013	Why when you are cutting other services through out the state do any of you deserve a 42% rise. If you are true about getting this state sorted accept a realistic percentage.
389	4/09/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. A salary and some expense allowances is a fair and reasonable approach as there needs to be an appropriate incentive to become an MP and to attract a high calibre of representatives and to allow for reasonable costs involved in performing these duties. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples. The only expenses that should be allowed for are administrative costs incurred in directly performing the role of an MP (telephone,

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		computer expenses, printing costs etc); travel when directly related to undertaking the role of an MP (with a limit of business class air/rail travel and limited travel for partners included throughout each year when there is a prolonged absence of the MP from home (&gt;1 month) and therefore allows a visit by their partner); and meals and accommodation (4 star limit) incurred during the conduct of their role. Costs involved in entertainment of clients/allies or advertising for the next election etc should be met by their party funds not the taxpayer. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? Costs should be claimed on a reimbursement basis or as a forward projection that is then substantiated by receipts. Only expenses that can be substantiated by receipts should be allowed (i.e. the same rules that apply for the rest of the public service!). 4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? The base salary should be reasonable and reflect the responsibility of an MP as well as attractive enough to secure quality candidates – ranging from $150,000 to 250,000 pa depending on their seniority. Superannuation in line with other public servants should be paid. Expenses should be limited to those directly attributable to their role as an MP, be substantiated regularly and the “Miscellaneous” expense and Electorate allowances should be abolished. 5. Is there anything else about MP remuneration that you think is important for the Tribunal to take into consideration? The MP’s recent pay rise of 42% has not been earned and far exceeds what the Qld Government expects other workers to accept. They refuse to offer more than 2.2% to workers such as Paramedics, Firefighters etc who work 24 hours a day 7 days a week and are paid less than most other states &amp; they argue that the tax payer can’t afford more. How can we suddenly afford such a massive pay rise for the MP’s when there has been no increase to their productivity?
390	4/09/2013	I do not believe Campbell Newman is worth a $400 000 salary.
391	4/09/2013	I do not support the QLD polititions accepting a payrise larger than what other government workers are being offered. Campbell Newman does not need a 42% payrise. The previous government’s decision to delay the payrise was an economically responsible decision which benefitted the whole state of QLD. Premier Newman needs to go back to representing the people of QLD, not ripping them off.
392	4/09/2013	i am against the high pay rise for politicians, they won't give others the same offer why should they get 42% give them a 2% pay rise like they expect the rest of government employees to take.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
393	4/09/2013	In response to the Tribunal Discussion Paper, Question 4 "What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities?" 1.The current economic climate; 2.Relative salaries and pay rises of other Queensland workers at this time. I strongly believe consideration for the current economic climate should play as vital a role in determining MP salaries and relevant pay rises as it has reportedly done for other community/public service workers in recent times. MP's may play a valuable role in our community, but the wages and pay rises they receive should not grossly exceed what other government workers in Queensland are being asked to accept at the same time. For example, a pay rise equating to approximately 40% for politicians is unacceptable when other 'valuable' Queensland workers - including core public service employees, nurses, teachers, corrective services and police, fire and ambulance officers - are accepting/only being offered a maximum of 2-3%.
394	4/09/2013	I think it is absolutely disgusting that the politicians are willing to accept a 42% pay rise when in my profession we have been offered a 2.2% pay rise only if we agree to losing some of our penalties and am now going through a lengthy arbitration. I believe any pay rise they receive should be in line with other Queensland government employees.
395	4/09/2013	Queensland State Politicians pay should be directly indexed to all other public servants pay. I think there has to be a better way other than a % increase as well. Someone earning $50 000 a year should get the same increase as the person earnign $150 000. If the pay goes up $80 a week both income brackets should get the same, otherwise the gap between he top paid and the bottom paid just keeps increaseing
396	4/09/2013	I believe it is ridiculous to think that ANY pollie deserves such a huge pay rise. They are continually telling Australians that "we are going to be in debt with Labour running again" yet they can give themselves pay rises for nothing. Stop fattening your own wallets are start increasing those who deserve it (i.e. administrators, education staff, nurses, etc.) Campbell Newman sacked thousands of hard working Queenslanders at the start of his term, and then gave himself and his colleges a backdated pay rise of 42%, it was un-nessessary and un-deserved.
397	4/09/2013	Our politicians are paid far to much money as it is. Reduce their pay so that they have to try and live on the same amount as a single penisioner and see how they like it and if they can maintain their physical health as well as mental health.
398	4/09/2013	I fail to see how you can justify why you should award yourself such a high payrise when other people put in as much time and energy as you do. Why is it that the pay rise offered to others is minute compared to yours? Don't you have a conscience?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
399	4/09/2013	The MP's do not need a pay rise. The money should be used to give emergency workers and teachers competitive pay.
400	4/09/2013	In response to the Tribunal Discussion Paper, Question 4 "What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities?" <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The current economic climate;</li> <li>2. Relative salaries and pay rises of other Queensland workers at this time.</li> </ol> I strongly believe consideration for the current economic climate should play as vital a role in determining MP salaries and relevant pay rises as it has reportedly done for other community/public service workers in recent times. MP's may play a valuable role in our community, but the wages and pay rises they receive should not grossly exceed what other government workers in Queensland are being asked to accept at the same time. For example, a pay rise equating to approximately 40% for politicians is unacceptable when other 'valuable' Queensland workers - including core public service employees, nurses, teachers, corrective services and police, fire and ambulance officers - are accepting/only being offered a maximum of 2-3%.
401	4/09/2013	How does the Government justify a massive pay increase, after cutting so many jobs? If the aim was to save money, wouldn't the first area to be evaluated be the politicians salary? You receive more than 2-3 people would earn in a year, no tax, everything paid for, maybe a salary cut is due not an increase. Or if you think your salary cannot be lowered maybe you should give up some of those governmental perks and start paying for expenses out of your pocket; since the people are paying for everything in a manner of speaking. It is time the Government is fully responsible to the people, full disclosure and accounting of expenditure. How is the peoples money being spent and why is it not being spent where it is needed. Millions of dollars spent on political machinations that could be spent on real problems, our soldiers being sent over seas at millions a day to fight or fix America's messes while they could be in Australia building for the poor, rural or indigenous people who need it just as much. Allied treaties are all good and well but putting our country into more debt while you cut needed jobs and ruin citizens is criminal.
402	4/09/2013	I believe this is an utter disgrace. Link politician pay rises to the core public service agreements.
403	4/09/2013	A miscellaneous allowance seems like an arbitrary automatic addition to an already high base rate of pay. Any pay rise for politicians should reflect the increment that the government generally imposes on its other employees via its wages policy which currently sits around 2-2.5%. A 42% pay rise in an economic climate that required the government to slash spending is totally incongruous.
404	4/09/2013	I find the increase in remuneration of the amount reported in the media to be exorbitant. Indeed, it is offensive to think that at a time when people in emergency services are being stonewalled into accepting a 2.2% raise, these politicians (of every stripe) have no qualms in agreeing to such a huge increase. Whatever happened to leading by example?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
405	4/09/2013	Sorry Sir you are not worth the same as the President Of America. He makes decisions not only about the USA but the world as well and you make the same for Queensland. So far all you have done is lay off 14000 workers and apparently their are more to come with the Department of Community Services. He is up front with his voters you only lie and deceive Queenslanders about their future while you line the pockets of private businesses and mates from all over Australia that are aligned to the Liberal party.
406	4/09/2013	No you dont deserve your payrise considering all those people that have no jobs because Qld cant afford it but you think you can have a 42% rise?????
407	4/09/2013	Let me start by saying the current pay rise is ridiculously excessive and in current Government wage and spending restraints their rise goes against current Government and community standards or acceptance. General comments <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Remuneration packages for MP should be a fixed salary amount which included Superannuation amount and based on position held eg; Back bench, Minister , Premier.</li> <li>2. Expense allowance s should only be for travel (eg; air fares, Rail, or mileage if and only if they use their own car if they have access to Ministerial cars no allowance) Yearly limits should be set based on the Electorate size. No extra allowances should be paid to MP if they are on Parliamentary Committees as this should be part of their job)</li> <li>3. Expense allowances should only be paid upon providing a receipt, (nor receipt then a Stat Dec) however in most cases payments should be made direct to company providing the travel eg: Qantas or QRail up to the maximum yearly allowance. MP should not be eligible to retain Frequent flyer miles as these points should go to the Qld Government pool which can be used to in lieu of paying for MP flights. (However flight value would still go off Yearly allowance for that MP). Hotel/motel expenses should only be claimed if receipt or invoice provided and MP. If private accommodation provided then minimal meal allowance to be provided.</li> <li>4. Benchmarks – Qld MP salary should not be benchmarked to other State or federal MP salaries it should be base lined on senior Qld Government CEO/DG salaries (eg 20% above DG max salary) increases (in salaries only) should be based on the same % increase given to Qld workers or Public servants as this is the arguments government state the Qld economy could afford. Being an MP is a privilege they are employed to look after their electorate and if Ministers are head of Departments “they are not running a company it is government so it should not be based on Company salaries or salaries outside Qld. Increases in allowances should be set at yearly CPI rate.</li> <li>5. Tribunal should over turn the last MP pay rise, as this is totally unacceptable and does not reflect the value the community places on their MPs and especially does not reflect MPs current responsibilities</li> </ol>
408	4/09/2013	IF U R ONLY OFFERING 2.2PER CENT TO WORKERS THAT IS ALL U SHOULD GET . AS IN GEORGE ORWELLS ANIMAL FARM 'SOME ANIMALS ARE MORE EQUAL THAN OTHERS'
409	4/09/2013	I am disgusted that Campbell Newman has chosen to go ahead with this wage rise at such a time. It is absolutely hypocritical to sack workers one minute and expect the working public to graciously grant him an exorbitant wage rise. Shame, Mr. Newman, shame.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
410	4/09/2013	I am making my submission to you on this topic, as I feel very deeply about it. My 1st point is What has any current member of this parliament done to warrant any increase in salary? Sacked 14000 public servants. Hired friends and family at outrageous salaries in positions none of them had earned. They have done nothing but cry about how tough they have it, yet never fail to increase costs of public utilities i.e. water, gas and electricity. Their leader has a problem dealing in facts and truths. A Government is meant to work for the good of the people not to the detriment of the people. In my humble opinion these creatures should be paying money back to the state for misrepresenting themselves at election time. Each and every 1 of them has their nose in the public money trough for 1 purpose only. To get more for themselves. Where are our Leaders in Road Building? In improved housing for the disadvantaged? A leader whom will advance the cause of all Queenslanders. A leader who will see to a fairer distribution of our states massive wealth. You won't find them here. Why does the Deputy Premier need to charter a plane to take him to Thangool airport or which ever airport he travels to? If he actually drove on the highways of his electorate he might be inclined to do some road building himself. I believe he should be made repay every cent above what an ordinary flight from Brisbane to Thangool would cost the normal person. Also they should be paid on performance. Newman would be getting millions for his tear jerking carry ons. Springborg the same for his Monty Python like statements. No paye rise for these creatures until they actually accomplish something that builds all of Qld and makes it a better place.
411	4/09/2013	MP's need to accept same % as our emergency workers.mthey also need to be performance evaluated before any further or future increase be considered
412	4/09/2013	Thank you for the opportunity to provide a submission to the Independent Remuneration Tribunal. As representatives of the [personal information] seek to influence the tribunal on this matter. Accordingly, we respectfully tender the attached research to assist the tribunal: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Member's salaries, additional salaries and allowances for Australian states and territories;</li> <li>• Table of comparative parliamentary statistics (i.e. structure, no. of lower house electorates, no. of lower and upper house members, total enrolled electors and average enrolled electors per lower house electorate);</li> <li>• Historical development of electorate allowances paid to members of parliament;</li> <li>• Qualification requirements for superannuation for members of parliament 1970 - 2007.</li> </ul> We trust the information provided will support the tribunal's deliberations and final decision.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Table: Members' salaries, additional salaries (by office of Prime Minister, premier or chief minister) and allowances for Australian states and territories <table border="1" style="width: 100%; border-collapse: collapse;"> <thead> <tr> <th style="width: 15%;">Jurisdiction</th> <th style="width: 25%;">Legislation/ linkage</th> <th style="width: 15%;">Current basic Salary</th> <th style="width: 15%;">Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister</th> <th style="width: 15%;">Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)</th> <th style="width: 20%;">Allowances/ entitlements</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>Commonwealth</td> <td>Base salary determined by the Commonwealth Remuneration Tribunal</td> <td>$195,130 From 1 July 2013</td> <td>$312,208 160% of base salary</td> <td>$507,338</td> <td>Electorate allowance (ranging from $32,000-$46,000 depending on electorate size); vehicle; travel and accommodation. Office holders and ministers have additional benefits.</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Australian Capital Territory</td> <td>Determined by the ACT Remuneration Tribunal. See Statement and Determination 1 of 2013 and Remuneration Tribunal Act 1995 (ACT)  The Remuneration Tribunal has announced that it will review members' salary, allowances and other entitlements in 2013.</td> <td>$125,259 From 1 July 2013</td> <td>$137,785 110% of basic salary</td> <td>$263,044</td> <td>Travelling allowance with some additional allowances to chief minister/offices holders; motor vehicle; mobile telephone</td> </tr> <tr> <td>New South Wales (Legislative Assembly)</td> <td>Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1989 (NSW) establishes the Parliamentary Remuneration Tribunal. The Tribunal determines salaries up to the amount</td> <td>$146,251<sup>1</sup> From 1 July 2013</td> <td>$138,938<sup>2</sup> 95% of basic salary Schedule 1 of the</td> <td>$285,189</td> <td>Office holders also receive an expense allowance (as a % of basic salary varying for office held). Other entitlements include electoral allowance (ranging from</td> </tr> </tbody> </table>				Jurisdiction	Legislation/ linkage	Current basic Salary	Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements	Commonwealth	Base salary determined by the Commonwealth Remuneration Tribunal	$195,130 From 1 July 2013	$312,208 160% of base salary	$507,338	Electorate allowance (ranging from $32,000-$46,000 depending on electorate size); vehicle; travel and accommodation. Office holders and ministers have additional benefits.	Australian Capital Territory	Determined by the ACT Remuneration Tribunal . See Statement and Determination 1 of 2013 and Remuneration Tribunal Act 1995 (ACT)  The Remuneration Tribunal has announced that it will review members' salary, allowances and other entitlements in 2013.	$125,259 From 1 July 2013	$137,785 110% of basic salary	$263,044	Travelling allowance with some additional allowances to chief minister/offices holders; motor vehicle; mobile telephone	New South Wales (Legislative Assembly)	Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1989 (NSW) establishes the Parliamentary Remuneration Tribunal . The Tribunal determines salaries up to the amount	$146,251 <sup>1</sup> From 1 July 2013	$138,938 <sup>2</sup> 95% of basic salary Schedule 1 of the	$285,189	Office holders also receive an expense allowance (as a % of basic salary varying for office held). Other entitlements include electoral allowance (ranging from
Jurisdiction	Legislation/ linkage	Current basic Salary	Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements
Commonwealth	Base salary determined by the Commonwealth Remuneration Tribunal	$195,130 From 1 July 2013	$312,208 160% of base salary	$507,338	Electorate allowance (ranging from $32,000-$46,000 depending on electorate size); vehicle; travel and accommodation. Office holders and ministers have additional benefits.
Australian Capital Territory	Determined by the ACT Remuneration Tribunal . See Statement and Determination 1 of 2013 and Remuneration Tribunal Act 1995 (ACT)  The Remuneration Tribunal has announced that it will review members' salary, allowances and other entitlements in 2013.	$125,259 From 1 July 2013	$137,785 110% of basic salary	$263,044	Travelling allowance with some additional allowances to chief minister/offices holders; motor vehicle; mobile telephone
New South Wales (Legislative Assembly)	Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1989 (NSW) establishes the Parliamentary Remuneration Tribunal . The Tribunal determines salaries up to the amount	$146,251 <sup>1</sup> From 1 July 2013	$138,938 <sup>2</sup> 95% of basic salary Schedule 1 of the	$285,189	Office holders also receive an expense allowance (as a % of basic salary varying for office held). Other entitlements include electoral allowance (ranging from

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Jurisdiction	Legislation/ linkage	Current basic Salary	Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements
			prescribed in the government's wages policy. The Parliamentary, Local Council and Public Sector Executives Remuneration Legislation Amendment Act 2011 (NSW) breaks the nexus with the basic salary of federal MPs and ensures that NSW members' salary is aligned with public sector wages. The most recent Determination is 2013 Annual Report and Determination, 4 July 2013.		Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1989		$44,165-$90-745 depending on electorate group); Electoral communication allowance; Sydney allowance (daily rate which varies depending on office); Logistics support allowance (varies from $34,690-$44,225 depending on electorate group); Committee allowance (available for chairs and members of Public Accounts Committee); Electorate charter allowance (to meet transport costs for members with largest electorate varies from $7,715-$23,300); Travel allowances with additional travel entitlements available to office holders
		Northern Territory	The basic salary of Assembly members is tied to the annual rate of increase in the salary of NT Public Service (NTPS) employees.	$138,953 <sup>3</sup> from 16 August 2012	$133,047 <sup>4</sup> from 1 January 2011	$272,000	Electorate allowance (varies from $32,037-$84,688 depending on electorate); Travelling allowance; Travel cost allowance; additional

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Jurisdiction	Legislation/ linkage	Current basic Salary	Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements
			S3 Assembly Members and Statutory Officers (Remuneration and Other Entitlements) Act (NT) describes the linkage and establishes the NT Remuneration Tribunal In Report and Determination 1 of 2012 (October 2012) the Tribunal recommended that it be given the power to determine basic salary of Assembly members and additional salary of Assembly members who are also office holders and that legislation provide that 'the Tribunal cannot determine Members' basic salary to be more than that to which a Federal Member of parliament is entitled less a fixed amount to be nominated in the Act'.				travel entitlements for office holders; motor vehicle; communications; unlimited postage for Ministers, Leader of Opposition and Speaker; staff; child care services

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Jurisdiction	Legislation/ linkage	Current basic Salary	Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements
		Queensland	Linkage with federal base salary remains in s109 Parliament of Queensland Act 2001 (Qld) ($500 less than annual salary of Member of House of Representatives) See also the Queensland Members' Entitlements Handbook	$194,630 from 1 July 2013	$203,641 from 1 July 2013  Additional salary increases by same percentage as percentage increases in basic salary. Linkage specified in s115 of the Parliament of Queensland Act 2001 (Qld) .	$398,271 from 1 July 2013	Allowance (varies from $39,263-$77,922 depending on electorate); home telephone reimbursement; miscellaneous allowance $32,355; general travel allocation $13,498; other travel allowances (including domestic/overseas/ regional members) Premier and other office holders also receive Expense of office allowance (varies from $6,173-$27,372); Opposition Spokespersons Allowance (7.5% of annual members' salary); Other additional allowances available to office holders and members of committees (eg travel, entertainment, motor vehicle, postage; home telephone)

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Jurisdiction	Legislation/ linkage	Current basic Salary	Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements
		South Australia (House of Assembly)	Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1990 (SA) describes the linkage with federal base salary and establishes the S.A. Remuneration Tribunal which determines allowances/ entitlements. Parliamentary Remuneration (Basic Salary) Amendment Act 2012 (SA) states that from 1 July 2012 SA basic salary will be $42 000 less than federal base salary.	$153,130<sup>5</sup> From 1 July 2013	$153,130<sup>6</sup> 100% of basic salary	$306,260	Travelling and accommodation allowances for Ministers and the Leader and Deputy Leader of the Opposition (daily rates); Country Members Accommodation Allowance (daily rates)
		Tasmania (Legislative Assembly)	Premier's press release, 21 June 2012, states that legislation will limit increases in MPs' pay to 2% for next 2 years. The Parliamentary Salaries, Superannuation and Allowances Act 2012 (Tas) repeals and replaces the 1973 Act. It breaks the existing nexus with the basic salary of federal MPs.	$118,466<sup>7</sup> from 1 July 2013	$136,236 from 1 July 2013<sup>8</sup> 115% of basic salary Schedule 4 of the Parliamentary Salaries, Superannuation and Allowances Act 2012	$254,702 from 1 July 2013	Motor vehicle ($14,423); Electoral allowance (varies from $28,848-$48,081 depending on electorate); Committee sitting fees (% of basic salary); telecommunications allowance (increased for certain offices); entertainment allowance for certain office holders (% of basic salary); Away from Home Travelling Allowance; Bass Strait

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
				Salary of office - Prime Minister/premier/chief minister	Total salary of premier or chief minister (not including allowances if any)	Allowances/ entitlements
			Current basic Salary
						Islands Travelling Allowance; Taxi Allowance.-
		Victoria (Legislative Assembly)	Premier's press release, 2 May 2012, announced the end of link between state and federal MPs' pay, introduction of legislation to limit pay rises for MPs to 2.5% for 2012-13 and establishment of independent review to assess alternative methods for determining remuneration of state MPs. Parliamentary and Public Administration Legislation Amendment Act 2013 (Vic), received assent 18 June 2013, sets MPs' salary as $140 973 from 1 July	$140,973<sup>9</sup> From 1 July 2013	$140,973<sup>10</sup> 100% of basic salary Part 2 of the Parliamentary Salaries and Superannuation Act 1968 (Vic)	$281,946	Members receive and Expense Allowance as a % of basic salary varying from 42% (Premier) – 8% (ordinary members); other allowances set by Regulation including motor vehicle; travel; accommodation; electorate (ranging from between $35,930-$43,040 depending on electorate)

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<sup>4</sup> Section 3A provides for the additional salary of an Assembly member. Section 3A(6) states an additional salary of office means an entitlement for an Assembly member to be paid an amount in addition to basic salary because the Assembly member holds or occupies a prescribed office. An entitlement is defined in section 2 as including a salary, an allowance and any other remuneration or benefit and including the provision of goods, services, facilities and any other assistance. South Australia <sup>5</sup> Section 4(1) of the Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1990 states that the remuneration of a member of parliament comprises the: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• basic salary, and</li> <li>• if the member holds a specified office – an additional annual salary at a rate equal to the percentage of the basic salary specified in the Schedule for that office, and</li> <li>• such electorate allowances and other allowances, expenses and benefits as are determined from time to time by the Remuneration Tribunal.</li> </ul> Section 3 of the Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1990 of the defines basic salary as the annual salary at a rate equal to $42 000 less than the rate from time to time of Commonwealth basic salary. <sup>6</sup> See Parliamentary Remuneration Act 1990 Schedule – Additional Salary for the percentage of basic salary for the offices. Tasmania <sup>7</sup> Section 4(1) of the Parliamentary Salaries, Superannuation and Allowances Act 2012 (Tas) provides that parliamentary salaries and allowances and benefits are payable at the rates specified in the Schedules. Part 1 of Schedule 1 provides for the basic salary. In particular, clause 2(2) states the basic salary for 1 July 2013 is the amount determined by the Auditor- General under clause 3(2) as 102 percent of the amount that was the basic salary on the preceding 30 June. <sup>8</sup> Clause 1(1) of Part 2 of Schedule 1 of the Parliamentary Salaries, Superannuation and Allowances Act 2012 (Tas) provides that an additional salary is payable to a member of parliament who holds a specified office (e.g. Premier, Minister etc.) in addition to the basic salary. Clause 1(2) of Part 2 of Schedule 1 states that the additional salary is to be a percentage of the basic salary as set out in Schedule 4. Schedule 4 prescribes the percentage of the basic salary that is additional salary (eg. 115% for the office of the Premier) Schedules 2 &amp; 6 of the Act set out the amounts of allowances and benefits to which members of parliament are entitled. Schedule 6 provides amounts for allowances such as motor vehicles, electorate, committee sitting fees, telecommunications allowances, entertainment and travel allowances. Victoria <sup>9</sup> Section 6(1)(a) of the Parliamentary Salaries and Superannuation Act 1968 (Vic) (the Act) provides that a member is entitled to be paid a salary at the rate per annum of the basic salary. An expense allowance at the rate of 8% per annum of the basic salary is also payable if the member does not hold a specified office. Basic salary is defined in section 3 as the amount of $140 973 in respect of the financial year commencing 1 July 2013. <sup>20</sup> Section 6 (1)(c) of the Act states that a member is entitled to be paid an additional salary at the rate per annum of the basic salary specified in the Table if the member holds a specified office. An expense allowance at a specified rate per annum of the basic salary may also be payable. Section 6(1)(e) of the Act states a member is entitled to be paid any other allowance in accordance with the regulations. The Parliamentary Salaries and Superannuation (Allowances) Regulations 2013 (VIC) provide for the allowances payable to members under section 6(1)(e) of the Act. In particular, section provides for an electorate allowance of between $35 930 per annum and $43 040 per annum, for the financial year beginning 1 July 2013, depending upon the electorate.

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<hr/> Western Australia <sup>21</sup> Section 6(1) of the Salaries and Allowances Act 1975 (WA) provides that the Tribunal shall determine the remuneration to be paid to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• ministers and the parliamentary secretary, and</li><li>• members of the Parliament including additional remuneration to be paid to a member of parliament who is the Chairman, or member of a committee.</li></ul> Remuneration is defined in section 4 as including salary, allowances, fees, emoluments and benefits (whether in money or not). <sup>22</sup> See section 6(1) of the Salaries and Allowances Act 1975 (WA). <hr/> 10   Page

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Attachment 1: Table of comparative parliamentary statistics <table border="1" style="width: 100%; border-collapse: collapse; text-align: center;"> <thead> <tr> <th rowspan="2">Jurisdiction</th> <th rowspan="2">Structure</th> <th rowspan="2">No. Electorates (Lower House)</th> <th colspan="2">No. Members</th> <th rowspan="2">Total Enrolled Electors<sup>1</sup></th> <th rowspan="2">Ave. Enrolled Electors per Electorate (Lower House)<sup>2</sup></th> </tr> <tr> <th>Lower House</th> <th>Upper House</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>Commonwealth</td> <td>Bicameral</td> <td>150</td> <td>150</td> <td>76</td> <td>14,459,960</td> <td>96,400</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Queensland</td> <td>Unicameral</td> <td>89</td> <td>89</td> <td>N/A</td> <td>2,796,317</td> <td>31,419</td> </tr> <tr> <td>New South Wales</td> <td>Bicameral</td> <td>93</td> <td>93</td> <td>42</td> <td>4,727,675</td> <td>50,835</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Victoria</td> <td>Bicameral</td> <td>88</td> <td>88</td> <td>40</td> <td>3,649,360</td> <td>41,470</td> </tr> <tr> <td>South Australia</td> <td>Bicameral</td> <td>47</td> <td>47</td> <td>22</td> <td>1,112,206</td> <td>23,664</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Western Australia</td> <td>Bicameral</td> <td>59</td> <td>59</td> <td>36</td> <td>1,426,972</td> <td>24,186</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Tasmania</td> <td>Bicameral</td> <td>5*</td> <td>25</td> <td>15</td> <td>360,193</td> <td>72,039</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Northern Territory</td> <td>Unicameral</td> <td>25</td> <td>25</td> <td>N/A</td> <td>126,453</td> <td>5,058</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Australian Capital Territory</td> <td>Unicameral</td> <td>3*</td> <td>17</td> <td>N/A</td> <td>260,784</td> <td>86,928</td> </tr> </tbody> </table> Source: The data in this table has been compiled from the websites of each of the state and territory parliaments and the Australian Parliament, unless otherwise indicated. Links are provided to the relevant webpages. The data is current as at 4 June 2013. * This jurisdiction has multi-member electorates. <sup>1</sup> Australian Electoral Commission, Gazetted Enrolment Statistics as at 13 April 2013. http://www.aec.gov.au/Enrolling_to_vote/Enrolment_stats/gazetted/2013/04.htm Accessed 31 May 2013. <sup>2</sup> Average electors per lower house electorate has been calculated by dividing the number of enrolled electors by the number of lower house electorates. Prepared at client request. The responsibility for the use of the contents of this report or its further distribution either in whole or part lies with the Member. This paper has been prepared to support the work of the Queensland Parliament using information publicly available at the time of production. The views expressed do not reflect an official position of the Queensland Parliamentary Library, nor do they constitute professional legal opinion. Queensland Parliamentary Library and Research Service Research and Information Service Page 1	Jurisdiction	Structure	No. Electorates (Lower House)	No. Members		Total Enrolled Electors <sup>1</sup>	Ave. Enrolled Electors per Electorate (Lower House) <sup>2</sup>	Lower House	Upper House	Commonwealth	Bicameral	150	150	76	14,459,960	96,400	Queensland	Unicameral	89	89	N/A	2,796,317	31,419	New South Wales	Bicameral	93	93	42	4,727,675	50,835	Victoria	Bicameral	88	88	40	3,649,360	41,470	South Australia	Bicameral	47	47	22	1,112,206	23,664	Western Australia	Bicameral	59	59	36	1,426,972	24,186	Tasmania	Bicameral	5*	25	15	360,193	72,039	Northern Territory	Unicameral	25	25	N/A	126,453	5,058	Australian Capital Territory	Unicameral	3*	17	N/A	260,784	86,928
Jurisdiction	Structure	No. Electorates (Lower House)				No. Members				Total Enrolled Electors <sup>1</sup>	Ave. Enrolled Electors per Electorate (Lower House) <sup>2</sup>
			Lower House	Upper House
Commonwealth	Bicameral	150	150	76	14,459,960	96,400
Queensland	Unicameral	89	89	N/A	2,796,317	31,419
New South Wales	Bicameral	93	93	42	4,727,675	50,835
Victoria	Bicameral	88	88	40	3,649,360	41,470
South Australia	Bicameral	47	47	22	1,112,206	23,664
Western Australia	Bicameral	59	59	36	1,426,972	24,186
Tasmania	Bicameral	5*	25	15	360,193	72,039
Northern Territory	Unicameral	25	25	N/A	126,453	5,058
Australian Capital Territory	Unicameral	3*	17	N/A	260,784	86,928

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Attachment: Historical development of electorate allowances paid to members of parliament Electorate Allowance This allowance has its genesis in a 1961 committee of inquiry. The 1961 Report of Committee of Inquiry on Salaries of Members of Parliament, Officials in Parliament, and Ministers of the Crown of the State of Queensland, tabled in the Legislative Assembly on 14 February 1961 recommended that postage, telephone and marginal allowances be combined into one 'Electorate Allowance',<sup>1</sup> differentiated by the size and nature of the electorate. The 'Electorate Allowance' was to be for all expenses 'properly incurred in the discharge of Parliamentary duties'. In the Committee's view, it was to take into account: the cost of postage, telegrams, the use of telephones, transport of all kinds, including the use of a medium priced motor car properly maintained and regularly replaced, accommodation away from home both within the electorate and whilst attending Parliament, and, on a modest scale, entertainment and contributions (over and above those made by the ordinary person) to charities and other deserving causes in the particular electorate.<sup>2</sup> Between 1961 and 1979 it is difficult to track the purpose and amounts of electorate allowance because while cabinet decisions were periodically made about the allowance, there was no single consolidated document detailing the purpose and amounts of the allowance. In 1979 the Members' Entitlement Booklet (later known as the Members' Entitlement Handbook) was promulgated. The Booklet detailed salary and allowances approved by the Governor-in-Council. Between 1979 and 1992, various Handbook versions outlined entitlements including electorate allowance but they did not identify specific purposes for which it was to be used. None of these Handbooks were publicly available. On 16 October 1992 the Members' Salaries, Allowances and Services Handbook was gazetted for the first time. While this public document outlined that the allowance existed and the amount, it did not identify the purpose for which it was to be paid. In 1998, following a Select Committee on Parliamentary Entitlements recommendation two new Handbooks were created – a Members' Entitlements Handbook and a Members' Office Support Handbook. The two new handbooks were gazetted on Friday, 18 December 1998. The new Members Entitlements Handbook, for the first time stated identified Electorate Allowance as being "...paid to each member to cover a range of expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in servicing his/her electorate." <sup>1</sup> Electorate Allowance under the current system is known as 'Allowance to Members'. <sup>2</sup> Report of Committee of Inquiry on Salaries of Members of Parliament, Officials in Parliament, and Ministers of the Crown of the State of Queensland, tabled in the Legislative Assembly on 14 February 1961, page 7.

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The Handbooks that were gazetted in 1998 remain in the same format and provide the basis for the provision of entitlements to Members. Key changes to electorate allowance since 1998, aside from adjustments in their value, are as follows: Feb 1999 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>change to the 'purpose and description' of electorate allowance <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Changed from – Electorate Allowance is paid to each Member to cover a range of expenses reasonably and necessarily incurred in servicing his/her Electorate.</li> <li>Changed to – Electorate Allowance is paid to each Member to cover a range of expenses. It is to be expended at the discretion of the Member. Members are accountable to the Australian Taxation Office for receipt of this income as they are for any other income.</li> </ul> </li> </ul> March 2001 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>change to the 'purpose and description' of electorate allowance <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Changed from – Electorate Allowance is paid to each Member to cover a range of expenses. It is to be expended at the discretion of the Member. Members are accountable to the Australian Taxation Office for receipt of this income as they are for any other income.</li> <li>Changed to – Electorate allowance is paid to each Member. It is to be expended at the total discretion of the Member. It is treated as part of a Member's normal income except for superannuation purposes. Members are accountable to the Australian Taxation Office for receipt of this income as they are for any other income.</li> </ul> </li> </ul> November 2003 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The name of the Allowance was changed – to Allowance to Members</li> </ul> Source: Prepared by Corporate and House Services, Queensland Parliamentary Service, 2 September 2013.

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Table: Qualification requirements for superannuation for members of parliament 1970 - 2007 <table border="1" style="width: 100%; border-collapse: collapse;"> <thead> <tr> <th data-bbox="546 379 719 443">Year</th> <th data-bbox="719 379 2002 443">Member's Qualification Requirements</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="546 443 719 536">Pre 1970</td> <td data-bbox="719 443 2002 536">From 1948, superannuation for Members of the Queensland Parliament was managed in accordance with the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Act 1948 (Qld).</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="546 536 719 1278">1970</td> <td data-bbox="719 536 2002 1278"> The scheme was changed in 1970 with the commencement of version 1 the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970. Section 4 of this Act set out who the Act applied to: 4. Application of Act. This Act applies to and in relation to- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) any person who is a member at the commencement of this Act and to whom The Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Acts 1948 to 1967 applied immediately prior to that commencement;</li> <li>(b) any person who becomes a member on or after the commencement of this Act; and</li> <li>(c) any widow, female dependant and child or children of any person referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section.</li> </ul> This version of the Act specified basic eligibility for the Member's superannuation benefit, subject to certain conditions contained in other sections of the Act: 17. Members' superannuation benefit. (1) Subject to this Act a person who has received salary as a member (either after or partly before and partly after the commencement of this Act)- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) for an aggregate period of eleven years or more; or</li> <li>(b) for an aggregate period of eight years or more and ceases to be a member as the result of defeat at an election or, being a representative of a recognised political party, as the result of not standing for re-election by reason that such party has not selected him to so stand or as the result of resignation for, or of not seeking re-election owing to, good and sufficient reasons which satisfy the trustees shall, on ceasing to be a member and to be entitled to payment of salary, be entitled to be paid out of the Fund an annual pension at the rate ascertained in accordance with the formula <math>A \times C</math> where-</li> </ul> A is an amount calculated at the rate of forty-one and one-fifth per centum of the basic salary in force immediately prior to the time at which he ceased to be a member and, in respect of each month of service as a member exceeding eight years, one-fifth </td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	Year	Member's Qualification Requirements	Pre 1970	From 1948, superannuation for Members of the Queensland Parliament was managed in accordance with the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Act 1948 (Qld).	1970	The scheme was changed in 1970 with the commencement of version 1 the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970. Section 4 of this Act set out who the Act applied to: 4. Application of Act. This Act applies to and in relation to- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) any person who is a member at the commencement of this Act and to whom The Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Acts 1948 to 1967 applied immediately prior to that commencement;</li> <li>(b) any person who becomes a member on or after the commencement of this Act; and</li> <li>(c) any widow, female dependant and child or children of any person referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section.</li> </ul> This version of the Act specified basic eligibility for the Member's superannuation benefit, subject to certain conditions contained in other sections of the Act: 17. Members' superannuation benefit. (1) Subject to this Act a person who has received salary as a member (either after or partly before and partly after the commencement of this Act)- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) for an aggregate period of eleven years or more; or</li> <li>(b) for an aggregate period of eight years or more and ceases to be a member as the result of defeat at an election or, being a representative of a recognised political party, as the result of not standing for re-election by reason that such party has not selected him to so stand or as the result of resignation for, or of not seeking re-election owing to, good and sufficient reasons which satisfy the trustees shall, on ceasing to be a member and to be entitled to payment of salary, be entitled to be paid out of the Fund an annual pension at the rate ascertained in accordance with the formula <math>A \times C</math> where-</li> </ul> A is an amount calculated at the rate of forty-one and one-fifth per centum of the basic salary in force immediately prior to the time at which he ceased to be a member and, in respect of each month of service as a member exceeding eight years, one-fifth
Year	Member's Qualification Requirements
Pre 1970	From 1948, superannuation for Members of the Queensland Parliament was managed in accordance with the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Act 1948 (Qld).
1970	The scheme was changed in 1970 with the commencement of version 1 the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970. Section 4 of this Act set out who the Act applied to: 4. Application of Act. This Act applies to and in relation to- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) any person who is a member at the commencement of this Act and to whom The Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Acts 1948 to 1967 applied immediately prior to that commencement;</li> <li>(b) any person who becomes a member on or after the commencement of this Act; and</li> <li>(c) any widow, female dependant and child or children of any person referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section.</li> </ul> This version of the Act specified basic eligibility for the Member's superannuation benefit, subject to certain conditions contained in other sections of the Act: 17. Members' superannuation benefit. (1) Subject to this Act a person who has received salary as a member (either after or partly before and partly after the commencement of this Act)- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) for an aggregate period of eleven years or more; or</li> <li>(b) for an aggregate period of eight years or more and ceases to be a member as the result of defeat at an election or, being a representative of a recognised political party, as the result of not standing for re-election by reason that such party has not selected him to so stand or as the result of resignation for, or of not seeking re-election owing to, good and sufficient reasons which satisfy the trustees shall, on ceasing to be a member and to be entitled to payment of salary, be entitled to be paid out of the Fund an annual pension at the rate ascertained in accordance with the formula <math>A \times C</math> where-</li> </ul> A is an amount calculated at the rate of forty-one and one-fifth per centum of the basic salary in force immediately prior to the time at which he ceased to be a member and, in respect of each month of service as a member exceeding eight years, one-fifth

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		per centum of that basic salary but such amount shall not be at a rate greater than seventy per centum of the basic salary at that time; B is the total salary received by that person pursuant to the provisions as in force from time to time of The Constitution Act Amendment Act of 1896 as amended or The Officials in Parliament Act of 1896 as amended; and C is the total basic salary in respect of the period of service of that person in the Assembly. (2) Subject to this Act a person who ceases to be a member other than by reason of death and who is not entitled to a pension under this Act shall be entitled to have refunded to him the amounts deducted under this Act or any corresponding previous enactment from salary paid to him together with simple interest thereon at the rate of three and one-half per centum per annum to the date on which he ceased to be a member less any amount previously refunded to him under this subsection or under any corresponding previous enactment. Further Reading <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• There are no Explanatory Notes for this Bill.</li> <li>• Debate on the Act when it was a Bill before the Legislative Assembly is contained in Attachment: Superannuation Debate</li> </ul>
		2004 The parliamentary superannuation scheme initiated by the 1970 Act was closed to new members by provision of the Superannuation Legislation Amendment Act 2004. This amendment closed the scheme to any person who becomes a member the commencement of the Superannuation Legislation Amendment Act 2004, part 4. The relevant provision of this Act commenced on 17 December 2004 by proclamation. The Bill's Explanatory Notes explain the purpose of the changes: The Bill amends the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970 to close the Queensland Parliamentary Superannuation Scheme to new Members of the Legislative Assembly and requires new Members to become members of QSuper. This will apply to any new Member elected (at a by-election or general election) after this legislation has passed, irrespective of whether they have previously been a State Member of Parliament. This Bill will also vary the method by which pensions are indexed in the Queensland scheme to bring this into line with the Commonwealth scheme. The relevant version of the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970, immediately prior to the closure of the scheme to new entrants on 17 December 2004, was version 3A. Section 4 of this version of the Act set out who the Act applied to:

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		4 Application of Act  This Act applies to and in relation to— <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) any person who is a member at the commencement of this Act and to whom the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Act 1948 applied immediately prior to that commencement; and</li> <li>(b) any person who becomes a member on or after the commencement of this Act; and</li> <li>(c) any widow, female dependent and child or children of any person referred to in paragraph (a) or (b).</li> </ul> Version 3A of the Act specifies basic eligibility for the Member's superannuation benefit, subject to certain conditions contained in other sections of the Act: 17 Members' superannuation benefit (1) Subject to this Act a person who has received salary as a member (either after or partly before and partly after the commencement of this Act)— <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) for an aggregate period of 11 years or more; or</li> <li>(b) for an aggregate period of 8 years or more and ceases to be a member as the result of defeat at an election or, being a representative of a recognised political party, as the result of not standing for re-election by reason that such party has not selected the person to so stand or as the result of resignation for, or of not seeking re-election owing to, good and sufficient reasons which satisfy the trustees; shall, on ceasing to be a member and to be entitled to payment of salary, be entitled to be paid out of the fund an annual pension at the rate ascertained in accordance with the formula.....</li> </ul> (2) Subject to subsection (4) and section 18A, a person who— <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) ceases to be a member (other than because of death); and</li> <li>(b) is not entitled to a pension under this Act;</li> </ul> is entitled— <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(c) if the person ceases to be a member because of a result mentioned in subsection (1)(b)—to an amount equivalent to 3 1/3 times the relevant deductions; or</li> <li>(d) if paragraph (c) does not apply—to an amount equivalent to 2 1/6 times the relevant deductions.</li> </ul> Furthermore, sections 17A and 19 also relate to the eligibility of persons ceasing as members on or after turning 70 and retirement on ill health grounds.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Further Reading <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Bill</li> <li>• Explanatory Notes</li> <li>• Second Reading Speech (p 2928)</li> <li>• Debate (pp 3271-3272).</li> </ul>
		2007 The Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970 was repealed in 2007 by section 26A of the Superannuation (State Public Sector) Amendment Act 2007. The repeal of this Act was more technical in nature, rather than a substantive change in policy. The provisions of the repealed 1970 Act were inserted into Chapter 9 (Parliament 70 Category) of the Superannuation (State Public Sector) Deed 1990 (current version) by the Superannuation (State Public Sector) Amendment of Deed Regulation (No. 1) 2007 - Subordinate Legislation 2007 No. 139. Section 4 of the final version of the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970 (as at the time of its repeal) set out who the Act applied to: 4 Application of Act (1) This Act applies to and in relation to— (a) any person who is a member at the commencement of this Act and to whom the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Fund Act 1948 applied immediately prior to that commencement; and (b) any person who becomes a member on or after the commencement of this Act and before the commencement of the Superannuation Legislation Amendment Act 2004, part 4; and (c) any widow, female dependent and child or children of any person referred to in paragraph (a) or (b). (2) This Act does not apply to or in relation to a person who becomes a member after the commencement of the Superannuation Legislation Amendment Act 2004, part 4, unless the person— (a) was a member immediately before the commencement of the part; and (b) has not, after the commencement of the part, ceased to be a member at any time before again becoming a member. Qualification requirements under ss 17, 17A and 19 were not amended between the 2004 amendments and the repeal of the Parliamentary Contributory Superannuation Act 1970.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
413	4/09/2013	I do not believe at any point any government deserves a pay rise of such dimation as which has been given to the current. While many hard working queenslanders were given the marching orders due to lack of budget to finance their positions as well more workers being told the government cannot afford more than a 2.2% rise in their salary, they release their larger than life payrise to rub salt into the wounds of the suffering public. they claim that its the law and that they have no say in it, yet they have the ability to change the law to strip hard workers of many rights which they have worked har for over many years of dedication to the service of other queenslanders. while the money could be better spent hiring back the staff which have been walked, many other resources such as roads public transport or even continuing the busway through to Bracken Ridge could benefit. Its clearly not fair and should be reversed.
414	4/09/2013	This pay rise for the pollies is indecent, outrageous and offensive.
415	4/09/2013	Campbell Newman most certainly does not deserve a pay rise. How can he sleep at night knowing the thousands of people has put out of work. God help Queensland!
416	4/09/2013	I disagree with 42% pay increase to MP's and premier. I think the pay increases must be reasonable. 42% pay increase is just not reasonable. I am aware that all the services are getting 2% pay raise as a result of depts as per premier. If this is the case i think premier should set himself as an example for the entire state. Also if he gets 5- 6% pay raise that may sound reasonable but 42% is just not acceptable. public will loose in ever falling trust of ruling govt.
417	4/09/2013	As a public servant I have not had a pay rise in many months because my politicians told me the state couldn't afford it. It is both unfair and a very poor example for Qld politicians to take the pay rise because they say it is legislated. The government had no trouble changing the legislation to remove public servant conditions. People would respect the politicians more if they practiced what they preached and changed the legislation to remove their pay rise. Since the tribunal must now take the state of the Qld economy into account when considering such pay rises, it would be only fair and right to deny the politician's their large pay increase at a time when the government is encouraging austerity. Surely this increase goes against the Commission of Audit report and against what is right for this state. Please don't grant this pay rise for decencies sake.
418	4/09/2013	I don't believe Qld state politicians require a pay increase of any amount under the current financial situation. Whilst the govt is laying off staff, it is improper to give themselves a pay increase of any amount.
419	4/09/2013	You are as useless as a hole in a boat.
420	4/09/2013	$400,000 a year does seem extremely inflated considering that people are losing their jobs. I would always hope that our political leaders would lead by example and be magnanimous with accepting a lower pay. Truly disappointing! I concede that their job is a difficult one but so are Doctors, Paramedics, Nurses who have all had their attempt at reasonable pay rise knocked back with dictatorial precision and apathy.
421	4/09/2013	Mr newman do you worry about the little man, the one who pays your wages how are we getting along on stragle street i dont get a big pay cheuke , i live from week to week think about us for once
422	4/09/2013	Newman you are trying to give yourself a pay rise so you can retire early and sit back and not worry .Not so the rest of us we may have to work after 65 years of age because we no longer have money or hours to work and we have to do harder work to get anywhere No pay rise for any MPs until workers get their pay rise and some surcurity for jobs

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
423	4/09/2013	Members of parliament work hard for their electorate, and while they need funds to do this job properly, I believe that the current rate of pay and entitlements is sufficiently generous. Given that the majority of our citizens are being urged to be fiscally prudent, Aussie politicians (already amongst the best paid polities on the planet) ought to lead by example and not expect or accept any pay increase(let alone the obscene 40% that is proposed). Public servants getting sacked left, right and centre while a privileged few at the top get a massive pay bump?This is obscene and unethical. Health workers like ambos dealing with pay cuts while those at the top of the political chain feel justified to stick their hands in the kitty? Serving as a member for parliament is a privilege and, with the power that accompanies this position, comes great responsibility.
424	4/09/2013	I would like to submit my sincere objection to the (backdated) pay increase for our politicians and especially our leader. I would like to voice my utter dismay at the blatant hypocrisy re the pay increase Queensland politicians are going for. If our government is genuine about cutting cost then that should be the same for all public servants, this is no more than 2.2% This even being an issue is totally unacceptable. Mr Newman is losing all credibility this way, instead he and his government should be setting an example. If government can reject pay increases for government workers, government workers ought to have the reciprocal right to determine pay increases for our elected representatives. Do as I do would have to be the motto here. A very disappointed and outraged Queensland citizen,
425	4/09/2013	Nobody should ever get a huge pay rise unless they are living well below the poverty line. If normal workers can only get 1 or 2%, then that is all the politicians should get. Anything more than 2% will cause massive backlash from ordinary workers and voters. The time has come for politicians to listen to the public all the time not just before an election.
426	4/09/2013	Do not give politicians pay rises. They are very well paid as it is. Their income levels are not at any middle-class rates of remuneration! Enough is enough! If any pay rise is granted, base it on productivity or on the electorate's vote for such.
427	4/09/2013	I think that the pay for politicians is an outrage, when an economy is not going well then pay should decrease accordingly as is the same on the farm for a farmer or a small business. Being a small business owner myself, I am not even getting a wage at the moment as my small business is not taking enough to pay me, I am doing all I can, as the state government does to turn this around, so that I can get a salary. Surely the State politicians could set the example and do the same.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
428	5/09/2013	Thank you for your letter of 21st August 2013, and for the opportunity to respond to the current review of remuneration of Members and former Members of the Queensland Parliament (MPs). I accordingly provide the following: Introduction: I refer to Members Entitlements Handbook 5.3.1. Purpose and Disclosure : Former Members of Queensland Legislative Assembly who have been elected on 3 occasions and served a minimum of 7 years shall be entitled to commercial travel benefits Amount of Entitlement : Former Members who qualify for commercial air travel shall be entitled to one return flight each financial year Spouse Travel : Spouses of former Members who qualify for commercial travel shall be entitled to one return flight each financial year (there is no requirement for the spouse to travel with the former Member) There are similar provisions for spouses relating to interstate travel under 5.3.2. and rail travel (Rail Gold Pass) under 5.3.3. Submission: There are former Members whose spouses are no longer able to travel, and who wish to do so themselves but do not wish to travel alone or, due to age or infirmity, should properly be accompanied for health or safety reasons. I therefore submit: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- that a new provision be included to allow for a former Member, over the age of 80 years, whose spouse is no longer able to take up the travel entitlement, to designate a family member or carer instead of spouse to accompany him/her on travel under this entitlement</li> <li>- To prevent abuse of this suggested new entitlement, some verification (i.e Statutory Declaration or Medical Certificate) could be required (a) in respect of the unable-to-travel spouse, and possibly (b) in respect of the necessity for the former Member to be accompanied</li> <li>- In qualifying for such a provision, there would be no entitlement or provision for a relative or carer to travel separately from the former Member</li> </ul>
429	5/09/2013	The government has laid off public servants, sold assets and reduced operating budgets for government departments to reduce queensland's debt. Please do not proceed with this ridiculous pay increase, spend the money on improving the state of queensland for all queenslanders.
430	5/09/2013	The Premier should take home a less than 3 per cent pat rise unless he can match it to ALL other PUBLIC EMPLOYEES - after all that what he is - a PUBLIC EMPLOYEE!!!

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
431	5/09/2013	To consider the pay rises politicians are claiming at this time when they are also advocating fiscal restraint and maintaining less than cost of living pay rises for public services employees is frankly obscene. Politicians are frankly not worth this. perhaps they ought to consider the US constitution where it was first of all considered that citizens should perform their public duty of political office and receive NO pay for this.
432	5/09/2013	I am totally against any increase in Queensland MP's and former MP's salaries in this economic climate where jobs are being cut, savings made and wage increases set at a minimum, if anything at all. I think that if MP's believe that they deserve a pay rise, it should be in keeping with those of other residents of Queensland not 42%. I believe that it is hypocritical that they can award themselves this amount of remuneration where, as a Paramedic, I am unable to get a cup of instant (not expensive) coffee at hospital in the middle of a night shift due to cutbacks in funding and I am offered a 2.2% pay rise at the loss of other penalties.. One MP's pay rise would more than pay for the basic necessities for the whole state for several years. It is arrogant and just plain wrong!
433	5/09/2013	What are you doing? At least try to be a better man!
434	5/09/2013	I am so angry when I read stuff like this how do you sleep at night bad enough people are loosing jobs they ask for small pay rise you say no but you think you are worth it wake up smell the coffee start thinking about people really struggling and give us all a decent pay rise

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
435	5/09/2013	Is this submission worth the time? A Tribunal created by a politician who in creating the dilemma, now seeks others to salve his conscience? Cynicism 101. A government of the day has the right to act as it sees fit on behalf of the community/State. MP's should be a reflection of society. 1. As a health worker, my role description/occupational duties are constantly evolving. This rate of change probably exceeds the changes experienced by politicians in general. However for the past thirty years whilst my remuneration has been on par with CPI, and constantly bench marked and scrutinised by government, no such scrutiny exists for politicians in this State. Percentage wise their increase in remuneration for years has been well above other public servants, not just the current government. 2. As a public servant, and as an example, within my professional arena, interstate counterparts with similar responsibilities have been remunerated well above Qld pay rates as long as I can remember, yet State MPs have used the legislative legacy of Joh's day to enjoy wage rate rises in line with Federal politicians. Where do political pay rises reflect societal values here? 3. We need to attract intelligent people to represent the State. However, most politicians are silent and the current house is full of members who have only acquired their seats due to a massive electoral back swing. Politicians need to be bench marked and evaluated against KPI's like every one else. A massive 40% this time is certainly at odds with societal trends, one which no business would/could tolerate. 4. Legislating away other peoples lives was done in the bat of an eyelid. Yet, legislating away an anachronistic cash cow which serves self interest causes a dilemma? All the above sounds like moralising, which isn't what the Tribunal is about. The questions will the Tribunal solve this problem with integrity, and having done so, be able to prevent the outcomes being white washed?

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
436	5/09/2013	I find it most offensive that politicians are to receive large pay raises when they already receive a very generous salary package. If there major concern is how much money they are receiving, then they have completely the wrong motivation, just the sort of people we DON'T want! And the poor excuse put forward for the last attempt at a whopping 42% increase just doesn't wash with the public, Do you really think we are such fools ? Since they already receive a generous pay package the only increase they should get is CPI only. And it should be for everyone not just the top end of town. I'am very passionate about this, and also very annoyed about the very obvious greed displayed.
437	5/09/2013	I feel that all political pay rises are obscene given that all other workers and particularly those in the essential areas such as health workers, police, teachers and emergency service workers have to fight to get a measly 2 - 5% and politicians get far in excess of this because both major parties agree to it. I also feel that it is grossly unfair that MPs are able to access their super on leaving the government when all the rest of us have to wait until retirement.
438	5/09/2013	This is hypocrisy of the highest level, I am expected to accept 2.2 % and MP s get 40% apparently some are more equal than others, won't be voting for you again. My wife and I both work in health she is a nurse and I am a paramedic. It's just intolerable that we have to accept the burden of cut backs and yet state MPs are exempt and can be paid excessively more. You dont seriously think people will forget. Can't wait for the state election.
439	5/09/2013	Politicians form the Queensland Government. Public servants implement Queensland Government policy. So politicians and public servants are integrally linked in serving the Queensland public. It is only proper then that Queensland politician's pay is dictly linked to public service pay, with the same tribunal setting the same pay rises for both.
440	5/09/2013	The wage increase is atrocious for QLD current and former ministers. It is a disgusting request by these ministers in general but even worse now when we are still in the throws of a GFC and the repercussions being felt with many QLDers having lost their jobs or suffering hardship over the past few years. Normal Private sector workers are lucky to get at CPI payrise and the Newman Government wont conduct fair negotiations for the Core public servants to give a fair payrise and maintain decent work conditions. If you do not see that is completely unfair, unjust and unethical then you are telling QLDers that they are valueless and the ministers jobs are of more worth when compared to other workers, especially people saving lives. I REJECT THIS PROPOSAL OF RENUMERATION FOR THE MINISTERS THEY SHOULD HANG THEIR HEADS IN SHAME ESPECIALLY OUR PREMIER, IT IS DISGUSTING TO REWARD YOURSELF AT THE EXPENSE OF THOSE WHO ARE SUFFERING. THE CURRENT QUEENSLAND GOVERNMENT LED BY CAMPBELL NEWMAN IS DISCGRACEFUL. THEY HAVE DONE EVERYTHING WITHIN THEIR POWERS TO DESTROY THE LIVELIHOODS OF ALL QUEENSLAND EXCEPT THEMSELVES AND THEIR MATES.
441	5/09/2013	It's absolutely unbelievable that any politician should be even considering a pay rise in the current climate. We are so understaffed we can't take annual leave for more than 12 months and I will be livid if Campbell Newman allows pay rises,,and I will remember it come the next election! Likewise Any cuts to frontline health services.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
442	5/09/2013	as i'm a worker for the education department (support staff) i feel that mr newman has not benefitted anything (that is helped QLD out at all, by increasing the debt that we're in), instead he is trying to give himself a $150 000 pay rise, we all know that mr newman is only looking after himself here and not the low income earners, mr newman and mr abbott are only going to sack people from there jobs and so that there pockets can weigh down a little more, so i most definitely will not be voting for either mr newman or mr abbott, how are they going to create more jobs when they are only going to ber putting people off, we don't need people like that in our government
443	5/09/2013	I believe that the politicians are getting TOO HIGH a wage for the work that they say they do but cannot prove and that it should be reduced substantially (by half at least), however you, the so called 'independent tribunal', established only after the public backlash, won't do this as you are puppets put in their by the [inappropriate content] of a Premier Newman and will not go against them or any politician. Secondly, all Queensland politicians salaries should be aligned to the public sector wages outcomes which in effect reflect the increase in the cost of living. Why should Queensland politicians get such outrageous wages compared to many other Queenslanders who work just as, if not harder then these [inappropriate content] (as you can see I have a low opinion of these so called 'honourable' members of parliament). Salaries received by all politicians should not be compared to or linked to the salary received by other politicians outside Queensland including the Federal politicians, who I also believe get paid way too much for the way that these idiots carry on. Queensland politician's wages should be determined against Queensland community standards and be set according to what the community thinks and not just by selected puppets of the politicians in disguise as being independent. If they are to be increased, then again the wage component should be raised to the same amount as to the public servants wages increase as these raises are linked to reflect the increase to the costs of living and not what a politician and or so called independent tribunal thinks. In general any wage increase should be measured against public opinion and opposition to the hikes that are being proposed and or granted by you, the independent tribunal, who also aren't held accountable to the public for the decision you make. In the case of electoral allowances, then if they must be kept be kept separate to the politician's wages, if kept. These should never be increased at the whim of a politician or the puppets put in place to decide this (ie you the tribunal) nor considered as a substitute for a politicians salary. These funds must be fully accountable for as these so called trust worthy members of parliament have been found out misusing and misappropriating monies. Additionally, if the electoral allowances are spent then additional funds should be made to come out of the wages received by the politician as many other workers don't receive such generous amounts to travel around. As it is, I believe that many of the politicians don't serve the community but only the party line. It doesn't matter what the public thinks or wants as all politicians will only follow what the party wants and or the leader of the party (this is so wrong)

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Any funds spent as part of the Allowance should be scrutinised by public servants and be made publically available so that all Queenslanders can see how politicians are spending public funds and what on. If any allowances received by politicians are misused then the politician should be charged by the police, put in front of a judge and sentenced, so that they cannot become a politician ever again and never rort the public again. In fact any monies given to any politician for any so called work being undertaken as a politician (including trips overseas etc) should be made available to the public for scrutiny and that the politicians held accountable for such expenditure including the locality allowance. This also goes for any claim made by any politician for any allowance or additional funding that they believe that they are entitled to. If the public knew what they were really getting then and only then would they be really held accountable. In general, allowances should not be linked and or combined to the wages of politicians as politicians are out right liars, crooks and thieves and definitely people who cannot be trusted. This is why any monies given to politicians should be scrutinised by public servants and not only politicians and or the so called independent tribunal. Thanks you
444	5/09/2013	Queensland politicians base pay should be directly linked to that of public servants. In this way a pay freeze for the majority of public servants, such as the one happening now, will also mean a freeze for our politicians. Any increases could be argued as fair and equitable , while still proportionate. Establishing this link would also save the Government the considerable of running this tribunal.
445	5/09/2013	I earn $32,000 a year. Come and live with me for a week Mr Newman, and find out just how we battlers survive.
446	5/09/2013	Pay and expenses should only be given for the time an MP is elected (e.g. superannuation) - once an MP has left parliament there should be no further remuneration at the expense of taxpayers whom do not receive the same (especially other public servants) Pay-rises should not exceed those of any other public servant. Expenses should be capped but not automatically paid - full disclosure of expenses should be required. Travel should be paid at the cheapest rate to encourage economy travel. Expenses should not be paid for "employing" family members
447	5/09/2013	Politicians should listen to their constituents. How socially irresponsible to accept such a ridiculous payrise. They do not deserve anymore than the rest of us-which is a big fat 0 if can-do and his LNP crooks get their way. Disgraceful behaviour to sack 14000 people to get your payrise. No amount of spin is going to change the general public perception of such a disgraceful act.
448	6/09/2013	You are as bad as Petersen we are now returning to a police state. LOOK AT YOUR LASTEST ACTIONS NAZI ACTIONS ON THE RAIL WAKE UP TO YOURSELF

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
449	6/09/2013	while reducing public servants is to improve the QLD's state of economy, there is no amount of explanation that could justify 42% pay rise for the few privileged one. If the retrenched workers could continue to lead their family life, what moral justification do you have to help yourself to the till of the state? Your sneaky action, by travelling oversea while the issue has been put forward, or staging a "discussion" while the nation is obligated to cast their votes on election, your maneuvering proved that you care about the State of Financial health of Queensland AND above all, rewarding yourself, regardless the moral of your action.
450	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
451	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Queensland MP's are Public Servants and should be part of a general public service pay scale and have rises in accordance with the rest of the Queensland Public Servants.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
452	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
453	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
454	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
455	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
456	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
457	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
458	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
459	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
460	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
461	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
462	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
463	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Queensland politicians' salaries should be aligned to public sector wage increases. We are all working hard to provide a great service to the Queensland community so all public sector employees (including politicians) should be remunerated equally on a percentage increase basis. If the state funds can't support a pay increase for its public sector employees, it therefore also can't support a pay increase for its politicians.</li> </ul>
464	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
465	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
466	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
467	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
468	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
469	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
470	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
471	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
472	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
473	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
474	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
475	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
476	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
477	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
478	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
479	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
480	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul> when the politicians work as hard as TAFE teachers then they should have only a 2% like they offer us

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		Get real Newman
481	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
482	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• I have previously voiced my displeasure about the politician payrise via an email to my local member Jann Stuckey but wish to add the following additional points.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
483	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
484	6/09/2013	I wish to express the following issues regarding Queensland MP pay: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. Thank you for considering the above consideration that I have outlined.</li> </ul>
485	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
486	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
487	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
488	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
489	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
490	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
491	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
492	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
493	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
494	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
495	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
496	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• I strongly believe that the state politicians should have their salaries linked to the state public service</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
497	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
498	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
499	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
500	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Pay increases are not to exceed those included in the core public sector Enterprise Agreement.</li> </ul>
501	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
502	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>
503	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
504	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separate from allowances for work within electorates and for reasonable expenses. Accountability for how allowances are used should also be increased, given past misuse in this area.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
505	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
506	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
507	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
508	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
509	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
510	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
511	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
512	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
513	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
514	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
515	6/09/2013	This government has slashed jobs in Queensland; the number of empty shops in Brisbane city is evidence of this. Running a state the size of Queensland does not have the complexity of running a nation, even a nation as small as Australia, so the remuneration of those who manage the state should not be at the same level as paid to heads of state. The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. Expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. Thank you for your attention,

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
516	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
517	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
518	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
519	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
520	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
521	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
522	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
523	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
524	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
525	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
526	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
527	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
528	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
529	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
530	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider ALL Queenslanders and the meager pay rises they must fight for.</li> </ul>
531	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
532	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
533	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
534	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
535	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
536	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
537	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
538	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
539	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• Allowances should not be regarded as a substitute for salary payments.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
540	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
541	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
542	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
543	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
544	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
545	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
546	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
547	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
548	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
549	6/09/2013	Politicians may think the public are stupid when the community have to struggle for a pay rise that is pittance anyway but are very generous when it comes to themselves. They unanimously give themselves pay rises although I don't believe that they do enough to deserve such levels of payrise. The only time we see them is during elections where they promise everyone everything and than disappear again. They provide lip service and I would like them all to come and live in remote communities not just for a day or a few days but for at least a month based on what pensioners and others get. They may think they are ViPs but at the end of the day, they are also servants of the public and should behave as such.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
550	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
551	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
552	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
553	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
554	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include verifiable expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
555	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
556	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
557	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
558	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
559	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
560	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
561	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
562	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Politicians' pay rises should be linked to public sector wages outcomes that indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
563	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		this is a blatant dictatorship - politicians almost double their own wages and cut services/jobs to pay for it, and dont allow any basic or minimal wage increases of 3% to other public servants.
564	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
565	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
566	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
567	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. As it is fiscal times consideration should be given by the MP about the most economical use of resources as does the public service and minimising there expenditure in travel, office resources, printing and staffing.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. Proposals for the expenditure with costings be provided and then approval process for the most economic outcome as the public service provides.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
568	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must also consider whether the State can afford massive pay rises to politicians.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
569	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• I am not allowed to have a pay increase because we are "tightening our belts". The cost of living is increasing and the amount of pay we keep to spend and keep the economy going is less and less.</li> <li>• I don't know how you could sleep at night if you accept the politicians pay rise!!!</li> </ul>
570	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
571	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
572	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
573	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
574	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• WE as public servants do not even have an EB agreement and no pay rises for a long period, in schools some teacher aides are earning more than A03's who are there supervisors, no equity anywhere!</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
575	6/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.
576	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
577	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
578	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
579	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
580	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
581	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• State public Servant pay is not linked to federal Public servant pay. Its independant. The same should be the case of State politicians pay. Theer should be a separate pay iniative to increase politicians pay even though it is not politically palitable. It then</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		comes back to the ability for the state to pay and it is a decision that the state actually makes and not a forgone conclusion.
582	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
583	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
584	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
585	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
586	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. Consideration if allowances are incorporated into pay that MP's tax should be scrutinised so that they aren't double dipping</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
587	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
588	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
589	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
590	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
591	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
592	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
593	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
594	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
595	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
596	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must recognise that everyday people are struggling to survive on what they receive as wages/pensions and the how wrong it is for Queensland MPs to receive an annual pay rise that is more than most Australians earn in a year. We hear them express their right for these over inflated pay rises but dismiss accountability for what happens within their portfolios.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> </ul>
597	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
598	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
599	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
600	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
601	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
602	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The politicians should be reminded that they themselves are public servants, and any policy changes they make to change the rights of public servants should also apply to them, which obviously includes pay rises. 40% is ridiculous, considering they are not even prepared to offer QLD public servants a comparative CPI increase to our wages and have dragged this decision through the courts for the last couple of years, so by the time it is all sorted, maybe we will be due a 40% increase</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
603	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
604	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• In the current reduced fiscal environment assessed by current Gov, which was the basis for shedding thousands of public servants and reducing services and meager wage rises for the people left, how is it possible that the State can afford these excessive wage rises granted by the beneficiaries of them?</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
605	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
606	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
607	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
608	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Those elected by the people have a ethical responsibility to set an example in the community. With so many people being made redundant as a direct result of this elected government's policies there is no more urgent time than now to lead by example with equal fiscal restraint with their own wages.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
609	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
610	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
611	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
612	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
613	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
614	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
615	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
616	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
617	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
618	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
619	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
620	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
621	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
622	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
623	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
624	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
625	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
626	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
627	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
628	6/09/2013	Salaries should be linked to the work done and the responsibilities of that job. Backbench positions are more similar to community liaison officers - they listen to the community and take those views back to Parliament. There has been a huge leap in MP salaries in comparison to public service salaries, yet the work has not changed - listen to the community and represent those views. The basis for assessing the base salaries should be reassessed. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
629	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
630	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
631	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
632	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
633	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
634	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
635	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
636	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
637	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately.</li> <li>• The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
638	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
639	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
640	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
641	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
642	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
643	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
644	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
645	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
646	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
647	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
648	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
649	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
650	6/09/2013	Absolute arrogance [personal information] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The idea that politicians can grant themselves pay rises of this magnitude, while sacking people who do REAL work is not only an indication of their arrogance, but also the conntempt in which they hold the electorate.</li> <li>• The Newman government is happy to berate the Bligh government for its failings, but happy to take advantage of these failings when it suits.</li> <li>• Double standards cannot be enshrined in legislation.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
651	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
652	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
653	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
654	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
655	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
656	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
657	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
658	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
659	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
660	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
661	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
662	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
663	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
664	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
665	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
666	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
667	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
668	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
669	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
670	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
671	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
672	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
673	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
674	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
675	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
676	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
677	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The criteria for pay increases for Queensland MPs should be the same as for public sector pay increases i.e. if Queensland MP's pay increases are linked to CPI increases then so should the public sector pay increases. Conversely if public sector pay increases are tied to proven productivity increases then the same should apply to pay increases Queensland MPs</li> </ul>
678	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
679	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
680	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
681	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
682	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. It's both obscene and an insult for the government to, on one hand to "cry poor" and change legislation to deny a reasonable pay increase for public servants, but on the other hand allow politition pay rises which are out of step with the goverments own austerity</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		mentality.
683	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
684	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. In line with current government fiscal policy, prudence is paramount.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
685	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
686	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
687	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
688	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul> Thank you
689	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
690	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
691	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider if Politicians should receive a pay rise of more than the average annual income of their public sector workers!</li> </ul>
692	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
693	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
694	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
695	6/09/2013	Queensland MP salaries must be indexed to that of the average of ALL govt departments for the financial year the increase occurs

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
696	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
697	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
698	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
699	6/09/2013	The status of QLD's finances has been expressed widely by the current government as the reason for cutting public service jobs and community health programs. It is my opinion that as a public servant politicians pay rises should be linked to public sector wages outcomes that indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.
700	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
701	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
702	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Rather than increasing politicians' salaries by such a huge amount, if there is this amount of money available in the State Budget,</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		it would better serve the people of Queensland to use these funds to employ more low level (AO2-AO4) staff to create more efficient workflows and to offset the recent job cuts at these levels.
703	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
704	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
705	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
706	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
707	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
708	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
709	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The salaries of Queensland MPs should be (in my opinion) a reflection of state satisfaction and in line with Qld public servant pay rises (ie. 2-3.5% p.a. increase only). Queensland MPs are still public servants and their salaries should reflect that fact. MP pay rises should not be at the expense of exceptionally hard working public servants who would invite any politician to witness what they have to do in a day (especially since the job cuts).</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
710	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
711	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
712	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
713	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
714	6/09/2013	Politicians are elected public servants and accordingly their salaries must be linked to the broader public service salary structure including salary outcomes from enterprise bargaining
715	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
716	6/09/2013	NO TO POLLIE PAY RISES [personal information] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
717	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
718	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
719	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
720	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
721	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
722	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
723	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
724	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
725	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
726	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
727	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
728	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
729	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
730	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
731	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
732	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
733	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
734	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
735	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Why its the LNP government in such a hurry to pursue massive MP pay rises when it is doing everything possible to stall tiny payrises for all other public servants?</li> <li>• Why aren't MP conditions being stripped like those of all other public servants?</li> <li>• I considier that Qld MPs salaries should be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Accountability for how allowances are used shoul also be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately (just like for any other public servant).</li> <li>• The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses should be separated from assessment of appropriate remuneration (as with all other public servants). Allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The value of Qld MPs should be assessed against Queensland community standards and the salaries of other public servants. They should not be linked to politicians in other jurisdictions, which may have different issues, cost of living etc.</li> <li>• I request that the Tribunal consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay and to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
736	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
737	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
738	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
739	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
740	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
741	6/09/2013	I was, like so many others, disgusted to hear about the enormous pay rise our politicians appear to giving themselves! In these times of economic hardship, where many hard working families are struggling to make ends meet at home, I cannot understand how this can possibly be acceptable. I feel that the politicians are already very well paid for their services, especially considering their favourable working conditions and 'perks'. They are, like I am, public servants! In my humble opinion, all public servants should receive the same percentage pay rise! We all work hard, in our respective fields, for the good of the community as a whole and, quite frankly, I find it insulting that the politicians are awarding themselves this obscene amount of money, when the rest of us have to fight to get 2 or 3%! How do they expect to be taken seriously if this pay rise goes ahead? Thank you for reading this submission.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
742	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
743	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
744	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
745	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
746	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. . Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
747	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
748	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
749	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
750	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
751	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
752	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
753	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
754	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
755	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The salaries paid to Queensland MPs should be linked directly to those of the public service employees of the Departments and Portfolio over which they have direct responsibility.</li> <li>• Payment of allowances should not be used as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and not comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions.</li> <li>• This is the most appropriate linkage for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• There is broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay and the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
756	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
757	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
758	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
759	6/09/2013	As politicians are the head of the public service in Queensland thire pays should be linked to the publis serice wage. i.e The tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. Allowances are not to be paid the the member but to their office who are responsible for ensuring the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. (signed off by superior) - same as ANY other employee. The details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
760	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. Other States' politicians' salaries should not determine those in Queensland. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. Considering that most employees in the public sector were offered 2.2% pay increases it is unbelievable that Queensland politicians could expect a 40% pay increase. It is not ethical.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
761	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
762	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
763	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
764	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
765	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
766	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
767	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
768	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
769	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
770	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
771	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
772	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
773	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
774	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• I cannot see how the proposed wage increase for Queensland politicians can be justified whilst The Queensland Government is still blocking pay rises for many public sector employees.</li> <li>• Pay rises for Queensland politicians should be linked to public sector wage increases which are in turn linked to cost of living increases.</li> <li>• It is essential that salaries for Queensland MPs are separated from travel allowances to ensure proper accountability and transparency . Details of travel and other expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website to allow the public to review what our taxes are being spent on.</li> <li>• Travel is an essential part of servicing an electorate, particularly rural and remote electorates, but travel and other expenses should be openly reported to the public.</li> <li>• If travel and other expense allowances are not being used in full, they should be reduced accordingly as the allocated amount is obviously not required.</li> <li>• If the total allocated expense allowances have not been spent to date then reduction of this allowance must not be presented as a savings. The proper way to report savings is to report the actual amount spent (separated into remuneration and allowances) and compare this with the projected expenditure (separated into remuneration and allowances)</li> </ul>
775	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses should not be incorporated in to politician's salaries and should instead be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration to ensure greater accountability.</li> <li>• The expense allowances should be maintained to allow MPs to represent their electorates. Allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The details of expenditure of expense allowances should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal should ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal should ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal should consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal should recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
776	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• It is not fair that Politicians are cutting Public Servant jobs &amp; infringing on current Public Servant employees reasonable rights, privileges &amp; pay scales when they, the current Governing QLD Political Party (whose majority is LNP), grants themselves a 40% payrise or approximately $50,000. This is a gross abuse of Political power. It should not happen &amp; should be stopped before it is taken into effect. They already earn far more than all or most Public Servants and have access to elevated privileges, allowances &amp; resources reasonable for their employment than Public Servants.</li> <li>• The current politicians have the power to change legislation around stopping their payrise and should execute that power to stop their pay rise immediately.</li> <li>• They should openly declare their salaries and other components they receive as a privilege in their role in QLD State Government.</li> <li>• The Politicians should contribute to their mandates not only in their Departments or Roles within QLD government, but individually just like everybody else. These include helping to cut costs such as stopping their payrise from going ahead.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
777	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
778	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
779	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
780	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
781	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
782	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
783	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
784	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
785	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
786	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
787	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
788	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
789	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
790	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
791	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
792	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
793	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
794	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
795	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
796	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
797	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
798	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Not whilst I'm seeing 40% more patients in Emergency, understaffed and being threatened with a paycut myself whilst 'Option A' is being reviewed.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
799	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
800	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Politicians pay increases should mirror that of all other public servants. If the politicians get a 40% pay increase then so does EVERY public servant.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
801	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
802	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
803	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
804	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
805	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
806	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
807	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
808	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
809	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Why should politicians allow large wage rises for themselves when they are denying wage rises for Public servants</li> </ul>
810	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
811	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
812	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
813	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
814	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
815	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
816	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
817	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
818	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
819	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
820	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
821	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Campbell Newman should hang his head in shame and wipe his condescending grin from his face over the payrise given his treatment of public servants of late</li> </ul>
822	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
823	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
824	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
825	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
826	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
827	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
828	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
829	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
830	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
831	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
832	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
833	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
834	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
835	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
836	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
837	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
838	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
839	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
840	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
841	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
842	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• MPs salaries should be linked to top tier of public servant salaries (currently AO8) that is subject to the enterprise agreement process. Meaning that parity between the value of public servant and MPs salaries are maintained.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
843	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
844	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
845	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
846	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
847	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
848	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
849	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
850	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
851	6/09/2013	I'm a firm believer in the choice made to serve your community should be made out of the right reasons. Reducing the argument to a monetary one misses the point and only encourages professional politicians. It is these types of politicians who should be excluded from parliament. My opinion as a professional architect, builder and community worker is that the current wage for a parliamentarian is more than enough. In fact why should the wage be more than the average householder who they are meant to represent. There is room to reduce the wage in my opinion.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The job of representing your community should be for communitarian goals, not financial reward. It is a gross injustice to think a community representative or parliamentarian should be paid like a banker or CEO of a large corporation. It is exactly this type of person who should have barriers to gaining entrance to parliament based on a reductionist set of values, set up to maximise financial return as opposed to maximising community benefit. Thank you for considering my perspective held by many in the community sector.
852	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
853	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		transparency regime for allowance expenditure. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
854	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
855	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
856	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
857	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
858	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
859	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• If public servants (particularly in health) are losing their jobs and further health cuts are forecasted, I don't see how it is at all fair and equitable for politicians to receive pay rises over and above what is reasonable (inflation)</li> </ul>
860	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• It is unfair that Queensland politicians get a pay rise when all public servants are not entitled.</li> <li>• Many public servants, in particular those with kids, are struggling with the cost of living.</li> <li>• With the recent job cuts public servants have been put under huge stress through job security, increased work load, and lack of resources.</li> <li>• If public servants cannot get a pay rise then politicians shouldn't either. We are all working together on the same agenda to support the people of Queensland.</li> <li>• A consistent approach with salary is essential and will greatly assist in Government and politician relations.</li> </ul>
861	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
862	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
863	6/09/2013	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1 The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>2. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>3. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>4. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>5. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ol>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
864	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
865	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
866	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
867	6/09/2013	The Newman government has been responsible for extensive job cuts across Queensland's public service on the premise that these cuts were necessary to improve Queensland's budget situation now and into the future. As a result of these cuts in my own workplace I have lost key support positions. This together with threats of ongoing staff cuts has affected my own mental health (I am receiving psychological counselling for workplace stress at my own expense). These cuts has considerably affected my work unit's capacity to deliver valued services across government, to other sectors and to the Queensland public. It makes me upset to think that the same politicians who have mandated these cuts for purposed of making ongoing budget savings now wish to grant themselves a massive (I understand 40%) pay rise. It further upsets me to think that these pay rises are not linked to performance but to politicians salaries in other jurisdictions. I fully endorse the points made below by 'Together' and would like these points, and the points I have made above, to be given due consideration by the Independent Remuneration Tribunal. I have received no pay rise or compensation in any form for the increased work load and stress in my life as a result of the Newman government's public sector cost cutting. How is it fair to anyone that Queensland politicians be granted a 40% pay rise? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
868	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
869	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
870	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• @The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
871	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
872	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
873	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
874	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
875	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
876	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
877	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
878	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
879	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
880	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
881	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
882	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. A possible linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must also recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
883	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
884	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
885	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
886	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
887	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
888	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
889	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
890	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
891	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
892	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• NO PENSION FOR LIFE EVER TO ANY POLITICIAN, Superannuation the same as any other public servant.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
893	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
894	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• NO PENSION FOR LIFE EVER TO ANY POLITICIAN, Superannuation the same as any other public servant.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
895	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
896	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
897	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
898	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
899	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
900	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
901	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
902	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
903	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
904	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
905	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
906	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
907	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
908	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
909	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
910	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
911	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
912	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary. Most public servants have a pay rise of 2.5%, perhaps the Queensland MPs could link their salaries more with other state government departments.</li> </ul>
913	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
914	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
915	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
916	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
917	6/09/2013	Queensland Politicians pay should be linked directly to public service pay. Politicians are there to serve the state of Queensland, they are therefore public servants and should have exactly the same pay rises and travel allowances as the rest of the public service. Increases for both the public service and politicians should take into account prevailing economic factors,
918	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
919	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
920	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
921	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
922	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
923	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
924	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
925	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
926	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
927	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
928	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
929	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
930	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
931	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
932	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
933	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• To be given the same increase given to public workers each year ( eg 2.2%) but only if there work performance is a positive injection into the state by making Queensland have less debt.</li> </ul>
934	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
935	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
936	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
937	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
938	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
939	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing geographically larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• Clear and enforceable policies must be developed articulating reasonable expense allowances for MP's. These policies must be developed with public consultation.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions.</li> <li>• It would not be appropriate to increase MP's salaries significantly given the current fiscal limitations of the Qld economy.</li> <li>• The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
940	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
941	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
942	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
943	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
944	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
945	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
946	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
947	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
948	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• If Qld is financially destitute, and public servants have had job cuts(14,000), and pay cuts (Govt withheld the EB agreement), then how can LNP politicians justify such a massive pay rise at the stroke of a pen.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• One run for yu and one rule for us.</li> <li>• Smacks of hypocrisy.</li> <li>• Where si the Qld Governments accountability??</li> </ul>
949	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
950	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
951	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
952	6/09/2013	• As my coworker numbers dwindle and my work load sky rockets I sit with my own pay negotiations stalled at an insulting single figure percentage offer from my employer - the government. Every fortnight I donate 20 plus hours of my own time - not counting the flex I lose because I don't have time to take it - trying to do a job to the best standard I am capable of. Why? Because the clients need someone to do things 'better' not cheaper or more 'contestably'! Whlie I do what I get paid little to do - politicians rub their hands together waiting for back pay from an obscene pay rise that is so big it would pay out my mortgage! Budget cut that payrise and backpay expense or re-direct it to education hospitals detention centers or mental health. Self serving politicians lining their personal coffers - hypocrites! <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
953	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
954	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
955	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
956	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
957	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
958	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
959	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
960	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
961	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
962	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
963	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
964	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
965	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Honesty and integrity must be integral, and transparency seems the only way to objectively account for these attributes.</li> </ul>
966	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
967	6/09/2013	Pollie Pay Rise should be same as all public sector wage outcomes [personal information] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
968	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
969	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
970	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
971	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
972	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
973	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
974	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
975	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
976	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
977	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
978	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
979	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
980	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
981	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
982	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
983	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
984	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
985	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
986	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
987	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
988	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
989	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The salaries of many professionals representing the public in Queensland are lower than Commonwealth and other jurisdictions. This reflects the particular pay issues that arise in Queensland. The Tribunal should ensure that politicians are not put in a category above the people that they represent and demand pay scales linked to other jurisdictions when that is not how professional public servants pay rises are calculated.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
990	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
991	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
992	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
993	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
994	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
995	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
996	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
997	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
998	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
999	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1000	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1001	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1002	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1003	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1004	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have all future salary increases, as well as those currently under consideration, linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1005	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1006	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1007	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1008	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1009	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1010	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1011	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1012	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the fact that hard working Public Servants have been offered a pitiful pay increase of 2.2% that will not be backdated to when they were due an increase. This is an insult to Public Servants who are struggling to make ends meets</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		due to not having had a pay rise for two years.
1013	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1014	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1015	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1016	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1017	6/09/2013	Thank you for your letter of 21 August 2013 advising me of the review being conducted by the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal and its impact on former members of the Queensland Parliament such as myself. From my own personal experience as a member of the [personal information], the need to adequately and properly remunerate elected representatives is the same for both levels of government –the amount of work required and quality of representatives sought is also the same and this should be reflected in the work you are doing. Significant changes in the makeup of the 'package' for Federal parliamentarians have occurred over the last 10 years or so, particularly around adjustments to superannuation schemes and consequential increases in salary to better reflect the operation of non-parliamentary schemes. This same balance was not attended to in Queensland, leading to the commission of your current task - in much the same way that you raise an issue in your discussion paper about expense allowances becoming a substitute for inadequate salaries. In relation to the benefits provided to former members such as myself, I can only submit that the only reasonable outcome is to provide substantially the same gross amounts as those provided to date with appropriate indexation. However it would be entirely unreasonable to take any course of action which undermined or reduced the benefits to former members after the conclusion of their service. This would amount to a retrospective change to entitlements accrued during service and would not be acceptable in relation to any other form of employment or public service and is not acceptable in this case. Major decisions have already taken (leaving funds within the system or withdrawing them) based on the rules which applied at the time. Finally, I urge you to take note of my comments above with particular reference to the fact that the impact of any changes extends beyond former members of parliament, but also has the potential to have a significant on their spouses and dependents into the future, many of whom currently rely on these funds as a source of income, or expect to rely on them in the future. Please do not hesitate to contact me if you would like to discuss this matter further.
1018	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1019	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1020	6/09/2013	I refer to your letter date 21 August 2013 inviting me to make a submission to your Tribunal. The opportunity to make a submission is appreciated. When I left public life by popular demand in [personal information], I had to make a range of decisions about our financial future based on the benefits I would receive as a former Member of Parliament at the time. I am, therefore, dismayed to read your letter and to understand that there could now be some changes made retrospectively to that financial basis, which could adversely affect my current financial position. I consider that there is a matter of principle that must be taken into account in respect of any changes that the Tribunal may consider in relation to former Members of Parliament. Most legislation when changed is not made retrospective for very good reasons, not even changes to the Queensland Criminal Code. Therefore, I fail to see why there could be any consideration given to such a proposition. When a person becomes a Member, they make financial decisions based on the arrangements at the time, which give them certain expectations. For those that take a pension, former Members superannuation is currently indexed to the Consumer Price Index, which is a crucial aspect in considering future financial arrangements. Should changes be made to former Members entitlements which include superannuation, an air fare each year and a Queensland rail pass, which are prudent compared to the Commonwealth or some States, then they should commence only in respect to Members of Parliament who are elected from the date of the next General Election. This has always been the situation in other jurisdictions of which I am aware. Therefore, I strenuously oppose any changes being made to the current arrangements for former Members of Parliament and any new proposals only take effect for Members upon defeat or retirement from the next General Election.
1021	6/09/2013	Thank you for your letter of 21 August 2013. [personal information] 1. I don't believe in nor have I ever supported retrospective legislation in the past, therefore I wish to protect my entitlements and those of [personal information] my wife of [personal information]. 2.[personal information] . 3. My records have a letter (copy attached [personal information]) of [personal information] from Qld. Govt. Superannuation Office, signed [personal information] Manager, Data Solutions and Reporting, Operations Q Super confirming receipt of my Confirmation of Personal Details Form, and also eligibility of my spouse,[personal information]. The last line of the second last paragraph states 'we will be advising you of your benefits on an annual basis from now on.' Please note I have not received any such annual advice

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		since that date.
1022	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1023	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1024	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1025	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1026	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1027	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1028	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1029	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1030	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1031	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Politicians are not entitled to a greater pay increase than other Government departments. This is clearly a conflict of interest where they nominate their own increases. Perhaps its time we all stood up and and said enough is enough. we are fed up with getting the scraps, lets see how safe and supported you feel when we all walk out wether it is legislated against or not?</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1032	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1033	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1034	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1035	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1036	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1037	6/09/2013	Submissions on reumeration of Queensland politicians [personal information] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1038	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• In addition to the widely canvased points below. The tribunal and parliament should consider the timing of any increase. At this time while the government is arguing strongly for saving and postponing projects and other expenditure, it should lead by postponing any increase to their own salaries.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1039	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1040	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1041	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1042	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1043	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1044	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1045	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1046	6/09/2013	Transparency and Fair Pay Conditions for All Queenslanders [personal information] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1047	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1048	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1049	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1050	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• MPs should be paid a base salary that reflect the role they play in the community and that the role can be a seven day job. While I have no formula to allocate a salary I believe there current base salary is substantial to cover it. Any pay increases should be linked to the existing public service core agreement. The government is determining whether it has the capacity to pay, any trade offs or improvements. Given they are servants of the people duly elected, there is a case that they come under a similar banner. In addition, the pay should take into consideration the CPI increase and capacity to pay. Any consideration of pay increases should come after core agreement reviews, which covers the government's capacity or willingness to pay. Leadership starts with the "leaders" and not by stating an independent arbitrator has made the decision.</li> </ul> Additional salary for the different roles Premier, Treasurer, Minister, whip, committees is reasonable considering the additional time, responsibility and decisions that are required to be made. Again the current structure can be maintained and only increased by the CPI. Other Allowances should be paid by a reimbursement system. The money should be budgeted for a maximum amount per each MP according to their region. And any savings / unspent funds returned to the public purse. The allowances are there to cover reasonable costs to run the office, electorate, postage (not advertising) again any increase to be based on CPI increase, although savings should be a consideration given the current economic climate and the budget position. There is an expectation by the community of reasonable costs to be covered, but again leadership. If they overspend, then this reflects poor management. As reimbursement occurs, it will ensure the original allowance is not exceeded. Audit of expenses will ensure only approved allowances are reimbursed. Allowances expended should be available for all to see- transparency, so let it be published on the web site. Note: any pay increase is only considered after the core public sector is signed off. Linked. If you cannot afford to pay your staff, why should your pay increase.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1051	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1052	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1053	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1054	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1055	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1056	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1057	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1058	6/09/2013	UFUQ Submission to the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal Base Salaries Current base salaries are adequate. An issue with the current base salaries is that an elected MP can now earn in excess of $130,000 per annum and have few qualifications and skills. The base salary could, by a considerable amount, exceed the earnings potential of that same individual in a regular job. Current base salaries are not so low as to cause impecuniosity or increase temptation for corruption. The related comparison that the salary would be lower than a number of senior public servant salaries or private sector managers and executives and therefore not allow such higher paid citizens to accommodate a pay reduction should they enter parliament, could be addressed by the higher payments attributable to greater responsibilities.(Such as appointment to ministries). Allowances Allowances should be clearly separated from MP's salaries to ensure that the expenditure is attributable for the purposes for which it is paid. Expenditures should be publicised and accessible. The current government has passed a range of laws purportedly to make state registered trade unions more "accountable". Some of the measures go no further than requiring publication at large of information already available to union management committees and members, other measures require detailed wide reportage of day to day expenditure such as taxi fares. Whilst much of the government's motivation in imposing such unnecessary and cumbersome red tape on employee organisations appears to be juvenile spite, it has been explained by the government as assisting unions to be accountable to their members as to the manner in which their funds are spent in representing them. The tribunal needs to be mindful of not mimicking the ridiculous excesses that the government has imposed upon the representatives of their employees, simply for the sake of being seen to be balanced and fair. However the tribunal needs to be mindful of applying fair balance to obligations on MP's to be accountable for their expenditure. The expenditure of public monies by MP's needs to be reported, and available to public scrutiny such as by publication on websites. Parliamentary Committees We encourage the tribunal to scrutinise the current payment system for MP's forming part of parliamentary committees. The

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		tribunal should consider how MP's are allocated to the Committees and what structure of remuneration flows from being so assigned. The current arrangements appear to allow for additional monies to be shared around as additional salaries, as opposed to a skills or experience based composition of committees. The current arrangement might also leave scope for partisan appointments. To the extent that the committee structures influence remuneration, the tribunal ought to examine them closely. Increases to Allowances Increase to allowances should occur periodically to account for price movements as demonstrated by relevant abs statistics. Increases to Salaries Base salaries ought to be increased by no more than general wage and salary movements in the economy. In our view, a reasonable increase would be up to 3.75% per annum. This figure is based upon increases in the Wage Price Index (WPI) and Average Weekly Ordinary Time Earnings (AWOTE). In circumstances, (such as throughout 2012 and 2013), where the majority government has advocated lower wage adjustments for its employees, then the tribunal should ensure that MP's pay adjustments do not exceed any cap determined by government for its own employees. Community Confidence It is important that the community hold confidence in the parliament and its representatives. The political backdrop to the notorious "42%" pay increase, austerity measures, and public sector wages drag are all relevant considerations for the tribunal. Currently, the public maintain a high degree of cynicism about parliamentary representatives, their accountability, the level of remuneration they receive and considerable pay increases mooted. UFUQ submit that the Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal needs to have at the forefront of its deliberations, the need to moderate wage increases in line with community standards, and ensure that allowances and expenditure based components are publicly accountable.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1059	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1060	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1061	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1062	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1063	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1064		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1065	6/09/2013	I work in the aged care/community sector with a NGO. Have worked for the org. just on 6 years. My only reward is I provide a high level of care for which clients are very appreciative. My last pay packet reflected the CPI rise, which translated to 12 cents per hour rise. This now takes my hourly rate to jaust over $21.50 p/h. Apparently, that's all I'm worth. That is just deplorable. Q Health frontline jobs were cut, higher management positions were either VSP'd or position vacancies vanished. This left many gaps of position roles. Apparently, ( and this is on the public record) private consultancies were contracted to engage in these many roles. These consultants ARE being paid amazing amounts of money to perform similar duties of axed personnel. Therein lies a big finacial problem. How can the State afford this? How much is this Tribunal costing the taxpayer? I'm not in the public face of politics but I work very hard for my wage, physically, emotionally and psychologically. If I am only worth a 2.2% payrise as other workers have been accorded, then why should a QLD state politician be entitled to a 42% rise under stated dire state economic conditions. I feel hypocrisy is at play. No state sitting member should by moral and economic principals be afforded an unaffordable payrise in a climate where aged and disabled pensioners are living in squalid conditions.Where is the humanity. I am thoroughly disgusted. QLD needs to reinstate the Senate. Keep the B...s..ds honest. With regards a crankier old womwn by the minuite. I am in hope and faith our future generations see this period of global KAOS with trepidation and step up to the issues that are really important!
1066	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1067	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• To minimise the administrative costs associated with the electorate allowance the Tribunal must establish a reasonable allowance amount for common items (such as postage) over which the member must provide detailed accounts. All other items not specifically so covered must be accounted in full.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1068	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1069	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary, by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Given the propensity of Ministers on both sides of politics, in recent years, to blame senior public servants for major problems within their portfolio's, rather than having the buck stop with them, it is unreasonable for Ministers to expect to be remunerated at a rate which approaches or even exceeds DG's and Deputy DGF's. These highly skilled and credentialed officers, unlike their Ministers, actually know what they are doing in the portfolios they work in and take responsibility for the bad, unlike the Ministers who only wish to be associated with good news.</li> </ul>
1070	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1071	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1072	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1073	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1074	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1075	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1076	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1077	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1078	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1079	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1080	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1081	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1082	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1083	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1084	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1085	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1086	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1087	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1088	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1089	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1090	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1091	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1092	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1093	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1094	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1095	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1096	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1097	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1098	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1099	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1100	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1101	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1102	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1103	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1104	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1105	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1106	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1107	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1108	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1109	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• If increases to public service pay must be limited by prevailing financial conditions, politicians' pay rises must be limited by the same factors to the same % increase.</li> </ul>
1110	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1111	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1112	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1113	6/09/2013	The proposed changes directly increase risk of corruption and the linkages of allowances to salary are inappropriate. Allowances to conduct particular tasks as an MP should NOT be incorporated into salaries, this proposal makes no sense. What do the Auditor General and Chairperson of the CMC have to say on this issue? This attempt to compromise political pay standards and increase vulnerability to corruption say a lot about politicians in the current climate and the public will have a lot to say at the next election. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1114	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1115	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1116	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1117	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Queensland public servants have not had a pay rise for over two years. In that time there has been cost increases well above inflation for electricity (30%), public transport (15%) etc. In that light the Tribunal must delay the pay rise for Queensland MPs to take effect when a similar amount of time has elapsed AFTER the current wage case for Queensland public servants is settled.</li> </ul>
1118	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1119	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1120	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1121	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1122	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1123	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1124	6/09/2013	I feel strongly about the following issues: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1125	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1126	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1127	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1128	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1129	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1130	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1131	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• I think politicians salary should be tied to the pay of the highest group of residents - therefore the real average income not artificially inflated income of a few.</li> </ul>
1132	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1133	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1134	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1135	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1136	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1137	6/09/2013	I strongly oppose the recent 42% politician's pay rise. How dare you think you deserve this, when your constituents are suffering deep financial crisis. The only fair thing is to increase everyone's wage by 42%. NO JUSTIFICATION! My vote counts too,

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		remember that.
1138	6/09/2013	The increase in parliamentarian's pay should be no more than the lowest percentage pay rise of the public servants they manage. It is inconceivable that parliamentarians should get a larger percentage pay rise since they have argued on restraint for public servants under the control of their Ministers. Considering that Ministers now have downsized departments they should consider taking a pay cut, as they have less responsibilities. As a public servant - I have accepted a real pay but, despite more responsibilities as my conditions have been restricted under our new EB
1139	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• ZThe expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1140	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1141	6/09/2013	My Suggestions      6-9-13 I would propose consideration be given to the following components when deliberating upon the appropriate salary/allowances package for MPs: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. A set base salary be given to all MPs of no more than $150,000 per annum.</li> <li>2. For additional formal roles of Premier etc an additional salary component of between $10,000 and $30,000 per annum be given for each additional role up to a maximum of $50,000.</li> <li>3. All future salary increases be in accordance with the CPI only.</li> <li>4. Instead of multiple allowances only one expense allowance be allocated to each MP based on size of electorate, portfolio held and required trips to Parliament sittings.</li> <li>5. All expenses must be accounted for by documentary evidence that is open to public scrutiny should the request be made by constituents or interested parties.</li> <li>6. Due to the current economic climate a reduction in expenses should be emphasized to all MPs and be reflected in the reduction of monetary expense allocations.</li> <li>7. As an incentive for better representation, a bonus system be introduced that annually assesses an MPs performance within their electorate.</li> <li>8. Set up an MP's Bonus Committee to convene once a year from selected, suitable electorate representatives (not party or mates).</li> <li>9. A criterion for bonuses to be drafted e.g. What improvements has this MP facilitated, during his/her term, in this electorate in: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>a. Health Care</li> <li>b. Education</li> <li>c. Infrastructure</li> <li>d. Law Enforcement</li> <li>e. Emergency Services</li> </ol> </li> <li>10. The bonus to be an extra 2% of the base salary for each criterion met up to a maximum of 20%.</li> </ol> I do believe accountability is a big issue for each electorate and I would also suggest a quarterly publication for each electorate's MP's expenditure in performing his/her office. This publication to be mailed out to each household of their electorate. Thank you for giving me this opportunity to contribute to your deliberations and the running of our state.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1142	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1143	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1144	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1145	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1146	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1147	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1148	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1149	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1150	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1151	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1152	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1153	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1154	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The privilege of serving the community should be viewed and treated as exactly that, a privilege. All politicians knew their prospective pay while campaigning for the previous election. Such a large increase is not expected by politicians or needed. In a climate of severe fiscal restraint I am gobsmacked that the current government could expect the taxpayers of QLD to play their part in coping with large numbers of jobs and service cuts but then not practice the fiscal restraint they force upon the community.</li> <li>• I would support a pay rise linked to inflation which is roughly the same methodology as all public servants get, this is fair and ensures politicians pay rises with the cost of living.</li> </ul>
1155	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1156	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1157	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1158	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1159	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1160	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1161	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1162	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1163	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1164	6/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1165	6/09/2013	If the state is in such poor financial position that public servants are being forced to resign, take wage cuts or wage freezes then it is unacceptable for politicians to receive huge pay rises. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1166	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1167	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1168	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Polititians need to be consistent and reflect what they preach. It is inappropriate to make the rest of the community moderate any pay increase, then accept substantial increases in the guise that these equate with there Federal Colleges, because the decision is made by an independent body. This behaviour is not acceptable to Queenslanders, even one who is LNP at heart. What are the KPI's and productivity dividend that should be reasonable expected from such a massive increase, and what address does the all suffering tax payer have if these goals are not met? If you don't like the pay and conditions do something else other than politics. If this pay increase is granted I would consider not voting (for the first time ever) LNP at the next election. Be warned for I am a rusted on LNP supporter, and if my vote changes the LNP will be a one term government</li> </ul>
1169	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1170	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1171	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1172	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1173	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1174	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1175	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1176	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1177	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1178	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1179	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1180	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1181	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1182	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1183	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1184	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1185	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1186	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1187	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1188	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1189	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1190	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1191	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1192	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1193	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1194	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1195	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1196	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1197	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1198	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1199	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The proposed pay rise is obscene in our economic and industrial climate. A call as to what is fair and reasonable should be applied to this decision.</li> <li>• The State Government is one entity - politicians and public servants should be aligned/linked in their pay entitlements and increases. It should not be a them and us mentality.</li> </ul>
1200	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1201	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul> Any decision should be fair and reasonable, considering the present economic climate. It is unfair to offer some public servants a pay rise of 40% while others are offered 2%.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1202	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1203	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1204	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1205	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1206	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1207	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Premier of Queensland, Campbell Newman should not be treating the State of Queensland as his own private company where Executives are paid exorbitant wages, by sacking 12,000 public servants to fund their pay rise. Its unethical, not to</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		mention, immoral!!
1208	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1209	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1210	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1211	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1212	7/09/2013	The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration. The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate. The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1213	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1214	7/09/2013	The idea of politicians getting a nearly 50% pay rise when Campbell Newman has compared Queensland's economy to that of Spains is completely hypocritical. Jeff Seeny's comments about legislating away existing entitlements (for politicians) as repugnant, when they did exactly that to public servants who are now bearing additional workloads from sacked employees is completely hypocritical. Something has to be done to hold this government to account. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1215	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1216	7/09/2013	I would like to make a submission to the Queensland Politician Pay rise. I am negatively opposed to the pay rise of such a degree. I would like to be made aware of cuts the Political members are taking in regards to allowances, vehicles, security and electrol benefits to compensate for the rise. If the political members are not making these cuts, are they instead taking up more of an administration role in regards to there own documentation and not relying on administration staff? I cant see how a 42% rise is evan comprehended in any position unless middle management roles have been reclassified and the encumbant person is taking up more of a role. It seems to me alot of government agencies are struggling to get evan a rise to match GDP let alone a titanic submission such as this. As a tax payer my whole life I dont agree with the rise and would prefer my monies going if not to health and education in this state then to charity instead of a political figure where I cant see any change to his/her role to warrant such a rise. Thank you for allowing my submission
1217	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1218	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1219	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1220	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1221	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1222	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1223	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1224	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1225	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1226	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1227	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1228	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1229	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1230	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1231	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1232	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1233	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1234	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1235	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1236	7/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1237	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1238	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1239	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Similar to the Public Sector reforms this government is initiating (ie rationalisation and improving responsiveness through leaner services), the state government must treat themselves the same. Accordingly, MP's salaries should be also incorporated into the</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		same pay scale that's being introduced across the rest of the public sector - afterall, they too are public servants and subject to all the same scrutiny that the rest of the public sector is.
1240	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• Why not place politions under the same proposed award for all other qld gov employees,</li> </ul>
1241	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
1242	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• [personal information] Government legislation reflects that he is still a dependant of mine financially for some time to come. I work in the Disability Sector where jobs have been slashed, my work load substantially increased, I get abuse almost on a daily basis by people in crisis situations and no funding to assist them. I have not had a pay rise in a number of years with Government offering a pathetic 2.2% increase. This pay rise for Politicians is outrageous and must not go ahead. If cuts need to be made in Queensland due to financial deficits they (politicians) should also be held accountable.</li> </ul>
1243	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1244	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• I am sick the way Queensland MPs use legislation for their own benefit to increase their wage while the average worker is made to abide by MP's legislation they change to suit themselves. Queensland can not afford to pay MP's the extra wage and they should lead by example.</li> <li>•</li> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1245	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1246	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1247	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1248	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1249	8/09/2013	If Queensland politicians are to be regarded with respect they need to model the wage restraint they are imposing on other members of the community. I believe the most appropriate way of determining fair &amp; appropriate remuneration for Queensland politicians is to link their wage increases to those of the public sector - which will indirectly reflect broader wage increases as well as increases in the cost of living in Queensland. Queensland politicians are public sector employees - why should their wage scale be determined by a method other than what is already in place for Queensland public sector workers?
1250	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Direct salaries for MPs should be separated from allowances.</li> <li>• Direct salaries should be linked to pay increases for Queensland public servants as MPs are in essence public servants of Queenslanders too. The same arguments that the Queensland Government makes for increases to the core public service should obviously apply to themselves. That means no backdating and only 2% and only once the Queensland Government has given the core public service their pay rise.</li> <li>• There should be greater accountability on politicians regarding their use of electoral allowances to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1251	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1252	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1253	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary, this would simply hide future misuse. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be subject to approval &amp; verification by the Auditor General and the details of this expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate, justification for excessive travel should be provided.</li> <li>• The expense allowance should be a reimbursement for actual expenses, it is not an entitlement, so should only be paid on proof of use for an approved purpose.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions as this can simply perpetuate a circle of excessive pay levels. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• MPs pay should reflect their responsibility and qualification levels and should not be related to remuneration of company CEOs and Directors - MPs have much lower accountabilities, less complex issues, and no educational requirements so should be paid significantly less. Consideration does need to be given to the high personal and time commitment required, but as with other employees, they need to be accountable for time actually spent on work issues.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider claims by Government MPs about the need to save money - huge pay rises for themselves is not the way to reduce costs. Public servants are expected to accept effective pay cuts and the general public is seeing loss of services, it is inappropriate for MPs to receive massive pay rises - CPI should be the upper limit of any increases.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1254	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1255	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
1256	8/09/2013	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The direct salaries for Queensland MPs must be separated from allowances for work within electorates. Previous misuse of electorate and miscellaneous allowances is not a reason to incorporate them into direct salary. Accountability for how allowances are used must be increased to ensure that taxpayers' monies are spent appropriately. The provision of allowances for reasonable expenses must be separated from the issue of assessment of appropriate remuneration.</li> <li>• The expense allowances must be maintained to provide the ability to Queensland MPs to represent their electorates. Queensland is a geographically diverse state and allowances should reflect the additional costs associated with representing larger regional electorates. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs, but the details of their expenditure should be published on the Queensland Parliament website. Expenses allowable should include any expenses which relate to assisting the MP in their representation of their electorate.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have future salary increases linked to public sector wages outcomes, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland.</li> <li>• The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.</li> </ul>
1257	8/09/2013	1. In considering the role of a Queensland MP, do you believe an appropriate remuneration structure is a combination of direct salary (including superannuation), and some expense allowances associated with performing the role of a MP? Please explain your answer. I consider that MPs should receive a direct salary only. There is sufficient concern in the community over the probity of MPs to make it undesirable for them to receive their business expenses as a private remuneration for which they are not accountable. MPs should meet the same standards of probity and accountability as public servants. Public service allowances are tied to specific legitimate work purposes and events; and must be accompanied by documentation to demonstrate that the expense was legitimate. The same should apply to MP work expenses. Expenses should not be bundled into salary as this precludes transparency and accountability; provides a perverse incentive for MPs to not conduct their work diligently; and tarnishes the reputation of Parliament. The recent decision to bundle the two together should be reversed. While legitimate business expenses should be covered, this should be through a separate system which provides transparency and accountability. 2. If you believe there should be expense allowances, what sort of expenses should be allowed for? Please give examples.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		The expense allowances should be maintained so that Queensland MPs can represent their electorates and take part in the business of Parliament. The allowances should be the same for all MPs whether Government, opposition or cross-benches. This should include payment for documented expenditure up to established caps for the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Maintaining an electoral office including normal office services</li> <li>• Employing an assistant to run the office at a salary commensurate with the rate applying to a public service position with equivalent work value as established through the JEMS system</li> <li>• Travel for documented work purposes (including associated accommodation and meals) at the same level and under the same documentation requirements as applies to public servants (not SES) (note: the additional cost of covering a geographically larger electorate is accounted for through this measure).</li> <li>• Communication with electors – eg postage, internet access, and printing (with the payment for internet access based on best available price to achieve a standard level of access. The additional cost of working from a more remote electorate office is accounted for by this measure).</li> </ul> For leaders of each party and for each independent member, there should be an allowance to enable the party/member to participate in the work of Parliament. This should include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Employing a research officer to support the analysis of Bills and preparation of policy.</li> </ul> Of course, all MPs should have access to office accommodation and normal office services within Parliament, so that they may work efficiently and make best use of all time they are not required to be present in the House. The decision to exclude the Opposition from offices within the Parliament Annex should be reversed. No specific allowance should be provided for travel, meetings or costs associated with internal party business. However, MPs should be able to use their electoral office and office in the Parliament (including the associated normal office services) for these purposes without any specific documentation. 3. How do you think the Tribunal should ensure that allowances are only used to meet the reasonable expenses of an MP and are not regarded as a substitute for salary? The Tribunal must ensure that allowances are not regarded as a substitute for salary by increasing the accountability and transparency regime for allowance expenditure. The use of expenses should be discretionary for Queensland MPs (ie they should not need to seek prior approval for each item). However, the criteria for what expenses are allowable should be the same as apply to the expenses of public servants (not SES). Transparency and accountability should be provided by publishing details of their expenditure on the Queensland Parliament website.

Queensland Independent Remuneration Tribunal

Submission No	Received	Submission Content
		4. What factors and benchmarks do you consider relevant in determining the reasonable direct salary (excluding expense allowances) that reflects the value to the community of an MP carrying out their role, functions and responsibilities? The Tribunal must ensure that the value of Queensland MPs is assessed against Queensland community standards and reject any notion of comparisons with politicians in other jurisdictions. The most appropriate linkage is for Queensland MPs to have their salary linked to public sector salaries, by determining the work value of the backbencher MP using the same JEMS system that is used to determine work value of public service positions, and then identifying the appropriate salary using public service benchmarks. I think it likely that, for a backbencher without committee, ministerial or Whip responsibilities, the work value would be equivalent to a senior community development officer, able to work independently and to supervise a small number of staff: perhaps around the A07 level. Committee members, who have some policy development role but not a decision making role, would be at A07-A08 level. Ministers have significant additional statutory responsibilities equivalent to senior SES levels. Increases in MP salaries would then be naturally linked to the wages outcomes for the Queensland Public Service, which will also indirectly reflect broader wage increases and increases in the cost of living in Queensland. The Tribunal must consider the broad community opposition to the proposal to continue to link Queensland politicians' pay to Commonwealth politicians' pay. If this was ever appropriate, the fact that Commonwealth MP salaries have been adjusted in recognitions of productivity bargaining that has not occurred in Queensland, makes the link no longer relevant. The Tribunal must recognise the broad community opposition to the incorporation of allowances as part of salary.
